Tito Denies He Fears Invasion By Russians

Labels As 'Guesswork' A Report Saying Slav Government Considered Possibility Of Attack From Soviet Troops

By Alex Singleton

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Yugoslavia today denied it fears any Russian invasion.

A report that it is thinking in terms of a possible Red army attack was called pure guesswork.

An official statement from Marshal Tito's government said:

"On the second of this month, the United Press printed news from 'official Yugoslav sources' to the effect that the Yugoslav government is supposedly considering the possibility of an invasion of Yugoslavia by Russian troops.

"It is officially stated that this news to the effect that Yugoslav official circles made such statements is an ordinary fabrication and arbitrary guesswork of the correspondent of the United Press in Belgrade."

(The United Press in New York had no comment on the denial immediately).

Tito's ministry of information also denied a Voice of America broadcast which said Belgrade had complained to the International Danube Commission about the presence of an armed Soviet ship on the Danube river last month.

"It is officially announced the ministry said, "that the news about this complaint is untrue."

(In New York, a Voice of America spokesman declined comment. The spokesman said that a voice broadcast yesterday quoted an unidentified Yugoslav official as saying his government had registered the complaint to the commission.

(However, the same source said, a voice broadcast today will carry a statement by a Yugoslav spokesman denying that Tito's government had made such a complaint).

(In Paris, Kirtley Mather, an American professor, said Tito doesn't expect a Russian attack on Yugoslavia but is prepared for it if it comes. Mather said he had lunch with Tito last week. He quoted the Yugoslav leader as saying he had been on bad terms with Marshal Stalin since 1944).

Tonight Yugoslavia blasted Bulgaria for refusing to permit Yugoslavia to participate in the official Bulgarian fair in Plovdiv. A ministry statement said it appeared from the Bulgarian refusal to admit Yugoslav products for exhibition that Sofia authorities in their country" if Yugoslavia participated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. — (AP) — In Labor Day messages, the nation's top labor officials appealed today to industry and workers alike to fight against depression and communism.

NEGRO TRIO IS GUILTY OF RAPE

Death Mandatory For 2; Jury Recommends Mercy For 16-Year-Old

TAVARES, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Three Negroes were convicted tonight of a rape that ignited race demonstrations by white mobs in this central Florida area last July.

An all-white circuit court jury found the three Negroes guilty of raping a 17-year-old white farmwife but recommended mercy for Charles Greenlee, 16, one of the three charged.

Death sentence is mandatory for the other two, Samuel Shepherd and Walter Irvin, both 22. Greenlee will be sentenced to life imprisonment or less by Judge Truman G. Futch.

A fourth suspect, Ernest Thomas, was killed by a posse in northwest Florida several weeks ago.

The rape brought demonstrations by white mobs against Negroes at Groveland and other nearby towns in this central Florida farming area. The Florida national guard had to be called to restore order, but not until several Negro houses had been fired. The Negro population of Groveland fled the town during the disorders.

Shepherd and Irvin told almost identical stories. They said they went to a movie at Groveland the night of the alleged attack, traveled to a Negro community near Orlando afterward and then returned to their homes.

Asked by Defense Attorney Alex Akerman, Jr., if they had anything to do with the alleged rape, both replied:

"I did not."

They said they did not know Greenlee until they saw him in jail follow- would not "be able to guarantee peace

Two Killed Instantly In Truck-Train Crash

FLORA, Miss., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two men were killed instantly here today when their pickup truck was struck by a southbound Illinois Central freight train.

The men, L. F. Simmons, 73, of Jackson and his son-in-law William J. Harper, 56, of Meridian, were crossing the road when the truck was struck by the freight.

They evidently failed to see the train in time to stop, D. L. Harper, Flora marshal, reported. They were instantly killed as they were knocked clear of the truck and train by the impact, he said.

The vehicle was dragged more than 100 feet down the tracks before the train could be stopped, the officer said.

The men were reportedly returning to Jackson from a fishing trip on the big Black River near here at the accident.

Mr. Harper, an employee of the Southern Railroad in Meridian, was visiting his father-in-law, in Jackson at the time.

Funeral services are as yet incomplete.

Parade To Launch Annual Rodeo Week

Estimated 500 Riders To Prance Through Downtown Streets; First Performance Monday At 8 P. M. At Gentry Arena

An estimated 500 riders will officially open the fourth annual Northeast Louisiana rodeo with a huge parade on downtown Twin City streets at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

An 8 o'clock performance Monday night at the Gentry Arena in West Monroe will climax the Labor Day show and really turn the Twin Cities over to the west.

Following the opening night show, which was swamped by ten thousand fans last year, performances will continue nightly for the rest of the week, to be climaxed with a 2:30 p. m. Sunday final.

Every step possible to turn Monroe and West Monroe over to the spirit of the west has been taken. Mayors C. C. Bell and George O. Breece have signed a proclamation naming the week of Sept. 5-11 "Rodeo Week."

Governor Earl K. Long, U. S. Senator Russell Long and former Senator William Feazel have announced plans to attend the Tuesday night

400 REGISTERED FOR CONVENTION

First Session Of Federation Of Young Men's Clubs Slated Today

With more than 400 delegates and guests registered last night and many more than that number expected to register this morning, the 10th annual convention of the National Federation of Young Men's clubs opened here at the Virginia Hotel.

The registration table in the lobby of the hotel was kept busy from 2 p. m. until 8 o'clock to care for the early arrivals. Registration will be resumed this morning at 8 a. m. Principal events of the convention will be held today.

A cocktail party at the Progressive Men's Club at Selman Field officially opened the convention last night. The club is sponsoring the convention, which is expected to be the largest held here this year. Delegates from Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama will attend the meetings. An attractive entertainment program has been arranged for men and women visitors alike.

The delegates will attend mass at St. Matthew's Catholic Church in a body this morning, marching from the hotel to the church at 9 a. m. Father Simone Vitale, of Shreveport,

One-Legged Cabbie Slain During Quarrel

REDFIELD, S. D., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A one-legged taxicab driver was shot to death today in a quarrel over the wife of his best friend, a policeman.

The cabbie was Ray Sieben, 30.

The policeman is Maynard Schultz, 24, wounded by a fellow policeman attracted by the sound of firing. Schultz was under police guard at the Redfield hospital today.

No charges have been filed.

State's Attorney Stanton L. Clark said witnesses told the following story of the affair:

Mr. and Mrs. Schultz helped Mr. and Mrs. Sieben move their belongings into a new apartment last night. Considerable liquor was consumed in the process. Schultz took Mrs. Sieben for a brief walk. Returning, he found his wife had "passed out." Her clothing was disarranged. Schultz accused Sieben of taking liberties with her. The pair fought. Mrs. Sieben pulled them apart.

Schultz ran from the house, followed by the Siebenses. Schultz raced to the police station, four blocks away, and obtained his service revolver. Returning to the street he fired four shots. Sieben fell, mortally wounded. Mrs. Sieben suffered a flesh wound.

Schultz then turned on one of two patrolmen who had followed him out of the police station. One shot him in the shoulder.

Youth Buried Alive In Well Saved By Firemen, Welders

ELKHART, Ind., Sept. 3. — (AP) — A rugged 17-year-old youth who was virtually buried in a well for almost six hours left for his home in Chicago tonight after being released from Elkhart General Hospital.

The youth had been kept in the hospital for observation most of the day, although he claimed to go back to Chicago.

Firemen and welders worked frantically against sandslides in the 20-foot hole late last night and finally hoisted cocky young Gene Sanders out with only a few scratches and bruises.

Sand buried the youth just as he was about to climb out of a well he was helping Gust (Red) Peterson dig on the Peterson farm near Bristol, Ind. Peterson began scratching sand away to uncover the boy's face.

"When I woke up," young Sanders said, "My mouth and eyes were full of sand and I began spitting sand.

"As fast as Red would dig it away, I would slide back and cover my face again, and I'd wake up and see Red digging."

Fire Chief John Williams of Elkhart said he found Peterson bending his own body over the boy's face to keep the sand from smothering him. Firemen put an air mask on the boy. They even piped hot coffee to him as the hours dragged on.

Before the rescue work was over a special steel pipe was made to dimensions and lowered into the well to hold off more slides. After that firemen dipped out the sand—a bucketful at a time.

Police car radio communications were used to call in a steel expert and

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—By the edict of "His Majesty," Samuel II, and Imperial Wizard 4-006800 today, the nation is in for a week of cross-burning.

Anyhow, that's what one Bill Hendrix, who described himself as adjutant for the southern and northern Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said via "imperial" proclamation.

Hendrix declared the crosses would be burned in a crusade against communism and to give support to the veterans of Peekskill, N. Y., involved in a riot last Saturday.

Public Relations Agency Admits 'Pulling Rabbits From Hat'

PRINTED FORM STRESSED 'STRICTEST CONFIDENCE'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A letter of a public relations agency offering to help businessmen get "anything done in Washington" was turned over today to senate investigators of five percenters.

The agency "modestly admitted" having "pulled a few rabbits out of hats." It promised that all business would be handled in "strictest confidence."

Senator Mundt (R-S. D.), making the letter public, told reporters he had referred it to the senate investigators subcommittee staff. "It appears to fall within the scope of our investigation," he said.

The committee is looking into the activities among others, of agents who hire out to help businessmen seeking government contracts.

The committee's public hearings, now recessed for at least a month, were highlighted by testimony about favors which Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, did for some of his friends.

The printed, from letter which Mundt passed on to staff investigators was from the Earl C. Noyes Agency, "public relations counsellors," with offices in the Washington building here.

It noted the billions of dollars being spent by the government, called attention to a magazine article telling of the need for a "competent salesman" in dealing with the government, and wound up like this:

"This old, established agency has

19TH YEAR FOR N. J. C. TO OPEN

Registration To Be Initiated On September 15 At Institution

Northeast Junior College will begin her nineteenth session with registration starting on Thursday, September 15. Registration will continue through Saturday noon, September 17, with classwork getting under way on Monday, September 19. Due to the adding of the twelfth grade to the public school system, there will be a smaller freshman class than usual at all colleges of the state; and N. J. C. will be no exception. However, it is predicted that a good enrollment will materialize to include an extra large sophomore class, a number of veterans who will attend as beneficiaries of the G. I. Bill of Rights, a considerable number of adult, part-time students, and a larger than usual group of out-of-state students.

Students returning to the campus will note several changes which will facilitate the operation of classes and student activities. The entire R. O. T. C. department has been moved to its own building which it will occupy and use, exclusively. This building was donated to Northeast Junior College as a temporary structure by the federal government to relieve war-time crowding. However, it is structurally strong and attractive in appearance, such that steps are being taken to improve it for permanent use.

The staff of the Pow-Wow, all-American rated college newspaper, has for several years been forced to use borrowed quarters in the library because of war-time crowding. The 1949 staff, however, will enjoy using a place assigned exclusively to it in the former agriculture building.

Monroe Lad In Polio Hospital Made Honorary Fireman

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Red-headed Mickey Cottrell has a big day in store for him tomorrow.

He's a polio victim but tomorrow is his fifth birthday.

And the lad who has always wanted to be a fireman will see his dream come true.

New Orleans firemen will make him an honorary fireman and a real badge goes with the honor.

Mickey will also get a plastic miniature of a fire chief's car with flashing red light and screaming siren. The toy was given by a French Quarter merchant.

Blue-eyed, freckled-faced Mickey from Monroe, La., has been receiving birthday presents for a week. But tomorrow is his big day.

"My birthday is not until Sunday," he said. "but people out of town already have sent me presents in the mail. I got some cards, too."

The birthday party will not be without ice cream and cake. Firemen have seen to that.

And there will be Mickey Mouse and cowboy movies from films loaned by a local firm.

Firemen learned of Mickey's illness through a telegram which simply said:

"My friend Mickey Cottrell polio center children's Charity Hospital your city where he has been critical since June 18 and many more months to follow has his fifth birthday this week-end.

"His weakness is firemen and their equipment. A visit from you or some of your firemen would be a boost for this young man. Why not make him a junior fire fighter? Any expense I shall gladly reimburse. I myself am a shut-in five months.

Defense Chief's Note Stings Okla. Senator

Answers 'Economy' Letter With Long List Of Sharp Retorts

ASKS DETAIL DATA ON PERSONAL PLANE TRIPS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) today curtly demanded that Secretary of Defense Johnson give him every detail of what it costs to fly officials in government planes — including President Truman.

The senator called for a list of everybody who has used the former presidential plane "Sacred Cow" when Mr. Truman wasn't aboard. He told Johnson he wants virtually every fact about each plane trip by Johnson at government expense and who went with him.

Thomas, stung by an "economy" letter from Johnson, flung the long list of requests at Johnson in a sharp retort. The secretary had proposed that members of Thomas' armed services subcommittee who plan to fly around the world this fall should use commercial airlines instead of military planes.

Thomas told Johnson that "if savings can be made through denial to congressional committees the use of military planes, a further saving can be made by requiring private airplane service for members of the executive branch of the government."

Then he demanded that Johnson furnish by Sept. 20 the full report on who's been using the planes, where they've been, why they went, and what it cost. Johnson's office said it would be done.

The senator asked specifically for a report on "the use of aircraft assigned to the President of the United States since January 1, 1949, including

Drunken Cattle Get Veterinarian's Care

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Have you ever seen a drunken cow?

Veterinarian C. L. Ullrich has treated about 25 of them in the past few days.

He blames it all on Thursday's windstorm. The wind knocked down bushels of green apples. The cows ate them. The apples fermented in their stomachs, forming alcohol.

It happens every year, says Ullrich, but never before has he treated so many bovine hangovers at once.

The cure: Plenty of warm blankets, sodium thiosulfate as an antidote and adrenalin and caffeine as stimulants.

ROBESON CONCERT WILL BE GUARDED

Anticipate Possible Clash Between Left-Wing Audience And Veterans

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today ordered all available state police to the Peekskill area tomorrow to guard against another riot between war veterans and supporters of Negro Singer Paul Robeson.

Robeson failed to appear at an open-air concert last Saturday when anti-Communist veterans clashed with the left-wing singer's audience. At least eight were injured, but Robeson was intercepted by friends before he reached the scene.

He immediately pledged a second effort—scheduled for 1 p.m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow afternoon about a mile from last week's riot scene.

The veterans said they plan to march 25,000 men past the concert location. Robeson supporters called for an audience of 20,000.

More than 380 local law enforcement officers are already mobilized.

Dewey called the concert a "pro-Communist meeting" but said freedom of speech and assembly must be guaranteed "however hateful the views of some of those who abuse them."

He ordered the superintendent John A. Gaffney of the state police to Peekskill to command the troopers.

Robeson's supporters arranged for buses to carry adherents from New York City.

The veterans said they would have groups from as far away as New England and Pennsylvania.

The recital is to be held at the Old Hollow Golf Course—no longer used—four miles north of here on Hillside avenue.

Hillside avenue is only 20 feet wide, the 15 veteran groups sponsoring the parade said they will be marching south along it from 11 a.m. "until we get tired."

The concert-goers normally would go north from Peekskill, indicating the possibility of a head-on meeting between the rival groups.

Veterans involved include a number of units of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and one unit each of the Catholic war veterans and the Jewish war veterans.

Dewey said that sending state police does not remove the responsibility of local officials to maintain order. Westchester County District Attorney George Fanelli and Sheriff Fred W. Ruscoe will be held "strictly accountable," he said.

Ruscoe requested the additional state troopers.

He spent today organizing his own force. Aside from the 100 state troop-

NEGRO TRIO IS GUILTY OF RAPE

Death Mandatory For 2; Jury Recommends Mercy For 16-Year-Old

TAVARES, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Three Negroes were convicted tonight of a rape that ignited race demonstrations by white mobs in this central Florida area last July.

An all-white circuit court jury found the three Negroes guilty of raping a 17-year-old white farmwife but recommended mercy for Charles Greenlee, 16, one of the three charged.

Death sentence is mandatory for the other two, Samuel Shepherd and Walter Irvin, both 22. Greenlee will be sentenced to life imprisonment or less by Judge Truman G. Futch.

A fourth suspect, Ernest Thomas, was killed by a posse in northwest Florida several weeks ago.

The rape brought demonstrations by white mobs against Negroes at Groveland and other nearby towns in this central Florida farming area. The Florida national guard had to be called to restore order, but not until several Negro houses had been fired. The Negro population of Groveland fled the town during the disorders.

Shepherd and Irvin told almost identical stories. They said they went to a movie at Groveland the night of the alleged attack, traveled to a Negro community near Orlando afterward and then returned to their homes.

Asked by Defense Attorney Alex Akerman, Jr., if they had anything to do with the alleged rape, both replied:

"I did not."

They said they did not know Greenlee until they saw him in jail follow-would not "be able to guarantee peace

SUB SURVIVORS ARE WELCOMED HOME

Parade To Launch Annual Rodeo Week

Estimated 500 Riders To Prance Through Downtown Streets; First Performance Monday At 8 P. M. At Gentry Arena

An estimated 500 riders will officially open the fourth annual Northeast Louisiana rodeo with a huge parade on downtown Twin City streets at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

An 8 o'clock performance Monday night at the Gentry Arena in West Monroe will climax the Labor Day show and really turn the Twin Cities over to the west.

Following the opening night show, which was swamped by ten thousand fans last year, performances will continue nightly for the rest of the week, to be climaxed with a 2:30 p. m. Sunday final.

Every step possible to turn Monroe and West Monroe over to the spirit of the west has been taken. Mayors C. C. Bell and George O. Breece have signed a proclamation naming the week of Sept. 5-11 "Rodeo Week."

Governor Earl K. Long, U. S. Senator Russell Long and former Senator William Feazel have announced plans to attend the Tuesday night

Jes' Ramblin'

Building is booming in downtown Monroe, and it appears as if contractors may be running a race on the erection of the First Presbyterian Church educational building and the St. Matthew's rectory. Both construction jobs are on the same block but face on three streets, Jackson, Grammont and Catalpa.

Morris Haas, Sr., called Jes' Ramblin' and asserted that in his opinion Central Grammar School building, when school resumes this fall, will be starting on its fiftieth year. He declared he based his assertion on the fact that he was himself a pupil in the early days of the building.

This set us forth on a trip of investigation. Scrutinizing the cornerstone on the northeast corner of the building we read as follows:

"Erected A. D. 1900. J. V. Calhoun, state superintendent public education. J. W. Gaddis, Vincennes, Ind., architect. Jacks and Lebo, Indianapolis,

400 REGISTERED FOR CONVENTION

First Session Of Federation Of Young Men's Clubs Slated Today

With more than 400 delegates and guests registered last night and many more than that number expected to register this morning, the 10th annual convention of the National Federation of Young Men's clubs opened here at the Virginia Hotel.

The registration table in the lobby of the hotel was kept busy from 2 p. m. until 8 o'clock to care for the early arrivals. Registration will be resumed this morning at 8 a. m. Principal events of the convention will be held today.

A cocktail party at the Progressive Men's Club at Selman Field officially opened the convention last night. The club is sponsoring the convention, which is expected to be the largest held here this year. Delegates from Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama will attend the meetings. An attractive entertainment program has been arranged for men and women visitors alike.

The delegates will attend mass at St. Matthew's Catholic Church in a body this morning, marching from the hotel to the church at 9 a. m. Father Simone Vitale, of Shreveport,

One-Legged Cabbie Slain During Quarrel

REDFIELD, S. D., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A one-legged taxicab driver was shot to death today in a quarrel over the wife of his best friend, a policeman.

The cabbie was Ray Sieben, 30.

The policeman is Maynard Schultz, 24, wounded by a fellow policeman attracted by the sound of firing. Schultz was under police guard at the Redfield hospital today.

No charges have been filed.

State's Attorney Stanton L. Clark said witnesses told the following story of the affair:

Mr. and Mrs. Schultz helped Mr. and Mrs. Sieben move their belongings into a new apartment last night. Considerable liquor was consumed in the process. Schultz took Mrs. Sieben for a brief walk. Returning, he found his wife had "passed out." Her clothing was disarranged. Schultz accused Sieben of taking liberties with her. The pair fought. Mrs. Sieben pulled them apart.

Schultz ran from the house, followed by the Siebenses. Schultz raced to the police station, four blocks away, and obtained his service revolver. Returning to the street he fired four shots. Sieben fell, mortally wounded. Mrs. Sieben suffered a flesh wound.

Schultz then turned on one of two patrolmen who had followed him out of the police station. One shot him in the shoulder.

Youth Buried Alive In Well Saved By Firemen, Welders

ELKHART, Ind., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A rugged 17-year-old youth who was virtually buried in a well for almost six hours left for his home in Chicago tonight after being released from Elkhart General Hospital.

The youth had been kept in the hospital for observation most of the day, although he claimed to go back to Chicago.

Firemen and welders worked frantically against sandslides in the 20-foot hole late last night and finally hoisted cocky young Gene Sanders out with only a few scratches and bruises.

Sand buried the youth just as he was about to climb out of a well he was helping Gust (Red) Peterson dig on the Peterson farm near Bristol, Ind. Peterson began scratching sand away to uncover the boy's face.

"When I woke up," young Sanders said, "My mouth and eyes were full of sand and I began spitting sand.

"As fast as Red would dig it away, I would slide back and cover my face again, and I'd wake up and see Red digging."

Fire Chief John Williams of Elkhart said he found Peterson bending his own body over the boy's face to keep the sand from smothering him. Firemen put an air mask on the boy. They even piped hot coffee to him as the hours dragged on.

Before the rescue work was over a special steel pipe was made to dimensions and lowered into the well to hold off more slides. After that firemen dipped out the sand—a bucketful at a time.

Police car radio communications were used to call in a steel expert and

KU KLUX PLANNING ANTI-RED CRUSADE

Burning Crosses Will Stand Against Commies, Support Vets At Peekskill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—By the edict of "His Majesty," Samuel II, and Imperial Wizard 4-006800 today, the nation is in for a week of cross-burning.

Anyhow, that's what one Bill Hendrix, who described himself as adjutant for the southern and northern Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said via "imperial" proclamation.

Hendrix declared the crosses would be burned in a crusade against communism and to give support to the veterans of Peekskill, N. Y., involved in a riot last Saturday.

The order of "His Majesty" and 4-006800 commanded Klansmen "to burn a cross on open fields or on vacant lots in protest agains tcommunism in this country."

2 Dead, Third Still Serious In In Early Labor Day Mishap Toll

Two persons were killed and one injured seriously in automobile accidents in Northeast Louisiana during the early part of the Labor Day holiday.

A Negro farmer and two mules were instantly killed shortly after 10:30 a. m. Saturday on the Mer Rouge-Collinston road when a truck and wagon collided, according to Sheriff Robert E. Harp of Bastrop. And from Winnsboro came report of the death of Clyde Atkins, 14-year-old Negro boy who died instantly from a broken neck sustained when he was hit by a car about one mile south of Wisner. Coroner Fred Robinson said the accident was unavoidable.

John Lambert, about 60, was in the Rogers Clinic in Winnsboro in serious condition following an accident in which he suffered severe bruises about the head. The accident occurred on a

MUNDT UNCOVERS LETTER BOOSTING 'INFLUENCE' SALE

Public Relations Agency Admits 'Pulling Rabbits From Hat'

PRINTED FORM STRESSED 'STRICTEST CONFIDENCE'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A letter of a public relations agency offering to help businessmen get "anything done in Washington" was turned over today to senate investigators of five percenters.

The agency "modestly admitted" having "pulled a few rabbits out of hats." It promised that all business would be handled in "strictest confidence."

Senator Mundt (R-S. D.), making the letter public, told reporters he had referred it to the senate investigators subcommittee staff. "It appears to fall within the scope of our investigation," he said.

The committee is looking into the activities among others, of agents who hire out to help businessmen seeking government contracts.

The committee's public hearings, now recessed for at least a month, were highlighted by testimony about favors which Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, did for some of his friends.

The printed, from letter which Mundt passed on to staff investigators was from the Earl C. Noyes Agency, "public relations counsellors," with offices in the Washington building here.

It noted the billions of dollars being spent by the government, called attention to a magazine article telling of the need for a "competent salesman" in dealing with the government, and wound up like this:

"This old, established agency has

19TH YEAR FOR N. J. C. TO OPEN

Registration To Be Initiated On September 15 At Institution

Northeast Junior College will begin her nineteenth session with registration starting on Thursday, September 15. Registration will continue through Saturday noon, September 17, with classwork getting under way on Monday, September 19. Due to the adding of the twelfth grade to the public school system, there will be a smaller freshman class than usual at all colleges of the state; and N. J. C. will be no exception. However, it is predicted that a good enrollment will materialize to include an extra large sophomore class, a number of veterans who will attend as beneficiaries of the G. I. Bill of Rights, a considerable number of adult, part-time students, and a larger than usual group of out-of-state students.

Students returning to the campus will note several changes which will facilitate the operation of classes and student activities. The entire R. O. T. C. department has been moved to its own building which it will occupy and use, exclusively. This building was donated to Northeast Junior College as a temporary structure by the federal government to relieve war-time crowding. However, it is structurally strong and attractive in appearance, such that steps are being taken to improve it for permanent use.

The staff of the Pow-Wow, all-American rated college newspaper, has for several years been forced to use borrowed quarters in the library because of war-time crowding. The 1949 staff, however, will enjoy using a place assigned exclusively to it in the former agriculture building.

Monroe Lad In Polio Hospital Made Honorary Fireman

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Red-headed Mickey Cottrell has a big day in store for him tomorrow.

He's a polio victim but tomorrow is his fifth birthday.

And the lad who has always wanted to be a fireman will see his dream come true.

New Orleans firemen will make him an honorary fireman and a real badge goes with the honor.

Mickey will also get a plastic miniature of a fire chief's car with flashing red light and screaming siren. The toy was given by a French Quarter merchant.

Blue-eyed, freckled-faced Mickey from Monroe, La., has been receiving birthday presents for a week. But tomorrow is his big day.

"My birthday is not until Sunday," he said. "but people out of town already have sent me presents in the mail. I got some cards, too."

The birthday party will not be without ice cream and cake. Firemen have seen to that.

And there will be Mickey Mouse and cowboy movies from films loaned by a local firm.

Firemen learned of Mickey's illness through a telegram which simply said:

"My friend Mickey Cottrell polio center children's Charity Hospital your city where he has been critical since June 18 and many more months to follow has his fifth birthday this week-end.

"His weakness is firemen and their equipment. A visit from you or some of your firemen would be a boost for this young man. Why not make him a junior fire fighter? Any expense I shall gladly reimburse. I myself am a shut-in five months.

Defense Chief's Note Stings Okla. Senator

Answers 'Economy' Letter With Long List Of Sharp Retorts

ASKS DETAIL DATA ON PERSONAL PLANE TRIPS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) today curtly demanded that Secretary of Defense Johnson give him every detail of what it costs to fly officials in government planes—including President Truman.

The senator called for a list of everybody who has used the former presidential plane "Sacred Cow" when Mr. Truman wasn't aboard. He told Johnson he wants virtually every fact about each plane trip by Johnson at government expense and who went with him.

Thomas, stung by an "economy" letter from Johnson, flung the long list of requests at Johnson in a sharp retort. The secretary had proposed that members of Thomas' armed services subcommittee who plan to fly around the world this fall should use commercial airlines instead of military planes.

Thomas told Johnson that "if savings can be made through denial to congressional committees the use of military planes, a further saving can be made by requiring private airplane service for members of the executive branch of the government."

Then he demanded that Johnson furnish by Sept. 20 the full report on who's been using the planes, where they've been, why they went, and what it cost. Johnson's office said it would be done.

The senator asked specifically for a report on "the use of aircraft assigned to the President of the United States since January 1, 1949, including

Drunken Cattle Get Veterinarian's Care

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Have you ever seen a drunken cow?

Veterinarian C. L. Ullrich has treated about 25 of them in the past few days.

He blames it all on Thursday's windstorm. The wind knocked down bushels of green apples. The cows ate them. The apples fermented in their stomachs, forming alcohol.

It happens every year, says Ullrich, but never before has he treated so many bovine hangovers at once.

The cure: Plenty of warm blankets, sodium thiosulfate as an antidote and adrenalin and caffeine as stimulants.

ROBESON CONCERT WILL BE GUARDED

Anticipate Possible Clash Between Left-Wing Audience And Veterans

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today ordered all available state police to the Peekskill area tomorrow to guard against another riot between war veterans and supporters of Negro Singer Paul Robeson.

Robeson failed to appear at an open-air concert last Saturday when anti-Communist veterans clashed with the left-wing singer's audience. At least eight were injured, but Robeson was intercepted by friends before he reached the scene.

He immediately pledged a second effort—scheduled for 1 p.m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow afternoon about a mile from last week's riot scene.

The veterans said they plan to march 25,000 men past the concert location. Robeson supporters called for an audience of 20,000.

More than 380 local law enforcement officers are already mobilized.

Dewey called the concert a "pro-Communist meeting" but said freedom of speech and assembly must be guaranteed "however hateful the views of some of those who abuse them."

He ordered the superintendent John A. Gaffney of the state police to Peekskill to command the troopers.

Robeson's supporters arranged for buses to carry adherents from New York City.

The veterans said they would have groups from as far away as New England and Pennsylvania.

The recital is to be held at the Old Hollow Golf Course—no longer used—four miles north of here on Hillside avenue.

Hillside avenue is only 20 feet wide, the 15 veteran groups sponsoring the parade said they will be marching south along it from 11 a.m. "until we get tired."

The concert-goers normally would go north from Peekskill, indicating the possibility of a head-on meeting between the rival groups.

Veterans involved include a number of units of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and one unit each of the Catholic war veterans and the Jewish war veterans.

Dewey said that sending state police does not remove the responsibility of local officials to maintain order. Westchester County District Attorney George Fanelli and Sheriff Fred W. Ruscoe will be held "strictly accountable," he said.

Ruscoe requested the additional state troopers.

He spent today organizing his own force. Aside from the 100 state troop-

MAN CONFESSES SLAYING WOMAN

Admits Drowning Mother Of Two; Body Found Under His Leadership

COLUMBIA, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A man who led a rescue party to save a drowning woman admitted today he killed her by holding her head under water, Police Chief Eugene McManus reported.

Jacob Buck, a 32-year-old industrial worker in this Susquehanna river town of eastern Pennsylvania, was held on an open charge in the death of Mrs. Martha McComsey, 26, mother of two children. She was estranged from her husband.

The drowning in the Susquehanna occurred Monday afternoon, but it was not until today that Buck was arrested.

McManus said that Buck's original story went this way:

He went to visit Mrs. McComsey on Monday. She disappeared from her home when he stepped outside to buy a loaf of bread. Immediately, he organized a rescue party and went to the river. Quickly, Buck found Mrs. McComsey's body.

George P. Taylor, deputy coroner, listed the death as suicide. Taylor said he was advised the woman had been depressed for several weeks.

But, McManus said there were "discrepancies" in Buck's story. The police chief said he was suspicious because Buck was able to find the body in a remote section.

And, he added, witnesses told him they saw Buck and the woman walking together toward the river Monday afternoon.

Confronted with this, the police chief said, Buck broke down and admitted that he and Mrs. McComsey walked to the river and that he grabbed her and shoved her head under the water until she drowned.

McManus said Buck gave no motive for the slaying.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

The Little Theatre membership drive, beginning September 7th, through the 21st, will usher in the 1949-50 season for theatregoers and for the players and workers who make up the organization. Last season's success has given new faith, hope and courage to the people actively interested in Little Theatre. As they go into their eighteenth year this fall, the committee members and their workers are expressing high enthusiasm for a good year in Little Theatre work.

Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn is chairman of the membership drive with Tom Hayes, Jr., and Dick Troy assisting her in handling the tickets. Through the courtesy of Jack Masur, a special booth will be maintained at the Palace on the street floor next to the elevators where members will greet old friends and new comers. Leigh Russell will be in charge of a special booth on the mezzine floor of the Frances Hotel during the two weeks drive. A long list of patron letters were in the mail this week and next week last year's membership will receive a special letter from Membership Chairman Emma Louise Biedenharn.

Mrs. Frances McHenry and Mrs. James A. Noe have been named chairman and co-chairman of the advertising committee for the five programs for this season's plays. Under the leadership of President Gilbert Faulk, the plans for the ensuing year in Little Theatre are taking shape this week and it is a bright forecast. The highlight from this week's reports are that Little Theatre will have a real honest to goodness home of its own. A place where they can rehearse, paint scenery, sew, and feel right at home with the many odd and interesting jobs involved in play production. Remembering the odds and the almost but not quite insurmountable barriers that Little Theatre members struggled against last year it is small wonder that there is such jubliance in the new season's campaign. Louis Turner is supervising the building of a stage and Selman Field will be the sight of Little Theatre's first real home since the beginning of World War II.

BEHIND THE SCENE—Jimmy Newburn who replaced our friend Charles Penn as head of advertising for the Palace (Charles has accepted a similar position with Selber Bros. in Shreveport), will arrange an attractive display of scenes from the five plays given by Little Theatre last year. Watch for these interesting pictures in the Palace window. . . . We said good-bye to Patsy Sager Pickett this week when she left with husband Milton Pickett who will enter Kansas State at Lawrence, Kansas for three more years of architectural study. . . . Word comes from China Lake, Calif. that Dixie and Dick Ware (she is the former Dixie Madden of Little Theatre) have a brand new heir, Richard Nathaniel, III. . . . Julius Cahn, board member and this year's treasure of Little Theatre happened to an unfortunate accident while returning from vacation. His car skidded on a wet, slippery road in Georgia and turned over. Although his red convertible was wrecked Julius escaped with only a black eye. . . . Another Little Theatre member off for the halls of high learning this year is Jimmy Hobbs. He was the fast talking reporter Endicott in "Front Page." Jimmy is working on his law degree down at L. S. U.

SPECIAL MENTION—Any theatre members old or new who are interested in actively patricipating in this year's membership drive are reqeusted to get in touch with members of the board of Little Theatre. This year's board is made up of W. Gilbert Faulk, R. M. Troy, Mrs. Blanche Oliver, Julius Cahn, Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn, Mrs. Carl McHenry, Mrs. James A. Noe, James Hornbeak, Frank Breece, Mrs. Lealis Hale, Miss Beth Rinehart, Mrs. Sue Sharman Williams, Thomas M. Hayes, Jr., Maurice Glazer, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitfield and Slade Brown.

German School Girls Drown In Water Basin

GUMMERSBACH, Germany, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Twelve school girls drowned today in a factory's water basin in Gimborn near here, German police said.

A public school class of 16 girls were bathing with their teacher in the pool, when suddenly some girls reached the slippery ground of the pool and slid into a deeper part, police said. The girls desperately grasped the hands of their classmates and pulled them down also.

The teacher saved four girls. The bodies of the remaining 12 were recovered after about 20 minutes. Police officials said bathing in the pool was prohibited. The teacher was held for questioning.

Belgian Industrialist Swims English Channel In 23 Hours

By Alvin J. Steinkopf

DOVER, England, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fernand du Moulin, 229-pound Belgian industrialist, breast-stroked across the English Chanenl tonight.

The 33-year-old man from Liege was the 28th swimmer to cross the treacherous 21-mile stretch of water since Capt. Matt Webb started the sport in 1875, and the second this year.

DuMolin, who scored training in the approved manner, plunged into the water at Cap Gris Nez after a champagne party and treaded water enroute to take additional refreshment from a French beer bottle.

He remained on British soil only five minutes after completing the swim, returning to France at once for a celebration.

On the fishing smack which accompanied him were two carrier pigeons to carry the word to Mrs. Moulin who remained in France because she gets seasick.

The Belgian was the second to swim the English Channel this year. Philip Mickman, 18-year-old Englishman, did it 10 days ago in 23 hours and 48 minutes, slowest time ever from the French side.

DeMoulin beat that time, but only a little. Different watches clocked him at 23 hours and one minute and 23 hours and three minutes. The official timer was on the smack and he did not come ashore.

DuMoulin splashed into the cold brine at 8:58 Friday night and crawled ashore near Shakespeare Cliff about 8 p. m. tonight.

Only 150 persons were gathered at the remote spot where he paddled to dry land between Dover and Folkestone. They cheered lustily.

His manager, Frank Tyssen, stepped ashore with him and assisted in removing a thick coat of grease from his neck and shoulders. Then he climbed into a rowboat and went out to the fishing smack waiting 200 yards offshore for the return trip to France.

DuMoulin took five hours to swim the last four miles against a strong tide and rough waters in a wind blowing 15 miles and hour. But he finished in a rush when the wind died down and the tide changed.

A correspondent who visited him when he was four miles out, found him obviously tired. He moved his legs very little, but kept going with a powerful breast stroke. He swam low in the water with only his helmeted and goggled head showing.

Once he treaded water and reached up for a beer boottle filled with a dark liquid. He waved for a photographer as he drank.

All the 11 persons aboard the smack, including two women, said, they had been swimming with him to keep him company but they were all worn out.

The first Belgian to complete the attempt, Du Moulin said he wanted to do it for the honor of his country. A veteran of the allied liberation of Belgium, his war-scarred left leg is half an inch shorter than the right one. For the entire grind he used the breast stroke which most channel swimmers spurn in favor of the speedier crawl or trudgeon.

The fresh southwest winds which swept up the channel today delayed Shirley May France's projected swim. The 17-year-old Somerest, Mass., school girl insists "any old day" would suit her, but her handlers said she must wait

Two Egyptian would-be channel swimmers plan to start from France at 2 a. m., British standard time tomorrow (9 p. m., EST, Saturday). They are Abdel Moneim Abdu, 25, ministry of education official, and Fahmy Attala, 40-year-old member of the propaganda staff. Whether conditions tonight were excellent after a blowy day with choppy seas.

Jose Cortinas of Cuba, who has made two unsuccessful tries this year, said in Calais today he had borrowed enough money to permit him to make a third attempt, perhaps Monday.

A clothing salesman, he said he had borrowed 120,000 francs ($350) from a Calais clothing merchant and this would enable him to pay his hotel bill and hire a boat.

MAN CONFESSES SLAYING WOMAN

Admits Drowning Mother Of Two; Body Found Under His Leadership

COLUMBIA, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A man who led a rescue party to save a drowning woman admitted today he killed her by holding her head under water, Police Chief Eugene McManus reported.

Jacob Buck, a 32-year-old industrial worker in this Susquehanna river town of eastern Pennsylvania, was held on an open charge in the death of Mrs. Martha McComsey, 26, mother of two children. She was estranged from her husband.

The drowning in the Susquehanna occurred Monday afternoon, but it was not until today that Buck was arrested.

McManus said that Buck's original story went this way:

He went to visit Mrs. McComsey on Monday. She disappeared from her home when he stepped outside to buy a loaf of bread. Immediately, he organized a rescue party and went to the river. Quickly, Buck found Mrs. McComsey's body.

George P. Taylor, deputy coroner, listed the death as suicide. Taylor said he was advised the woman had been depressed for several weeks.

But, McManus said there were "discrepancies" in Buck's story. The police chief said he was suspicious because Buck was able to find the body in a remote section.

And, he added, witnesses told him they saw Buck and the woman walking together toward the river Monday afternoon.

Confronted with this, the police chief said, Buck broke down and admitted that he and Mrs. McComsey walked to the river and that he grabbed her and shoved her head under the water until she drowned.

McManus said Buck gave no motive for the slaying.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

The Little Theatre membership drive, beginning September 7th, through the 21st, will usher in the 1949-50 season for theatregoers and for the players and workers who make up the organization. Last season's success has given new faith, hope and courage to the people actively interested in Little Theatre. As they go into their eighteenth year this fall, the committee members and their workers are expressing high enthusiasm for a good year in Little Theatre work.

Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn is chairman of the membership drive with Tom Hayes, Jr., and Dick Troy assisting her in handling the tickets. Through the courtesy of Jack Masur, a special booth will be maintained at the Palace on the street floor next to the elevators where members will greet old friends and new comers. Leigh Russell will be in charge of a special booth on the mezzine floor of the Frances Hotel during the two weeks drive. A long list of patron letters were in the mail this week and next week last year's membership will receive a special letter from Membership Chairman Emma Louise Biedenharn.

Mrs. Frances McHenry and Mrs. James A. Noe have been named chairman and co-chairman of the advertising committee for the five programs for this season's plays. Under the leadership of President Gilbert Faulk, the plans for the ensuing year in Little Theatre are taking shape this week and it is a bright forecast. The highlight from this week's reports are that Little Theatre will have a real honest to goodness home of its own. A place where they can rehearse, paint scenery, sew, and feel right at home with the many odd and interesting jobs involved in play production. Remembering the odds and the almost but not quite insurmountable barriers that Little Theatre members struggled against last year it is small wonder that there is such jubliance in the new season's campaign. Louis Turner is supervising the building of a stage and Selman Field will be the sight of Little Theatre's first real home since the beginning of World War II.

BEHIND THE SCENE—Jimmy Newburn who replaced our friend Charles Penn as head of advertising for the Palace (Charles has accepted a similar position with Selber Bros. in Shreveport), will arrange an attractive display of scenes from the five plays given by Little Theatre last year. Watch for these interesting pictures in the Palace window. . . . We said goodbye to Patsy Sager Pickett this week when she left with husband Milton Pickett who will enter Kansas State at Lawrence, Kansas for three more years of architectural study. . . . Word comes from China Lake, Calif. that Dixie and Dick Ware (she is the former Dixie Madden of Little Theatre) have a brand new heir, Richard Nathaniel, III. . . . Julius Cahn, board member and this year's treasure of Little Theatre happened to an unfortunate accident while returning from vacation. His car skidded on a wet, slippery road in Georgia and turned over. Although his red convertible was wrecked Julius escaped with only a black eye. . . . Another Little Theatre member off for the halls of high learning this year is Jimmy Hobbs. He was the fast talking reporter Endicott in "Front Page." Jimmy is working on his law degree down at L. S. U.

SPECIAL MENTION—Any theatre members old or new who are interested in actively patricipating in this year's membership drive are reqeusted to get in touch with members of the board of Little Theatre. This year's board is made up of W. Gilbert Faulk, R. M. Troy, Mrs. Blanche Oliver, Julius Cahn, Miss Emma Louise Biedenharn, Mrs. Carl McHenry, Mrs. James A. Noe, James Hornbeak, Frank Breece, Mrs. Lealis Hale, Miss Beth Rinehart, Mrs. Sue Sharman Williams, Thomas M. Hayes, Jr., Maurice Glazer, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitfield and Slade Brown.

German School Girls Drown In Water Basin

GUMMERSBACH, Germany, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Twelve school girls drowned today in a factory's water basin in Gimborn near here, German police said.

A public school class of 16 girls were bathing with their teacher in the pool, when suddenly some girls reached the slippery ground of the pool and slid into a deeper part, police said. The girls desperately grasped the hands of their classmates and pulled them down also.

The teacher saved four girls. The bodies of the remaining 12 were recovered after about 20 minutes. Police officials said bathing in the pool was prohibited. The teacher was held for questioning.

Belgian Industrialist Swims English Channel In 23 Hours

By Alvin J. Steinkopf

DOVER, England, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fernand du Moulin, 229-pound Belgian industrialist, breast-stroked across the English Chanenl tonight.

The 33-year-old man from Liege was the 28th swimmer to cross the treacherous 21-mile stretch of water since Capt. Matt Webb started the sport in 1875, and the second this year.

DuMolin, who scored training in the approved manner, plunged into the water at Cap Gris Nez after a champagne party and treaded water enroute to take additional refreshment from a French beer bottle.

He remained on British soil only five minutes after completing the swim, returning to France at once for a celebration.

On the fishing smack which accompanied him were two carrier pigeons to carry the word to Mrs. Moulin who remained in France because she gets seasick.

The Belgian was the second to swim the English Channel this year. Philip Mickman, 18-year-old Englishman, did it 10 days ago in 23 hours and 48 minutes, slowest time ever from the French side.

DeMoulin beat that time, but only a little. Different watches clocked him at 23 hours and one minute and 23 hours and three minutes. The official timer was on the smack and he did not come ashore.

DuMoulin splashed into the cold brine at 8:58 Friday night and crawled ashore near Shakespeare Cliff about 8 p. m. tonight.

Only 150 persons were gathered at the remote spot where he paddled to dry land between Dover and Folkestone. They cheered lustily.

His manager, Frank Tyssen, stepped ashore with him and assisted in removing a thick coat of grease from his neck and shoulders. Then he climbed into a rowboat and went out to the fishing smack waiting 200 yards offshore for the return trip to France.

DuMoulin took five hours to swim the last four miles against a strong tide and rough waters in a wind blowing 15 miles and hour. But he finished in a rush when the wind died down and the tide changed.

Labor Has Responsibilities

Labor Day is the moment of the year when our politicians remind the workingman that he is the backbone of the nation and recite for him the long list of rights and privileges to which he is heir.

We prefer to talk about the opposite face of those rights and privileges—the worker's duties and responsibilities.

There is no question that organized labor has achieved a fair measure of maturity since the first wild days of its new-found strength in the depression 1930's. But its leaders still shout too much of rights and not enough of duties; and its rank and file is still too insistent in exercising its privileges and insufficiently concerned about its responsibilities.

Labor wants a rising floor under wages, but no ceiling. It wants full protection in its right to strike but acts as if it should be exempt from penalty when people are hurt or property is damaged while a strike is on. It wants a freedom for itself that it is unwilling to accord to others.

Admittedly, labor is not alone in this stress on getting instead of giving. The farmers too often have exhibited a similar attitude. And for a long span in U. S. history, businessmen behaved in the same fashion. Government and the greater strength of rival groups curbed their more irresponsible uses of freedom, but many businessmen still resent any checkrein on their activities.

This one-sided, immature approach cannot be condoned in any group. But today it just happens to be labor's turn to be lectured.

So we call upon workingmen to give more attention to the two-sidedness of life, to measure their role in society fairly in relation to other groups, to recognize that government as a referee must balance labor's needs and rights against the welfare of farmers and businessmen and the whole public.

Too many labor leaders have fallen into the habit of identifying themselves with all humanity and thus labeling criticism as an attack upon "people" in the large.

They would do better to urge upon their men a responsibility to act under the same laws that govern others; to accept a role in society equal to their numbers, their ability and their character, rather than to try to be the whole show; and to develop a new pride of workmanship to replace that which vanished when the minutely subdivided tasks of mass production pushed the proud craftsman off the scene.

Workingmen with this sort of attitude would greatly enhance labor's stature and enrich their contribution to American living.

Fair Days This Fall

Regardless of what the weather man says or what Jupiter Pluvius decides, there will be fair days in Louisiana for six or eight weeks, beginning early this month. The season of fairs and festivals will get under way and will continue through October. The Shrimp Festival, September 16-18; the Sugar Cane Festival, September 30-October 2; the Yambille, October 19-20; the International Rice Festival, October 26-27; the South Louisiana Fair, October 6-9, and the Louisiana State Fair, October 22-31, will be among the big events during the fair days, but there will be a multitude of other expositions rivaling them in interest, including our own fair in west Monroe opening October 3.

There will be many regional and parish fairs, some of them newly established, other events of many years' standing. The purpose of them all is to provide recreation and education and to promote better farming and better business. That's a large order, it might seem, for even the biggest fair. But every fair makes its contribution. In the past they have made a great contribution to the development of business and agriculture and undoubtedly they will continue to do so.

In ancient times, trade routes were established and cities sprang up around the site of great fairs. Throughout the ages, the fair has served as a show window for the demonstration of new products, for displaying the results of better methods of agriculture and manufacture. Fairs have furnished recognition of those who have done well and a good example for those who haven't done so well.

The Ouachita parish fair will give you a panoramic picture of agriculture, business and industry in our section. There may be more to all three than you suppose.

Bringing Back The Pines

It'll be tree-planting time in Louisiana in about two months. A record crop of seedlings will be available at the nurseries in the state, the largest of which are operated by the state forestry department. It is expected that 30,000,000 or more seedlings will be available, according to unofficial estimates. But if you want to set out some trees, you'd better get your order for seedlings in now, because the demand is expected to be even larger than the large supply. Get in touch with your parish agricultural agent or your S. C. S. representative. You can arrange a separate order, if you need enough trees, or you might want to go in with your neighbors. We might add that most pine tree nurseries prefer to make their seedlings available for reforestation rather than shade and ornamental plantings.

Because so few of us had ever stopped to realize how fast a tree grows if it is properly planted and protected, most of us have been accustomed in the past to think of our pine forests as a natural resource that would inevitably be used up. It would be too bad when they were all gone, we thought, but nothing could be done about it in anything short of a century or so.

There never was a more mistaken idea. Fortunately, we all now know better. Forests can be replaced, not through 50 to 100 years of slow growth and natural reseeding, but in 10 to 20 years of planting, care and scientific thinning and cutting. A forest tract can be cut regularly each five years or so, yielding a steady crop of pulpwood and sawlogs. The realization has come late, but it is another case of better late than never.

The pines can be brought back, within the lifetimes of most of us.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE LIBERAL DILEMMA

There used to be a word, "reformer," for people who wanted change but not too great a change and who, while they opposed the direction in which their world was moving, were uncertain what they preferred. Reformers were usually good people, sweet and gentle. In politics, they were sometimes a nuisance because, let loose in that lush field, they often became as bad or worse than those whom they sought to correct.

In the old new deal, there were as many reformers as there were leftists, and usually they were taken in by the leftists, who used them as fronts for their viciousness The reformers always claimed that they were only liberals who were trying to save the free enterprise system, but in their own way according to blueprints devised by the leftists.

Many of them now belong to a political pressure group called the A. D. A., which translated means "Americans for Democratic Action." They have captured the state of Connecticut by electing Chester Bowles to the governship on the Democratic ticket and they expect in 1950 to capture the states of New York and California where they hope to run Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. and James Roosevelt, respectively for governor, thus establishing a dynasty.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt feels that it is unfair to identify the A. D. A. with the Communists and in this I wholly agree. It is unfair to the Communists. For whereas the followers of Marx and Lenin and Stalin have a philosophy of life, the A. D. A. only desires to remain in public life. Mrs. Roosevelt's comment is:

". . . One might attack those ideas but to leave the impression that they are communistic, or very much to the left, seems to me unfair. Many times they are simply different ways of achieving the very same objectives."

What same objectives? For instance, those who believe that the United States is a republic, a federation of sovereign states in which the federal government possesses only such limited rights as the constitution permits it to exercise, all other rights being reserved by the states or the people thereof, and that each individual possses inalienable rights which transcend the authority of government—certainly those who hold to that concept do not seek the same objectives as any kind of socialist.

Perhaps Mrs. Roosevelt feels that a philosophy of life is not very important, but that one must go along, day by day, doing whatever good he can, no matter how wrong it turns out in the end. That was Carrie Nation's notion when she used her hatchet to destroy beer saloons, and nobody can say that Carrie Nation was a bad woman, but her agitation did this country no good and ultimately brought us the reign of Al Capone.

Mrs. Roosevelt makes a further point that is quite startling. She says:

"For instance, the majority of business people at the time of the depression in 1933 wanted to save our capitalist system and bring us back to a state of prosperity where the system could be preserved. Many people may not approve of the methods used in the new deal, but other methods had not been successful up to that time.

"The objective of both groups, however, was to achieve the same ends. You can criticize the way it was done, you can wish it had been possible to do it another way, but the fact remains that it did put our capitalistic system back on its feet."

But the fact is that the American economic system was altered by the new deal into what the economists call a mixed economy, which is now being extended into the welfare state that is a form of fabian socialism. All the statistics available in 1949 prove conclusively that the 1929 depression had reached its lowest point in June, 1932, and that the upturn had taken place prior to the election of that year, to be arrested by the election and the tinkering with the flow of currency during the economically unnecessary but politically expedient bank holiday. It is, indeed, a novel concept that Rexford Guy Tugwell, Henry Wallace and Harry Hopkins, to say nothing of the underground disclosed in the Alger Hiss case, were seeking to preserve capitalism.

What Others Say:

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

PARTY POLITICS

Editorial opinion appears to be rather equally divided on whether the recent ouster of States' Rights Democratic—or Dixiecratic—delegates from the National Democratic Committee was a wise practical political move. Opinion on the future of the States' Righters is variously divided. But, apparently, the plurality opinion is that they will try to perfect their own party organization, deciding later how best to use it to try to influence major party policies.

Dallas (Texas) Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "In barring those southerners who bolted the party ticket last year, the Democratic National Committee is within its rights. . . But, from a practical point of view, the party may be cutting off its nose to spite its face. The time may come soon when it will need urgently the support it now spurns. The committee would have done better to follow the example of the Republicans in welcoming back—even wooing back—to the G. O. P. fold those who bolted to follow Teddy Roosevelt's Bull Moose banner in 1912."

St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press (Ind.): "The Democrats have acted on a decision that the permanent alienation of this wing of the party is good politics. . . This decision must take into account the possibility that the two-party system will arise in the South. . . . But if by cutting loose from the Dixiecrats, a few states in the South can be traded for the major part of the Middle West, the Democrats will have been the gainers and the Republicans the losers by the new situation."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Rep.): "'They cheered' when States' Rights members of the Democratic National Committee were separated from their jobs. . . . Cheering is fun and purges are becoming traditional, but time may rob each of its zest. Affronted Southern Democrats—and the number includes more than those of penalized Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina—can and probably will strengthen opposition to the Truman program and lay plans for the next campaign."

Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot (Ind.-Dem.): "In 1896 the national committee invoked a disciplinary rule to oust two committee members who had refused to support Bryan. . . and Free Silver. . . Time soon healed the breach between the Silver and Gold Democrats It will probably do the same thing, before long, for the breach between the National and States' Rights Democrats. That is not to say that the Democratic party will soon—or ever—rid itself of its internal Right-Left, North-South highchurch-lowchurch divisions."

Wilmington (Del.) Morning News (Ind.): "If the breach is to be healed, the Dixiecrats will have to repent—as President Truman made clear in his speech to the committee. . . He invited the wanderers back but only after he had declared the Democratic Party to be a 'national party and not a sectional party any more.' He said he wanted them on the understanding that they will support the platform. . . The platform, or course, has a civil rights plank in it."

Tuscaloosa, (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Some sort of reasonable viewpoint must be developed by the administration if it expects the South in general to pay even articulate lip-service to the National Democratic Party. Of course, the proper place for fighting out these problems is in the U. S. Congres. The South has shown there that it has sufficient strength and sufficient support from the rest of the nation to keep some balance in the delicate problems with which the administration seeks to blunder."

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "Before 1952. . . one side or the other, or both, may have altered the course of events. Politicians are naturlal compromisers. But the prospects in Congres are not pleasant o contemplate. . . . In a congress which is already cross-cut by intra-party divisions and is notorioously indifferent to Mr. Truman's leadership, or that of anyone else, the results are almost sure to lead to more bickering and bitterness, less legislative accomplishment. . . ."

Columbia, (S. C) Record (Ind.-Dem.): "The States' Righters will find themselves in a bargaining position, if they have the courage to seize it. The States' Righters . . . can hold themselves aloof from any party in 1950 and then in 1952 notify both parties that they will be prepared to transfer their allegiance, votes and organization bodily to the national party which in that year comes nearest to writing a platform and selecting a candidate conforming to what used to be called the Southern Democratic ideas."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—On farms almost everywhere when I was a boy, the husband and wife imitated other husbands and wives in adding a wagon wheel to the flower garden whenever a wornout wagon wheel was available. The wheels of farm wagons were sturdily constructed of wood, with iron (later steel) of the best quality for the tires and axle box. The axle box was the bushing, boxing or housing into which the axle fitted, and in which it remained horizontal while the wheel and its boxing revolved around it.

The large hub, usually made round, of several heavy pieces of seasoned oak or hickory, was bored out to receive the steel boxing, and from it radiated the spokes, usually of resilient second-growth hickory or oak.

The outer ends of the spokes fitted into slots in heavy rim sections of the same kind of wood, and these rims were called felloes. Over the circular rim fitted the metal tire, which was fitted by a process of welding, heaving and ho-ing called tire-setting. In dry weather the tires often fell off and had to be re-fitted. You poured many buckets of water over the wagonwheels on hot, dry days, or let the wagon stand in a mud-puddle all night, before taking a load of watermelons to town.

When a wagon finally wore out or was completely wrecked in a runaway, at least one wheel was placed flat in the flower garden, as a memento of a good old wagon. The axle box was removed to make room for a central flower or plant, and to be sold as junk when the junk man came around in the fall.

Some pretty tall flower, like a hollyhock, was planted in the center of the hub, smaller blooming plants like petunias along the spokes, and a border flower around the rim. Neighbors vied in producing the prettiest wagon wheel flower pattern.

Residents of Lebanon, Pa., long have been puzzled to know how a steel or iron wagon wheel tire got to its present position, encircling a huge horse chestnut tree on the farm home of Mrs. Morris Meyer. The tire is still much larger than the tree trunk, but it's there to stay.

Simple enough to a Kansas farm boy. Somebody who had a flower garden there planted a horse chestnut in the center of the hub, instead of a hollyhock. As the years passed, the wooden wheel rotted away, but the tire remained, and still remains.

Heart-to-heart: Many readers write me, asking me to estimate the value of old books they have found in the attic, or to refer them to a dealer. I do not answer such letter when they do not contain addressed and stamped envelope, of course. In general, I can tell all such inquirers that I know little about the value of old books, except books on piracy and treasure, and I know of no dealer in New York whom I could conscientiously recommend.

F. G. Replogle, Rossville, Ind., writes that he remembers when the windstacker replaced the endless-chain conveyor on threshing machines, also when the self-feeder put three pitchfork men out of jobs on every threshing crew.

I receive many communications in envelopes that excite my interest. Here is one from E. H. Cheever, Little Rock, Ark., which is addressed to me in care of the Texarkana Gazette, with three one-cent stamps. On the stamped face appear two postmarks: Ashdown, Ark., July 3, and Michigan City, Ind., July 12. Also a heavy cancellation with the figure one. How did that letter, addressed to Texarkana, get to Michigan City and to New York without any postmark on back, but with two on front?

In Hollywood With

JIMMIE FIDLER

By Jane Wyatt

(Pinch-hitting for Jimmie Fidler, who is on vacation)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 3.—Hollywood is a wonderful place—a synonym for success, fame, adulation and glamour.

It is populated by people who have "arrived" and by people who are waiting for their "big break." Some of the latter group have charted a course intended to lead them to the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, but an even greater number are just sitting and waiting. They seem to believe that good looks and wishful thinking equip them admirably for stardom tomorrow.

I wish I could share their opinion. Unfortunately I can't, and my reasons are drawn from personal experience and observation. I'd like to jot down a few of them.

A few months ago I played opposite Gary Cooper in "Task Force." I had found a quiet place and was going over my script. A short distance away a small group of young hopefuls were discussing their Hollywood futures. I couldn't help but eavesdrop Of the six or eight men, only one admitted inexperience, and lack of confidence in his ability to "carry" the heavy burdens of stardom. Each of the others expressed his certain belief that all he needed was a break.

The lone doubter argued that he played extra parts to earn a living and to continue his studies—voice, technique, singing, dancing. He said he was investing in tools that would help him to stay put when his big chance came. Some day I expect to see that young man's name in lights.

Some years ago, new in Hollywood, I possessed a long term contract at a good salary. I was cast opposite Ronald Coleman in "Lost Horizon." The role had been sought after by every young actress in town, but I got it. Not until the preview did I realize that I was not ready.

The picture was a great success, but I didn't feel that I had done what could and should have been done with my role. After weeks of indecision, I requested a release from my studio contract and returned to the stage for further experience. I feel it was the wisest professional decision I ever made, and if I had it to do over, I'd do the same thing again.

Summer stock and New York engagements made up my schedule for a few years. A good many failures were included, plays that opened and closed so fast it was difficult to analyze the reasons for the failures. But each appearance I learned a little. There are a good many superb actors who aren't stars from whom the serious workman can learn by association. I've been luck that way.

In Hollywood we are apt to assume that stardom just happened to the big names on top. Let's choose a few and see how it really came about.

Betty Grable studied for years, sang with a band, and wound up with a contract. But the contract didn't last and she went to New York where she made a big hit in a secondary role in musical comedy. Stardom in Hollywood followed, but the elapsed time was roughly ten years. She got hers the hard way.

Cary Grant served a long apprenticeship before he was asked to become a member of the film colony. And he didn't really become a star till several years after that. The interval between his decision at the age of 15, to become an actor, and the time Hollywood producers scrambled to get his signature on the dotted line added up to another 15 years.

Spencer Tracy, James Cagney, Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, Ginger Rogers are just a few of the long-time stars who came up from the ranks through tireless work and study.

Betty Hutton, Robert Ryan, Judy Garland, June Haver and Yvonne deCarlo didn't get where they are because they looked good and thought it would be nice to be in pictures. Years of effort and plenty of disappointment preceded their success.

Even our young stars are usually veterans of the business. At the moment I'm appearing with Ann Blythe and Farley Granger in a Samuel Goldwyn film, "Beloved Over All." I was startled to learn they had been in the theater almost as long as I had.

A few days ago Ann celebrated her twenty-first birthday on the set. After blowing out the candles and cutting the cake she confided to a few of us she really felt much older. It seems she has been an actress since she was four!!

OUR CHILDREN

GOOD WORKING PARTNERS

Education is a partnership with teachers and parents as the partners. Partners are good friends or they are not good partners. This means perfect confidence between the teacher and the parent. When that exists, the children prosper. When it does not, the children do not get the full benefit of their school association.

When, for example, a mother enters a child in school, she ought to tell the teacher about any odd characteristic the child may have and which will make it difficult for the two to get along unless the teacher knows and takes heed The teacher should be told about the child who has irritable bladded condition, the one who is hard of hearing, or short of vision, or the one who is afraid to be alone. Such things have meaning to the teacher concerned and modify her ways with the children.

When the teacher knows that a child is hard of hearing, she places him close to her desk and selects a child who will help him by making sure he has understood what the teacher said and what she wants him to do. When a hard-of-hearing child is not helped in such ways, he becomes a problem to himself and everybody else when he might have gone along happily.

The child who does not see well must wear his glasses, must be seated where he can see the maps and blackboards easily and where the light suits him best. A child straining to see soon becomes fatigued, loses interest in anything but his own discomfort. That means he will be a backward child before long.

The child with any physical disability should not be left to his troubles without the teacher's understanding help. If the mother explains the condition, the teacher is prepared to handle the situation intelligently and to the child's best interest. When she doesnt' know, she cannot be expected to help him as he should be helped.

Mothers sometimes make the mistake of trying to hide a child's disabilities. That is a great mistake. They will disclose themselves fully in time but the time lost meanwhile is at the cost of the peace, the growth, the happiness of the child. Tell the teacher the truth. Give the child's correct age, name, and condition of health. Take the teacher into your confidence and let her be what she longs to be, the child's helpful understanding leader and friend.

Starting while baby is young is the secret of developing the correct routines by which you can raise your child successfully. Dr. Patri's leaflet, P-14, "Helpful Habits," offers more advice.

Undersecretary Kimball Ribbed Out Of Game After Call

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(NEA)—Navy Undersecretary Dan Kimball was playing golf on the 13th hole—farthest away from the clubhouse—when he was called to the phone by his office. The message was that his own assistant, Cedric Worth, had been revealed as the author of the unsigned letter than started the B-36 investigation. Kimball walked back on the course and relayed the news to his partners in a threesome—Army Secretary Gordon Gray and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg. Up to the time he got the phone call, Secretary Kimball had been shooting good golf, with a 46 on the first nine and only one over par to the 13th hole. But when he came back to finish the round, his partners started ribbing him so mercilessly about Worth, he says, that it upset his game. So he threw in his towel and walked back to the showers. Secretary Gray and General Vandenberg finished.

'General Vaughan There?'

A government employe who had been away on vacation and had not been following the news came back to town and inserted a want-ad in one of the Washington papers, offering to sell his deep-freeze unit. The paper had barely hit the streets when the practical jokers started calling. By the end of the day his frantic wife had 300 phone calls, and more than 200 of them by actual count, opened with statements like, "Let me talk to General Vaughan, please," or "Is General Vaughan there" Nobody wanted to buy. So the man cancelled his ad after the first insertion and decided to keep his deep freeze for a couple of months, till people forgot.

International Soldier

American observers at Fontainebleu, France, report that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, now chairman of the Brussels treaty countries' commander in chiefs' committee, has stopped flying the British flag on his staff car. The reason given is that "Monty" now considers himself an international soldier—not a Britisher. He is reported to feel that all the other western European Union commanders should follow the same course.

Europe To Europeans

While some members of congress think that an American general should be made commander in chief in Europe so as to keep control over North Atlantic pact military assistance, U. S. defense officials are shying away from it. They reason that Europe must organize for its own defense. If an American is placed in command, then it is felt the Europeans would want to dump the whole problem on the United States, for full responsibility, and do nothing themselves.

Problems In A Nutshell

American-British financial negotiations in Washington boil down to this: The British want the United States to reduce tariffs, simplify customs regulations, buy more British goods, increase the raw materials stockpile program, cut down synthetic rubber production so as to buy more raw rubber, and provide more capital for investment in the United Kingdom. In return, the U. S. wants the U. K. to cut down imports, increase production of exports, reduce costs of production, work harder, and if necessary reduce their standard of living so as to earn more dollars and cut down demands for greater financial assistance.

CIO Cutting Ice

Anyone who thinks that the CIO political action committee cuts no ice in Democratic party affairs should have attended the recent Democratic national committee meeting in Washington. District of Columbia's national committeemen are Melvin D. Hildreth and Mrs. J. Borden (Daisy) Harriman. Mrs. Harriman was out of the city and could not attend. Her proxy was held by Ted Dudley, smart young C. I. O. economist and congressional liaison man for PAC's Jack Kroll.

No Part In China Aid

If congress passes a military assistance program with a big hunk of money specifically earmarked for China, look for Secretary of State Dean Acheson to resign. Further military aid for China was decisively defeated in the house. A few senators have been advocating 200, 100 or 75 million dollars more for China, taking it away from aid now earmarked for Europe. State department has indicated clearly it thinks buying further arms for Nationalist China would be wasted money. The claim is made that U. S. has already spent just as much as the Nationalist government in fighting communism, and got nothing for it. If more aid is ordered by congress another secretary of state will probably have to be appointed to administer the program.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Psalmist in the familiar and beautiful Twenty-third Psalm rejoices that the Lord, who is his Shepherd, leads him in the paths of righteousness.

This theme of righteousness runs everywhere through the Psalms, which express the dominant emphasis throughout the books of the prophets, and the whole religion of the Hebrews. It was this superior morality of Judaism that led many Gentiles, proselytes, to become converts to Judaism. Many of these proselytes, as we can see in the pages of the New Testament, became Christian disciples.

The psalmists and prophets put the first emphasis where it rightly belonged—on righteousness in personal life. The godly man was not the professor of a certain faith, but the man who was upright in heart. His sacririces, burnt offerings, and acts of religion meant nothing unless they were the expressions of a heart sincere and true, subject to God's guidance and God's will.

The religion of Israel was a mass religion, always emphasizing God's choice and call to the nation as a whole, but this emphasis did not in any way minimize the importance of the individual, and the soundness of his character and conduct.

This, it seems to me, has a distinct bearing upon our modern democracy, which in a way is a mass affair. We think of democracy often, perhaps too often, as consisting in popular suffrage and the rule of the majority. But the vote of a majority never in itself made anything right. The true essence of democracy is self-rule. It is rule from within. When the rule of kings is discarded, it is the individual who becomes king, and if he abdicates, democracy may become a very sorry affair. Is not our greatest weakness today at this very point—the fact that so many citizens fail to exercise their prerogatives and privileges, to say nothing of their plain duty?

The Old Testament Scriptures dealt with this to the point of extreme severity. It was not only in the Psalms and Prophecies, but the historic books and early history made plain one's place and duty as a member of society. There was the terrible example of Achan, who, in an hour of victory, stole a Babylonian garment, and bars of silver for himself. He met a tragic fate, but profieteering Achans in their country's hour of danger have not been lacking in later history, nor in our own time.

National righteousness, to the Psalmist, meant justice. Conceptions of right and judgment were at the heart of all relationships. As the individual was responsible for his personal integrity, those who ruled, that is society, were responsible for rights, liberties, and fair dealing.

It is the sense of right and judgment that we most need today. It is in the moral foundations that modern societies are weakest. Too many issues are settled, not upon the basis of what is right and fair, but upon the power of individuals, or groups, to enforce their will. But no question is ever settled until it is settled right.

Labor Has Responsibilities

Labor Day is the moment of the year when our politicians remind the workingman that he is the backbone of the nation and recite for him the long list of rights and privileges to which he is heir.

We prefer to talk about the opposite face of those rights and privileges—the worker's duties and responsibilities.

There is no question that organized labor has achieved a fair measure of maturity since the first wild days of its new-found strength in the depression 1930's. But its leaders still shout too much of rights and not enough of duties; and its rank and file is still too insistent in exercising its privileges and insufficiently concerned about its responsibilities.

Labor wants a rising floor under wages, but no ceiling. It wants full protection in its right to strike but acts as if it should be exempt from penalty when people are hurt or property is damaged while a strike is on. It wants a freedom for itself that it is unwilling to accord to others.

Admittedly, labor is not alone in this stress on getting instead of giving. The farmers too often have exhibited a similar attitude. And for a long span in U. S. history, businessmen behaved in the same fashion. Government and the greater strength of rival groups curbed their more irresponsible uses of freedom, but many businessmen still resent any checkrein on their activities.

This one-sided, immature approach cannot be condoned in any group. But today it just happens to be labor's turn to be lectured.

So we call upon workingmen to give more attention to the two-sidedness of life, to measure their role in society fairly in relation to other groups, to recognize that government as a referee must balance labor's needs and rights against the welfare of farmers and businessmen and the whole public.

Too many labor leaders have fallen into the habit of identifying themselves with all humanity and thus labeling criticism as an attack upon "people" in the large.

They would do better to urge upon their men a responsibility to act under the same laws that govern others; to accept a role in society equal to their numbers, their ability and their character, rather than to try to be the whole show; and to develop a new pride of workmanship to replace that which vanished when the minutely subdivided tasks of mass production pushed the proud craftsman off the scene.

Workingmen with this sort of attitude would greatly enhance labor's stature and enrich their contribution to American living.

Fair Days This Fall

Regardless of what the weather man says or what Jupiter Pluvius decides, there will be fair days in Louisiana for six or eight weeks, beginning early this month. The season of fairs and festivals will get under way and will continue through October. The Shrimp Festival, September 16-18; the Sugar Cane Festival, September 30-October 2; the Yambille, October 19-20; the International Rice Festival, October 26-27; the South Louisiana Fair, October 6-9, and the Louisiana State Fair, October 22-31, will be among the big events during the fair days, but there will be a multitude of other expositions rivaling them in interest, including our own fair in west Monroe opening October 3.

There will be many regional and parish fairs, some of them newly established, other events of many years' standing. The purpose of them all is to provide recreation and education and to promote better farming and better business. That's a large order, it might seem, for even the biggest fair. But every fair makes its contribution. In the past they have made a great contribution to the development of business and agriculture and undoubtedly they will continue to do so.

In ancient times, trade routes were established and cities sprang up around the site of great fairs. Throughout the ages, the fair has served as a show window for the demonstration of new products, for displaying the results of better methods of agriculture and manufacture. Fairs have furnished recognition of those who have done well and a good example for those who haven't done so well.

The Ouachita parish fair will give you a panoramic picture of agriculture, business and industry in our section. There may be more to all three than you suppose.

Bringing Back The Pines

It'll be tree-planting time in Louisiana in about two months. A record crop of seedlings will be available at the nurseries in the state, the largest of which are operated by the state forestry department. It is expected that 30,000,000 or more seedlings will be available, according to unofficial estimates. But if you want to set out some trees, you'd better get your order for seedlings in now, because the demand is expected to be even larger than the large supply. Get in touch with your parish agricultural agent or your S. C. S. representative. You can arrange a separate order, if you need enough trees, or you might want to go in with your neighbors. We might add that most pine tree nurseries prefer to make their seedlings available for reforestation rather than shade and ornamental plantings.

Because so few of us had ever stopped to realize how fast a tree grows if it is properly planted and protected, most of us have been accustomed in the past to think of our pine forests as a natural resource that would inevitably be used up. It would be too bad when they were all gone, we thought, but nothing could be done about it in anything short of a century or so.

There never was a more mistaken idea. Fortunately, we all now know better. Forests can be replaced, not through 50 to 100 years of slow growth and natural reseeding, but in 10 to 20 years of planting, care and scientific thinning and cutting. A forest tract can be cut regularly each five years or so, yielding a steady crop of pulpwood and sawlogs. The realization has come late, but it is another case of better late than never.

The pines can be brought back, within the lifetimes of most of us.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE LIBERAL DILEMMA

There used to be a word, "reformer," for people who wanted change but not too great a change and who, while they opposed the direction in which their world was moving, were uncertain what they preferred. Reformers were usually good people, sweet and gentle. In politics, they were sometimes a nuisance because, let loose in that lush field, they often became as bad or worse than those whom they sought to correct.

In the old new deal, there were as many reformers as there were leftists, and usually they were taken in by the leftists, who used them as fronts for their viciousness The reformers always claimed that they were only liberals who were trying to save the free enterprise system, but in their own way according to blueprints devised by the leftists.

Many of them now belong to a political pressure group called the A. D. A., which translated means "Americans for Democratic Action." They have captured the state of Connecticut by electing Chester Bowles to the governship on the Democratic ticket and they expect in 1950 to capture the states of New York and California where they hope to run Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. and James Roosevelt, respectively for governor, thus establishing a dynasty.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt feels that it is unfair to identify the A. D. A. with the Communists and in this I wholly agree. It is unfair to the Communists. For whereas the followers of Marx and Lenin and Stalin have a philosophy of life, the A. D. A. only desires to remain in public life. Mrs. Roosevelt's comment is:

". . . One might attack those ideas but to leave the impression that they are communistic, or very much to the left, seems to me unfair. Many times they are simply different ways of achieving the very same objectives."

What same objectives? For instance, those who believe that the United States is a republic, a federation of sovereign states in which the federal government possesses only such limited rights as the constitution permits it to exercise, all other rights being reserved by the states or the people thereof, and that each individual posssses inalienable rights which transcend the authority of government—certainly those who hold to that concept do not seek the same objectives as any kind of socialist.

Perhaps Mrs. Roosevelt feels that a philosophy of life is not very important, but that one must go along, day by day, doing whatever good he can, no matter how wrong it turns out in the end. That was Carrie Nation's notion when she used her hatchet to destroy beer saloons, and nobody can say that Carrie Nation was a bad woman, but her agitation did this country no good and ultimately brought us the reign of Al Capone.

Mrs. Roosevelt makes a further point that is quite startling. She says:

"For instance, the majority of business people at the time of the depression in 1933 wanted to save our capitalist system and bring us back to a state of prosperity where the system could be preserved. Many people may not approve of the methods used in the new deal, but other methods had not been successful up to that time.

"The objective of both groups, however, was to achieve the same ends. You can criticize the way it was done, you can wish it had been possible to do it another way, but the fact remains that it did put our capitalistic system back on its feet."

But the fact is that the American economic system was altered by the new deal into what the economists call a mixed economy, which is now being extended into the welfare state that is a form of fabian socialism. All the statistics available in 1949 prove conclusively that the 1929 depression had reached its lowest point in June, 1932, and that the upturn had taken place prior to the election of that year, to be arrested by the election and the tinkering with the flow of currency during the economically unnecessary but politically expedient bank holiday. It is, indeed, a novel concept that Rexford Guy Tugwell, Henry Wallace and Harry Hopkins, to say nothing of the underground disclosed in the Alger Hiss case, were seeking to preserve capitalism.

What Others Say:

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

PARTY POLITICS

Editorial opinion appears to be rather equally divided on whether the recent ouster of States' Rights Democratic—or Dixiecratic—delegates from the National Democratic Committee was a wise practical political move. Opinion on the future of the States' Righters is variously divided. But, apparently, the plurality opinion is that they will try to perfect their own party organization, deciding later how best to use it to try to influence major party policies.

Dallas (Texas) Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "In barring those southerners who bolted the party ticket last year, the Democratic National Committee is within its rights. . . But, from a practical point of view, the party may be cutting off its nose to spite its face. The time may come soon when it will need urgently the support it now spurns. The committee would have done better to follow the example of the Republicans in welcoming back—even wooing back—to the G. O. P. fold those who bolted to follow Teddy Roosevelt's Bull Moose banner in 1912."

St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press (Ind.): "The Democrats have acted on a decision that the permanent alienation of this wing of the party is good politics. . . This decision must take into account the possibility that the two-party system will arise in the South. . . . But if by cutting loose from the Dixiecrats, a few states in the South can be traded for the major part of the Middle West, the Democrats will have been the gainers and the Republicans the losers by the new situation."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Rep.): "'They cheered' when States' Rights members of the Democratic National Committee were separated from their jobs. . . . Cheering is fun and purges are becoming traditional, but time may rob each of its zest. Affronted Southern Democrats—and the number includes more than those of penalized Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina—can and probably will strengthen opposition to the Truman program and lay plans for the next campaign."

Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot (Ind.-Dem.): "In 1896 the national committee invoked a disciplinary rule to oust two committee members who had refused to support Bryan. . . and Free Silver. . . Time soon healed the breach between the Silver and Gold Democrats It will probably do the same thing, before long, for the breach between the National and States' Rights Democrats. That is not to say that the Democratic party will soon—or ever—rid itself of its internal Right-Left, North-South highchurch-lowchurch divisions."

Wilmington (Del.) Morning News (Ind.): "If the breach is to be healed, the Dixiecrats will have to repent—as President Truman made clear in his speech to the committee. . . He invited the wanderers back but only after he had declared the Democratic Party to be a 'national party and not a sectional party any more.' He said he wanted them on the understanding that they will support the platform. . . The platform, or course, has a civil rights plank in it."

Tuscaloosa, (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Some sort of reasonable viewpoint must be developed by the administration if it expects the South in general to pay even articulate lip-service to the National Democratic Party. Of course, the proper place for fighting out these problems is in the U. S. Congres. The South has shown there that it has sufficient strength and sufficient support from the rest of the nation to keep some balance in the delicate problems with which the administration seeks to blunder."

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "Before 1952. . . one side or the other, or both, may have altered the course of events. Politicians are naturlal compromisers. But the prospects in Congres are not pleasant o contemplate. . . . In a congress which is already cross-cut by intra-party divisions and is notorioously indifferent to Mr. Truman's leadership, or that of anyone else, the results are almost sure to lead to more bickering and bitterness, less legislative accomplishment. . . ."

Columbia, (S. C) Record (Ind.-Dem.): "The States' Righters will find themselves in a bargaining position, if they have the courage to seize it. The States' Righters . . . can hold themselves aloof from any party in 1950 and then in 1952 notify both parties that they will be prepared to transfer their allegiance, votes and organization bodily to the national party which in that year comes nearest to writing a platform and selecting a candidate conforming to what used to be called the Southern Democratic ideas."

In Hollywood With

JIMMIE FIDLER

By Jane Wyatt

(Pinch-hitting for Jimmie Fidler, who is on vacation)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 3.—Hollywood is a wonderful place—a synonym for success, fame, adulation and glamour.

It is populated by people who have "arrived" and by people who are waiting for their "big break." Some of the latter group have charted a course intended to lead them to the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, but an even greater number are just sitting and waiting. They seem to believe that good looks and wishful thinking equip them admirably for stardom tomorrow.

I wish I could share their opinion. Unfortunately I can't, and my reasons are drawn from personal experience and observation. I'd like to jot down a few of them.

A few months ago I played opposite Gary Cooper in "Task Force." I had found a quiet place and was going over my script. A short distance away a small group of young hopefuls were discussing their Hollywood futures. I couldn't help but eavesdrop Of the six or eight men, only one admitted inexperience, and lack of confidence in his ability to "carry" the heavy burdens of stardom. Each of the others expressed his certain belief that all he needed was a break.

The lone doubter argued that he played extra parts to earn a living and to continue his studies—voice, technique, singing, dancing. He said he was investing in tools that would help him to stay put when his big chance came. Some day I expect to see that young man's name in lights.

Some years ago, new in Hollywood, I possessed a long term contract at a good salary. I was cast opposite Ronald Coleman in "Lost Horizon." The role had been sought after by every young actress in town, but I got it. Not until the preview did I realize that I was not ready.

The picture was a great success, but I didn't feel that I had done what could and should have been done with my role. After weeks of indecision, I requested a release from my studio contract and returned to the stage for further experience. I feel it was the wisest professional decision I ever made, and if I had it to do over, I'd do the same thing again.

Summer stock and New York engagements made up my schedule for a few years. A good many failures were included, plays that opened and closed so fast it was difficult to analyze the reasons for the failures. But each appearance I learned a little. There are a good many superb actors who aren't stars from whom the serious workman can learn by association. I've been luck that way.

In Hollywood we are apt to assume that stardom just happened to the big names on top. Let's choose a few and see how it really came about.

Betty Grable studied for years, sang with a band, and wound up with a contract. But the contract didn't last and she went to New York where she made a big hit in a secondary role in musical comedy. Stardom in Hollywood followed, but the elapsed time was roughly ten years. She got hers the hard way.

Cary Grant served a long apprenticeship before he was asked to become a member of the film colony. And he didn't really become a star till several years after that. The interval between his decision at the age of 15, to become an actor, and the time Hollywood producers scrambled to get his signature on the dotted line added up to another 15 years.

Spencer Tracy, James Cagney, Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, Ginger Rogers are just a few of the long-time stars who came up from the ranks through tireless work and study.

Betty Hutton, Robert Ryan, Judy Garland, June Haver and Yvonne deCarlo didn't get where they are because they looked good and thought it would be nice to be in pictures. Years of effort and plenty of disappointment preceded their success.

Even our young stars are usually veterans of the business. At the moment I'm appearing with Ann Blythe and Farley Granger in a Samuel Goldwyn film, "Beloved Over All." I was startled to learn they had been in the theater almost as long as I had.

A few days ago Ann celebrated her twenty-first birthday on the set. After blowing out the candles and cutting the cake she confided to a few of us she really felt much older. It seems she has been an actress since she was four!!

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

GOOD WORKING PARTNERS

Education is a partnership with teachers and parents as the partners. Partners are good friends or they are not good partners. This means perfect confidence between the teacher and the parent. When that exists, the children prosper. When it does not, the children do not get the full benefit of their school association.

When, for example, a mother enters a child in school, she ought to tell the teacher about any odd characteristic the child may have and which will make it difficult for the two to get along unless the teacher knows and takes heed The teacher should be told about the child who has irritable bladded condition, the one who is hard of hearing, or short of vision, or the one who is afraid to be alone. Such things have meaning to the teacher concerned and modify her ways with the children.

When the teacher knows that a child is hard of hearing, she places him close to her desk and selects a child who will help him by making sure he has understood what the teacher said and what she wants him to do. When a hard-of-hearing child is not helped in such ways, he becomes a problem to himself and everybody else when he might have gone along happily.

The child who does not see well must wear his glasses, must be seated where he can see the maps and blackboards easily and where the light suits him best. A child straining to see soon becomes fatigued, loses interest in anything but his own discomfort. That means he will be a backward child before long.

The child with any physical disability should not be left to his troubles without the teacher's understanding help. If the mother explains the condition, the teacher is prepared to handle the situation intelligently and to the child's best interest. When she doesnt' know, she cannot be expected to help him as he should be helped.

Mothers sometimes make the mistake of trying to hide a child's disabilities. That is a great mistake. They will disclose themselves fully in time but the time lost meanwhile is at the cost of the peace, the growth, the happiness of the child. Tell the teacher the truth. Give the child's correct age, name, and condition of health. Take the teacher into your confidence and let her be what she longs to be, the child's helpful understanding leader and friend.

Starting while baby is young is the secret of developing the correct routines by which you can raise your child successfully. Dr. Patri's leaflet, P-14, "Helpful Habits," offers more advice.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—On farms almost everywhere when I was a boy, the husband and wife imitated other husbands and wives in adding a wagon wheel to the flower garden whenever a wornout wagon wheel was available. The wheels of farm wagons were sturdily constructed of wood, with iron (later steel) of the best quality for the tires and axle box. The axle box was the bushing, boxing or housing into which the axle fitted, and in which it remained horizontal while the wheel and its boxing revolved around it.

The large hub, usually made round, of several heavy pieces of seasoned oak or hickory, was bored out to receive the steel boxing, and from it radiated the spokes, usually of resilient second-growth hickory or oak.

The outer ends of the spokes fitted into slots in heavy rim sections of the same kind of wood, and these rims were called felloes. Over the circular rim fitted the metal tire, which was fitted by a process of welding, heaving and ho-ing called tire-setting. In dry weather the tires often fell off and had to be re-fitted. You poured many buckets of water over the wagonwheels on hot, dry days, or let the wagon stand in a mud-puddle all night, before taking a load of watermelons to town.

When a wagon finally wore out or was completely wrecked in a runaway, at least one wheel was placed flat in the flower garden, as a memento of a good old wagon. The axle box was removed to make room for a central flower or plant, and to be sold as junk when the junk man came around in the fall.

Some pretty tall flower, like a hollyhock, was planted in the center of the hub, smaller blooming plants like petunias along the spokes, and a border flower around the rim. Neighbors vied in producing the prettiest wagon wheel flower pattern.

Residents of Lebanon, Pa., long have been puzzled to know how a steel or iron wagon wheel tire got to its present position, encircling a huge horse chestnut tree on the farm home of Mrs. Morris Meyer. The tire is still much larger than the tree trunk, but it's there to stay.

Simple enough to a Kansas farm boy. Somebody who had a flower garden there planted a horse chestnut in the center of the hub, instead of a hollyhock. As the years passed, the wooden wheel rotted away, but the tire remained, and still remains.

Heart-to-heart: Many readers write me, asking me to estimate the value of old books they have found in the attic, or to refer them to a dealer. I do not answer such letter when they do not contain addressed and stamped envelope, of course. In general, I can tell all such inquirers that I know little about the value of old books, except books on piracy and treasure, and I know of no dealer in New York whom I could conscientiously recommend.

F. G. Replogle, Rossville, Ind., writes that he remembers when the windstacker replaced the endless-chain conveyor on threshing machines, also when the self-feeder put three pitchfork men out of jobs on every threshing crew.

I receive many communications in envelopes that excite my interest. Here is one from E. H. Cheever, Little Rock, Ark., which is addressed to me in care of the Texarkana Gazette, with three one-cent stamps. On the stamped face appear two postmarks: Ashdown, Ark., July 3, and Michigan City, Ind., July 12. Also a heavy cancellation with the figure one. How did that letter, addressed to Texarkana, get to Michigan City and to New York without any postmark on back, but with two on front?

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Psalmist in the familiar and beautiful Twenty-third Psalm rejoices that the Lord, who is his Shepherd, leads him in the paths of righteousness.

This theme of righteousness runs everywhere through the Psalms, which express the dominant emphasis throughout the books of the prophets, and the whole religion of the Hebrews. It was this superior morality of Judaism that led many Gentiles, proselytes, to become converts to Judaism. Many of these proselytes, as we can see in the pages of the New Testament, became Christian disciples.

The psalmists and prophets put the first emphasis where it rightly belonged—on righteousness in personal life. The godly man was not the professor of a certain faith, but the man who was upright in heart. His sacririces, burnt offerings, and acts of religion meant nothing unless they were the expressions of a heart sincere and true, subject to God's guidance and God's will.

The religion of Israel was a mass religion, always emphasizing God's choice and call to the nation as a whole, but this emphasis did not in any way minimize the importance of the individual, and the soundness of his character and conduct.

This, it seems to me, has a distinct bearing upon our modern democracy, which in a way is a mass affair. We think of democracy often, perhaps too often, as consisting in popular suffrage and the rule of the majority. But the vote of a majority never in itself made anything right. The true essence of democracy is self-rule. It is rule from within. When the rule of kings is discarded, it is the individual who becomes king, and if he abdicates, democracy may become a very sorry affair. Is not our greatest weakness today at this very point—the fact that so many citizens fail to exercise their prerogatives and privileges, to say nothing of their plain duty?

The Old Testament Scriptures dealt with this to the point of extreme severity. It was not only in the Psalms and Prophecies, but the historic books and early history made plain one's place and duty as a member of society. There was the terrible example of Achan, who, in an hour of victory, stole a Babylonian garment, and bars of silver for himself. He met a tragic fate, but profiteering Achans in their country's hour of danger have not been lacking in later history, nor in our own time.

National righteousness, to the Psalmist, meant justice. Conceptions of right and judgment were at the heart of all relationships. As the individual was responsible for his personal integrity, those who ruled, that is society, were responsible for rights, liberties, and fair dealing.

It is the sense of right and judgment that we most need today. It is in the moral foundations that modern societies are weakest. Too many issues are settled, not upon the basis of what is right and fair, but upon the power of individuals, or groups, to enforce their will. But no question is ever settled until it is settled right.

Undersecretary Kimball Ribbed Out Of Game After Call

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(NEA)—Navy Undersecretary Dan Kimball was playing golf on the 13th hole—farthest away from the clubhouse—when he was called to the phone by his office. The message was that his own assistant, Cedric Worth, had been revealed as the author of the unsigned letter than started the B-36 investigation. Kimball walked back on the course and relayed the news to his partners in a threesome—Army Secretary Gordon Gray and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg. Up to the time he got the phone call, Secretary Kimball had been shooting good golf, with a 46 on the first nine and only one over par to the 13th hole. But when he came back to finish the round, his partners started ribbing him so mercilessly about Worth, he says, that it upset his game. So he threw in his towel and walked back to the showers. Secretary Gray and General Vandenberg finished.

'General Vaughan There?'

A government employe who had been away on vacation and had not been following the news came back to town and inserted a want-ad in one of the Washington papers, offering to sell his deep-freeze unit. The paper had barely hit the streets when the practical jokers started calling. By the end of the day his frantic wife had 300 phone calls, and more than 200 of them by actual count, opened with statements like, "Let me talk to General Vaughan, please," or "Is General Vaughan there" Nobody wanted to buy. So the man cancelled his ad after the first insertion and decided to keep his deep freeze for a couple of months, till people forgot.

International Soldier

American observers at Fontainebleu, France, report that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, now chairman of the Brussels treaty countries' commander in chiefs' committee, has stopped flying the British flag on his staff car. The reason given is that "Monty" now considers himself an international soldier—not a Britisher. He is reported to feel that all the other western European Union commanders should follow the same course.

Europe To Europeans

While some members of congress think that an American general should be made commander in chief in Europe so as to keep control over North Atlantic pact military assistance, U. S. defense officials are shying away from it. They reason that Europe must organize for its own defense. If an American is placed in command, then it is felt the Europeans would want to dump the whole problem on the United States, for full responsibility, and do nothing themselves.

Problems In A Nutshell

American-British financial negotiations in Washington boil down to this: The British want the United States to reduce tariffs, simplify customs regulations, buy more British goods, increase the raw materials stockpile program, cut down synthetic rubber production so as to buy more raw rubber, and provide more capital for investment in the United Kingdom. In return, the U. S. wants the U. K. to cut down imports, increase production of exports, reduce costs of production, work harder, and if necessary reduce their standard of living so as to earn more dollars and cut down demands for greater financial assistance.

CIO Cutting Ice

Anyone who thinks that the CIO political action committee cuts no ice in Democratic party affairs should have attended the recent Democratic national committee meeting in Washington. District of Columbia's national committeemen are Melvin D. Hildreth and Mrs. J. Borden (Daisy) Harriman. Mrs. Harriman was out of the city and could not attend. Her proxy was held by Ted Dudley, smart young C. I. O. economist and congressional liaison man for PAC's Jack Kroll.

No Part In China Aid

If congress passes a military assistance program with a big hunk of money specifically earmarked for China, look for Secretary of State Dean Acheson to resign. Further military aid for China was decisively defeated in the house. A few senators have been advocating 200, 100 or 75 million dollars more for China, taking it away from aid now earmarked for Europe. State department has indicated clearly it thinks buying further arms for Nationalist China would be wasted money. The claim is made that U. S. has already spent just as much as the Nationalist government in fighting communism, and got nothing for it. If more aid is ordered by congress another secretary of state will probably have to be appointed to administer the program.

Around Washington With
BASCOM N. TIMMONS

New dissatisfaction is brewing on the farm about an old complaint. The middleman is once again making more money out of farm products than the farmer receives for raising them. The U. S. department of agriculture has just reported that the farmer's share of the consumer's food dollar has slipped to 48 cents and appears to be heading down toward pre-war levels.

All during the war the farmer was getting a steadily increasing share of the dollar which the consumer spent for food. His share reached an all-time high of 56 cents in 1945, and throughout the period since 1941 has averaged 51 cents. However, the trend has now sharply reversed.

Marketing costs are still increasing, while the retail price of food is dripping, and the farmer is getting caught in the pinch. In fact, marketing charges in June, 1949, according to the department's index were at the highest level on record since July, 1920.

The department uses the "family market basket" as its index—the amount of food that an average middle class family of four buys in a year. Retail cost of the "market basket" which hit an all-time high of $708 in July, 1948, is now down to $654 according to the department's statistics. Meanwhile, though, the share which goes to the middlemen of the marketing system, has risen to $343, the highest of the entire war and postwar period.

It doesn't take a crystal ball to see that farmers are going to resist this trend and that complaints during the months to come are going to get louder. In the 1935-39 period the farmer was getting only 40 cents out of every dollar the consumer spent on food. Sixty cents went for marketing costs. Back in 1932 the farmer received an all-time low of 32 cents. This was caused by the fact that marketing costs are relatively inflexible while food prices are not. When food prices start down, all of the money as at the present time, comes out of the farmer's pocket.

The farmer certainly doesn't want to return to the prewar situation and he will be looking to Washington for help if the trend continues. It will also strengthen the hand of farmers' cooperatives which have been under attack in Washington from private business because of the tax exemption they enjoy. The lower the farmer's share of the food dollar, the bigger the talking point cooperatives have.

An interesting illustration of how the farmer comes to get such a small share of the consumer's dollar has just been prepared by two agricultural economists. Drs. H. H. Reizenstein and H. W. Bitting. They learned that of the average price of $5.13 being paid by consumers in Chicago for delicious apples from Yakima Valley, Washington, only $1.36 was received by growers—or 26 cents on the dollar.

Following through the marketing process here is what they found: The first charge which was added to the $1.36 the grower received was 11 cents a box for gathering up the boxes of picked fruit in the orchards, loading and hauling them to the packing plants.

The packing plant added a whopping $1.22 per box to the cost—almost as much as the grower got. This was broken down to a charge of 46 cents a box forsorting, washing, and packing; 38 cents for the broken box and lid; 21 cents for warehousing and storage until apples were shipped to market; 13 cents as a brokerage fee for selling; and 4 cents for incidental costs.

Then came transportation. The average cost of moving the apples to Chicago by mail was ascertained to be 73 cents a box. In Chicago the apples are disposed of on the auction market. In addition to the fee charged by terminal brokers, the auction commission rate is 1 3/4 per cent of the sale price. There is an unloading fee of 1/3 cent per box and a terminal storage charge of 3 cents a box. All of this, however, adds up to only 9 cents a box. The Chicago auction price averaged $3.39 a box for the apples for which growers got $1.36.

Now the wholesaler or less-than-carload jobber had them and began the process of distribution that sometimes went through several hands before the apples go to the neighborhood fruit store where the clerk weighed them out into a bag for the consumer. Total retailing charges amounted to $1.74 a box or well in excess of what the original grower received. The final cost was $5.13 a box to the Chicago consumer, with 74 cents of each dollar going to some point along the marketing line.

It is obvious that apple growers will not be satisfied.

Genial, bald-headed Charles Brannan, secretary of agriculture was testifying before the senate agriculture committee.

A number of complicated questions had come up in connection with proposed changes in the price support program. Several members of the committee remarked on the complexity of the matter they were discussing.

"Well, it's likely that a lot of us will have considerably more gray hair before we solve this problem."

A titter began in the back of the hearing room, and developed into a roar as more and more of those present got the import of the bald-headed Brannan's unpremeditated words.

It was two or three minutes before the laughter—in which Brannan joined in—quieted and the hearing could proceed.

Billy Rose:
PITCHING HORSESHOES

I'm 50 years old today and, if you'll pardon the mildewed mot, the only thing I want for my birthday is not to be reminded of it.

Do I feel 50? Of course not. The only people who feel 50 are 60. On the other hand, there's no point in kidding myself—according to the bureau of vital statistics, I'm old enough to be my own father—and those carpet slippers my secretary handed me this morning weren't designed to be worn with roller skates.

Do I look 50? I don't think so—although I'd rather no one started counting the rings under my eyes. Father Time may heal a lot of things, but let's face it—he's no beauty specialist.

One of the things that makes me realize the years are creaking up on me is the New York police force. When I was a kid, every cop looked like an old man to me. Now the men on the force look like a bunch of cut-ups fresh out of college. Yet, I'm 50, all right.

The other day Eleanor suggested we have a few close friends in for a little birthday dinner.

"Close friends!" I said. "If you're going to restrict it to close friends, you'll have to serve the meal on a bridge table. In my book, a close friend is a fellow who not only will draw his last buck from the bank to get you out of a jam, but who, if necessary, will pull a pistol and start shooting. Sure, I've got dozens of friends who will trade roast beef dinners and letters of recommendations with me, but these are merely friendly friends. The only three I rate as close friends are yourself, my sister, Polly, and a certain white-haired gent who does a lot of his thinking on park benches. That isn't much of a line-up for a guy who's 50."

"Maybe so," said my wife, "but I'll bet it's two more than the average fellow has."

And it's my hunch that Eleanor is a lot nearer right than wrong.

Back when the century and I were both in our teens, I was present at another 50th birthday party—my pop's. At the time, we were living on Delancey street and folding money was a sometime thing around our house. I remember my dad telling me he hoped I'd have a happier celebration when my half-century marker showed up—one with champagne and a lot of fancy delicatessen.

Well, in recent years, my house has been stocked with most of the things my old man mentioned and a few he didn't—an air conditioning dingus and a television set, for instance. But, pop notwithstanding, I'm afraid it's going to take more than groceries and gadgets to make me happy on my 50th birthday. The way I feel right now, I'll probably celebrate the event by pulling down the blinds and hoping the darned thing will go away.

Speaking of groceries, I've often wondered why I ever wanted the things I've worked so hard to get. To my tummy and tonsils, a hot dog with mustard still tastes better than the pressed duck at Tour d'Argent in Paris. And meaning no disrespect to Gene Cavallero who runs the Colony Restaurant, the Pont L'Eveque he serves isn't one-two-three with the old yella cheese the corner grocer used to sell up on Tremont avenue.

I've spent a lot of time and two bitses trying to educate my palate, but evidently I can't educate it out of its memories.

On this frustrative occasion, I suppose the thing to do is to draw up a set of resolutions to govern the rest of my allotted span and spin. Nothing thunderous, you understand; just a few guide-posts for greying gracefully.

1. WORK: As long as I have enough pesos in my poke to get away with it, to continue working for kicks instead of cash.

2. PLAY: To spend at least eight weeks out of every 52 traveling.

3. MY WIFE: Never to argue with her. What's the percentage in arguing with a girl who cries at a Lana Turner movie?

4. POLITICS: To be a Communist-Republican. That is, to go along with any sensible notion that will provide more for the many, but to vote only for good old-fashioned Americans who will administer these notions according to the will of vox pop, rather than vox Stalin.

5. CHARITY: To avoid becoming a professional do-gooder, but to continue taking a little cash out of my shoe on occasion and handing it to some bloke who needs a pair of shoes.

6. RELIGION: To do my darnedest to live up to one rule: Don't hurt anybody.

That winds up my birthday bromides and, if you don't mind, I'd like to be myself the rest of the day. After all, It's no fun to realize that I'm as old as my jokes.

Looking Ahead
IN WASHINGTON

(By the World Staff of Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The Democrats are not abandoning the Brannan farm plan in favor of the Anderson compromise reported agreed on at the White House.

So says an official of the Democratic national committee. He says there is "more than meets the eye in the so-called compromise." He adds significantly:

"We are going to hit out for the Brannan plan from hell to breakfast. We are going into the farm program again in a bigger field at the San Francisco party conference Sept. 18-19. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan will be there."

The assumption is that the administration may be willing to go along on the Anderson proposal—keeping present high level rigid price supports for 11 major crops and substituting flexible supports for others—in the belief it cannot get anything more at this time.

But, this party official says, the Brannan plan—to allow prices of perishable commodities to drop/ and pay farmers the difference if they go below levels regarded by the agriculture department as fair—will be kept alive for future use if conditions warrant abandoning general price supports.

Democrats say the fixing of the date for the San Francisco meeting—ahead of the Republican party's farm conference at Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 24—is significant.

Encyclopedia Soviet

MOSCOW—(AP)—A 50-volume, 100,000-word second edition of the "Big Soviet Encyclopedia" is being published.

The Literary Gazette says a considerable number of articles in the first edition do not cover recent Soviet scientific and cultural attainments and contain "crude theoretical and political errors."

"It is necessary," the Gazette says, "to remove all these errors and deficiencies."

British Aid

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A treasury informant who says he's not just guessing says not to expect anything sensational in the way of help for Great Britain to come out of the U. S.-British economic conference opening here Wednesday.

The only really big development possible would be for this country to give the British a large batch of money—but congress would have to approve and congress is in no mood to advance additional funds to Britain now.

Palestine

LAUSANNE, Switzerland—(AP)—New direction and hope have been given United Nations Palestine negotiations by the U. S. proposal for a large economic survey mission to make a thorough study of the problems of Arab refugees, frontiers and the status of Jerusalem.

The mission will be at work this month. Both Arab and Israeli representatives here have approved it, and there will be great moral pressure on them to accept its findings.

Dulles' Decision

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Dulles (R.-N. Y.) will ponder a decision whether to run in New York's special November senatorial election in the quiet surroundings of his summer home on Duck Island in Lake Ontario.

Before he left Wednesday night for Canada his inclination was not to make the race. He will return to Washington next Wednesday with his mind made up.

Wool and Dollars

LONDON—(AP)—The British government is expected to introduce export licensing for raw wool to prevent loss in dollar earnings by British commonwealth members. The board of trade, a government agency, confirms that it is considering such a step.

Commonwealth members, particularly Australia, have complained that British gowers sell wood for Brtish pounds to European, who then resell it for dollars in competition with them.

Editor Boyle

WASHINGTON —(AP)— William M. Boyle, Jr., new chairman of the Democratic national committee, is taking over the editorship of "Capital Comment," the committee's weekly four-pager.

In his first issue he bears down on getting "working" Democratic majorities elected in 1950.

Boyle is starting his new job by talking with committeemen from all over the country by phone and letter. He will make his first major speech at the big party rally Sept. 18 in San Francisco.

After Deadline

BONN—(AP)—German newspapermen will be able to buy their allied colleagues a drink after Wednesday.

A joint press club is being set up for reporters who will cover the new German government to convene here then. Germans weer admitted to the formerly segregated allied press clubs, but they were forbidden to use occupation scrip—the only kind of money that was good at the clubs.

Capital Briefs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Although the navy has been authorized to allocate ship repair work to private yards, it is doubtful that it will find it necessary to do so. President Truman still is looking fo rthe right man to be chairman of the Civil Service Commission. The army, navy and air force will do their best to swap job vacancies to absorb the 135,000 defense employes to be discharged within four months under Secretary Johnson's order.

Italian TV

MILAN—(AP)—Italy's would-be television fans (there is no T. V. in Italy yet) will get a glimpse of it at an exposition Sept. 10-19. Latest equipment from England, France, Holland and Sweden will be displayed. Entertainment will be "piped in" by wire from a nearby stage.

The Germans destroyed Italy's only experimental television station, at Rome.

Japanese Scouts

TOKYO—(AP)—The Boy Scouts of Japan will hold their first postwar gathering here Sept. 24-25. Postal authorities have promised to issue a commemorative stamp.

DeWitt Mackenzie:
MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

This befuddled old world of ours has become so war-minded that it spends half its time talking about past conflict and the other half worrying over the next.

I fear that we live too much in the past and future, and not enough in the present. Anyway your columnist is fed up with war and rumors of war. So let's talk about fishin', one of the really worth while things in life. I've angled in many countries for various kinds of fish, but I struck something new as an observer at the recent state of Maine tuna tournament held at Boothbay Harbor, one of America's beauty spots. I'd like to tell you about that.

Some call tuna fishin' with rod and reel the acme of piscatorial sport. Well, we won't argue that point, but it certainly is one of the most rugged—so much so that unless the fisherman is physically fit he runs the risk of bodily injury. A battle with say a 900 pound tuna is terrific, a fact which of course explains its fascination for the seeker after thrills. It's the purpose of this article to record an impression of such a fight with a big fish—one that got away.

I had the privilege of being for three days aboard the fast cruiser of one of America's widely known tuna fishermen — Walter McDonough, of Brielle, N. J. He won last year's tourney at Boothbay. Aboard the "Jersey Lightning II" also were his charming wife, who accompanies him in all tournaments, and his crew of two—Louis (Sonny) de Filipo, skipper, and Bob (Red) Stuart, mate—both experienced tuna fishermen and first class sailors. The crew have to be wizards in the handling of the boat, as you shall see.

McDonough is a huge, barrel-chested chap, about six-feet-two and weighing 245 pounds. I'll tell you how powerful he is: I was put aboard his cruiser one day from another craft in a rough sea. My boat was backed close to the cruiser as I balanced my 200 pounds in the pitching stern. McDonough stood by his rail and at his command I stepped trustingly out into space. He grabbed me and laughingly hoisted me aboard as though he were handling a five year old.

Well, that's the giant I saw battling a big tuna. He had been sitting patiently for a long and weary time in his swivel chair at the stern, feet braced and set for action if a fish should strike his bait. He was stripped to the waist and wore a heavy, wide leather corset like a pony saddle. Tournament fishing is a serious business.

Sonny crouched against the controls of the cruiser, watching McDonough. "Red" kept on "chumming"—throwing pieces of fish overboard to attract tuna. Mrs. Mac (Betty) played a highly important role by relaying occasional bits of food to her husband and resort to frequent bits of bandiage to ease the tension.

Suddenly McDonough barked "Let's go!" He swung on his huge rod as he set the hook in what was estimated to be an 800 to 900 pound fish. Sonny yanked a cord which released the craft from its mooring. The powerful motors began to throb. Betty and I made ourselves scarce. "Red" stood at hand for any emergency, but away from McDonough since no aid can be given a tournament fisherman once he has hooked his fish.

The battle was on. It's an absurd comparison, I know, but as McDonough fought that fish I could think of nothing but a man tackling a bengal tiger with his bare hands.

The tuna now had perhaps 300 yards of line run out and was in command of the situation. It was Mac's business to curb the fish's rushes and gain command himself. He had to work mighty fast because we were encircled by other boats and our theater of operation was relatively small.

It was a savage fight. Mac's big muscles swelled as he threw every ounce of his vast strength into the task of curbing the tuna's wild rushes and reeling it in inch by inch. His chair swung violently back and forth as his line lashed the water. No man could stand that long.

Meantime Sonny was performing unbelievable feats with the craft. He swung it, he reversed it with screaming gears, he drove it lunging forward—he rode it like a spinning polo pony. He followed every movement of the fisherman.

Nobody spoke. The tension was thick enough to cut, and became more so as we apprroached other boats anchored nearby. About nine minutes had passed and Mac had all but gained control over the huge fish when the tuna gave a sudden rush around the anchor line of a neighboring craft.

McDonough's line was severed. Silence on the Jersey Lightning II. Everybody was stunned. Sonny was as white of face as a sheet. Mac sat and stared at the water for a long minute. Then he suddenly threw back his head and his big, boyish laugh boomed out.

With that the crew jumped into action to prepare for more fishing. Betty slipped a sympathetic and encouraging arm about her husband's neck as he settled down to more hours of tedious waiting.

Well, there you have nine minutes in the life of a tuna fisherman—and an observer. Mac took second place in the tournament but he can gain the permanent trophy if he wins next year, since he already has one leg on it through his victory in 1948. I reckon he'll be there trying.

NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—There will be no more peace in our time.

John D. Rockefeller 3rd has seen to that. He has carried his family's generous tradition of philanthropy right out the window.

John D. Sr., did wonders for world health with his millions. John D. Jr., made a hopeful bid for world order by donating a fine site for the United Nations to build its echo chambers.

And John D. Three? What is he doing? Why, he's building a guest house for visiting relatives. There is no doubt he and his wife probably need it. They hardly have room in their East Side apartment to entertain the 95 relatives who showed up for their wedding in 1932.

But young Rockefeller has put some 3,000,000 other New York families on the spot. Because—you know how relatives are—their hinterland kin are going to expect the same kind of treatment.

"Rockefeller built a house for his relatives," they'll sneer. "Why don't you? Getting too big for us, eh?"

And this will be difficult to answer, because most out-of-town visitors are sure that everybody here lives like Rockefeller—or Tommy Manville. Maybe they do, but it is often on a smaller scale.

The trouble with John D. 3rd's adventure is family goodwill is that he built his guest house as if he r-e-a-l-l-y w-a-n-t-e-d all his obscure relatives to visit him.

It has a living room with a fireplace, three bedrooms and three baths. It has a sunlit patio complete with a goldfish pond and a live tree. Wonderful place for a city picnic.

And it would be a fine gesture of good will if young John D. Three would rent the joint out occasionally when his own folks weren't having a clambake. A lot of fellow citizens here could use it to show their relatives a hot time.

But, like me, they would probably want to make some modifications. I have in mind entertaining my fourth cousin. Flap-Eared Roscoe ("Squeegee") Boyle. Cousin Squeegee lives in Corntop, Iowa, and earned his nickname as a boy by winning a dime bet he could wash a department store window with one ear without using a ladder.

Squeegee still has the dime—also a wife, a pet parrot, and eight flap-eared children. Everybody else in our family regards Squeegee as a worse plague than the locust, which appears only once in 17 years. The Squeegee tribe is an annual blight.

It would be necessary, as I say, to fix up the Rockefeller guest house a bit for the Squeegees. First, I'd stop up the fireplace flue with concrete and get a good smudgy fire going. Then I'd put a garter snake in every bureau drawer, and five famished rats in each kitchen cabinet.

A wild falcon would be perched on the tree to take care of the parrot; the pond would be full of snapping turtles instead of goldfish. I'd put two live grizzly bears in the master's bedroom to entertain Mr. and Mrs. Squeegee. There'd be four wildcats in each of the other two bedrooms to play with Squeegee's eight little monsters.

As I left I'd scatter tacks and cut glass on the living room rug, as the Squeegees usually arrive barefooted—"it feels so cool, Cousin Hal, and you know what they want these days for shoe leather."

When the Squeegees arrived, I'd usher them in, back out fast, lock the door and throw the key down the nearest manhole.

Lots of people have relatives like Squeegee. If young Rockefeller would rent out his guest house, he not only would go down as a benefactor of mankind—he'd make a profit.

The Nation Today
JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. —(AP)— Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, a big man with a bald head, caused a lot of grins in Washington with the jolt he has just handed a bunch of senators.

When Johnson, a businessman himself, took over the defense department last spring, he said he'd "knock heads together" if he had to, to make the armed forces work all right.

Since he has been in office, he has heard senators preaching the virtues of the free enterprise system and the need for economy in government spending.

Nobody has to tell Johnson about the free enterprise system. He's a great believer in it, himself, having made a lot of money under it.

He's quite a hand at economy, too, and when he hears senators preaching it he takes them literally, it seems. Only recently he announced he was firing 135,000 civilian employes of the armed forces to save around $500,000,000.

The senate had whacked $1,400,000,000 from the money the house voted to pay the expenses of the armed forces this next year. They chopped $800,000,000 off the money for the air force.

Then Johnson got a letter from Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat and chairman of a subcommittee of the appropriations committee.

Seems in his letter Thomas told Johnson about 11 members of his committee wanted to take an "official" inspection trip to Europe, and some wanted to go around the world, and please would he send them around in an air force plane.

(Since this was to be an "official" trip, it would be at government expense anyway, whether they went by air force plane or one of the airlines or by boat).

Johnson wrote Thomas he was sorry but there was economy to worry about in the armed services, and it cost about $130 an hour to keep a plane in the air on such a trip, and please would they just go by commercial plane. In short, he said no air force plane for the senators.

Then he put in the little reminder about free enterprise: ". . . . I have felt that I could not justify placing the armed services in competition with commercial carriers. . . ."

That's another way of saying that, since the government is going to have to foot the travel bill for the senators anyway, let them spend it on regular airline planes which stay in business by carrying passengers.

This must have been a shock to Thomas—the air force has always jumped when congressmen wanted to make "official" trips—for he said later: "I know senators will not be pleased."

Every year when congress closes, or is near closing, as this one is, senators and representatives scamper off in all directions around the world by plane or boat.

When they go—singly or in groups, as a committee—on "official" business, it's at government expense. Which means that you, the taxpayer, pay for the ride, hotel, meals and so on.

Newsmen who cover congress year in and out estimate that 99 per cent of all travel by congressmen and senators abroad is at government expense.

One veteran house member, who hasn't missed a trip abroad for years, predicted that this year around half the 435 house members will be out of the country by the end of the year.

One house committee sailed a week ago on the Queen Mary to study "population trends" in Europe. Other planned trips include:

One to study medical programs in Europe; another to study military morale on the continent; and other trips are scheduled for Puerto Rico, Japan, farm areas of Europe, Panama and Mexico.

WAY TO LOSE A FRIEND

I remember seeing a cartoon once depicting a man saying to his friend, "No, I never lend; I only borrow. If friendships must be disrupted, I want to be the one who benefits in the process."

This may seem a cold and cynical remark, but no student of human nature will deny that it sets forth, by implication at least, a very basic truth: that the surest way to lose a friend is to once get him accustomed to receiving your loans or gifts—and then call a halt to the practice.

This basic characteristic of human beings is just as true of nations as of individuals, for after all nations are nothing more than a great many individuals banded together. We are now beginning to see it exemplified in the case of Great Britain, particularly in the case of its Labor government.

After spending eight weeks in Great Britain last spring making a firsthand study of their present socialist government, I was convinced that we had done that great nation no favor by our loans, so-called, and our gifts since the close of the war. The four billon dollar loan we made them in 1946, which was supposed to last five years, was dissipated in eighteen months. The better than one billion dollars in Marshall aid per year we started their way in 1948 is not having the desired effect, and they are already asking for more—and are expected to ask for assurance that it will be extended beyond 1952, by which time it was supposed to have fully accomplished its purpose.

Sound-thinking Britishers have been realizing the real effects of our loans and gifts to their nation all along. Many of them told me that so far as rebuilding their economy was concerned, the British loan was poured down a rathole. They are deeply appreciative of our generosity, but they are dubious of our good pudgment Several of them said to me, "The greatest service the United States could render Great Britain would be to stop Marshall aid—and the sooner, the better. You are only subsidizing a socialist government. You are enabling it to stay in power and to claim credit for supposed benefits which it is providing the people, for which it deserves no credit at all. The sooner we start paying our own way, as hard as it might be at first, the better off we shall all be."

Now that we are beginning to realize these truths, and now that some of us are beginning to be quite critical of the methods and policies pursued by Britain's socialist government, we are rapidly building up to the point where it is entirely possible the bonds of friendship between the two nations may be broken. It would be a great pity if that happened. We have many things in common with the British—common language and, in many ways, common customs and traditions and ideals. We have been allies through two great wars. But there is nothing in common between American Democracy and British Socialism.

The British Socialists have been quite willing to accept the largess of the United States since they came into office in 1945, even though their recently issued platform openly states, " . . . we seek freedom from the enslaving material bonds of capitalism." They are quite willing to continue to accept from us the products of capitalism, while at the same time they say we have no right to criticise their government, that we had better think twice before we attempt to "twist the tail of the British lion."

Since when has the giver had no right to be concerned with what happens to his gift? Anyway, we are not twisting the tail of the British lion; we are only poking a stick at a Socialist Jackal masquerading in lion's clothing. Let's give the real British Lion a chance.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Gone, apparently, are the days when movie queens were picked from the ranks of hashslingers and beauty contest winners. Stars of the future will have to be intelligent as well as beautiful—so so say the bosses at one Hollywood studio.

Six lovely young things with college sheepskins neatly filed away in their memory books have arrived at Universal-International, to be intellectual.

Even so, the studio has decreed that all starlets shall pose for cheesecake during the first five years of their contracts (if they last that long). Brainy women must have sex appeal too.

Four of the six studied drama at college but only one was really preparing for an acting career.

"I took drama simply because I liked it better than any other subject," said Peggie Castle, from Mills College. Peggie is a blonde, with blue eyes. "When my husband went overseas I wanted to do something, so I started acting in soap operas."

Dark-haired Ann Pearce, a graduate of the University of Southern California, was a pre-medical student until she switched to drama in her senior year.

"I finally decided that I wanted to act," she said. "But I think my pre-med training will help. Both doctors and actors have to study people."

Dorothy Hart, the gal who had the acting career in mind all the time, went through Western Reserve in two and one-half years, "so that I wouldn't be an old lady by the time I got on Broadway." Dorothy, a blue-eyed brunette, modeled in New York to pay for music and drama lessons.

Peggy Dow, another blonde, has a degree from Northwestern. Said Peggy: "Whether you can sing or dance doesn't make any difference at the studio. They'll teach you. I told them I couldn't, but I wound up doing both."

Helena Carter, a green-eyed redhead from Columbia University, has been taking diction lessons for a year to polish off a British accent. A literature major, Helena said an acting career never entered her head. "It was just a matter of circumstance, and quite a surprise, when I got a bid."

Donna Martel, signed right off the campus of Los Angeles City College, wants to make films abroad and wants to be a wife and mother some day. She can't see any conflict between the two pursuits.

The girls are unanimous in the belief that a college education is a great asset to an actress. Said Peggie Castle:

"The college girl has more tolerance. She has a sharper perception of human traits and characteristics and is, therefore, better equipped to imitate them. There is no place in the movie industry for a biased viewpoint."

Only one question seems to await an answer: Can they act?

Former Nazi Dies In Hospital Near Rome

ROME, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Police said today that Otto Wachter, identified as the former Nazi gauleiter of Galicia, died in a Catholic hospital in Rome last July 14.

The chief of the foreigners' section of police headquarters said "it is possible he was a secondary personage in the assassination of Austrian Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss" 15 years ago.

He added, however, that police had no evidence supporting a Rome newspaper report that Wachter organized the assassination which occurred during an unsuccessful coup attempt by Austrian nationalists.

The 44-year old Wachter was taken to a hospital after he became seriously ill in a refugee camp.

Wachter, as gauleiter of Galicia, was allegedly responsible for the deaths of thousands of Polish Jews.

Flaming Tank Truck Driven To Safe Area

MORLAND, Kans., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A heroic gasoline truck driver last night piloted his blazing vehicle through Morland in a vain effort to save the town from damage.

The driver, George Richmeier, leaped from the roaring tanker minutes before a blast ripped it apart.

In the wake of his flaming dash were two automobiles that burned and exploded, two blazing business houses, and a burning string of trees.

No one was injured.

The truck, owned by a Farmers' Cooperative Association caught fire as it was being filled. Sensing the possibility of a spreading fire and explosion that might destroy the town's business section, Richmeier jumped into the truck's cab and sped toward the city limits.

Gasoline pouring from the rear of the tank blazed in streams along the street. The truck struck two parked cars and they burned and exploded. When his truck stalled, Richmeier leaped from the cab. The violent explosion followed.

A billard parlor, set afire by the gasoline, was destroyed with damage estimated at $5,000, a restaurant was damaged, but firemen saved most of it.

GUERRILLAS DISARMED

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Greek guerrillas driven across the Albanian border by Athens government troops have been disarmed and sent to concentration camps, the Albanian radio in Tirana said today.

The broadcast quoted a communique from the Albanian national defense ministry as saying 225 guerrillas "among them a large number of wounded" crossed the Albanian frontier near the Grammos area last Sunday and Monday.

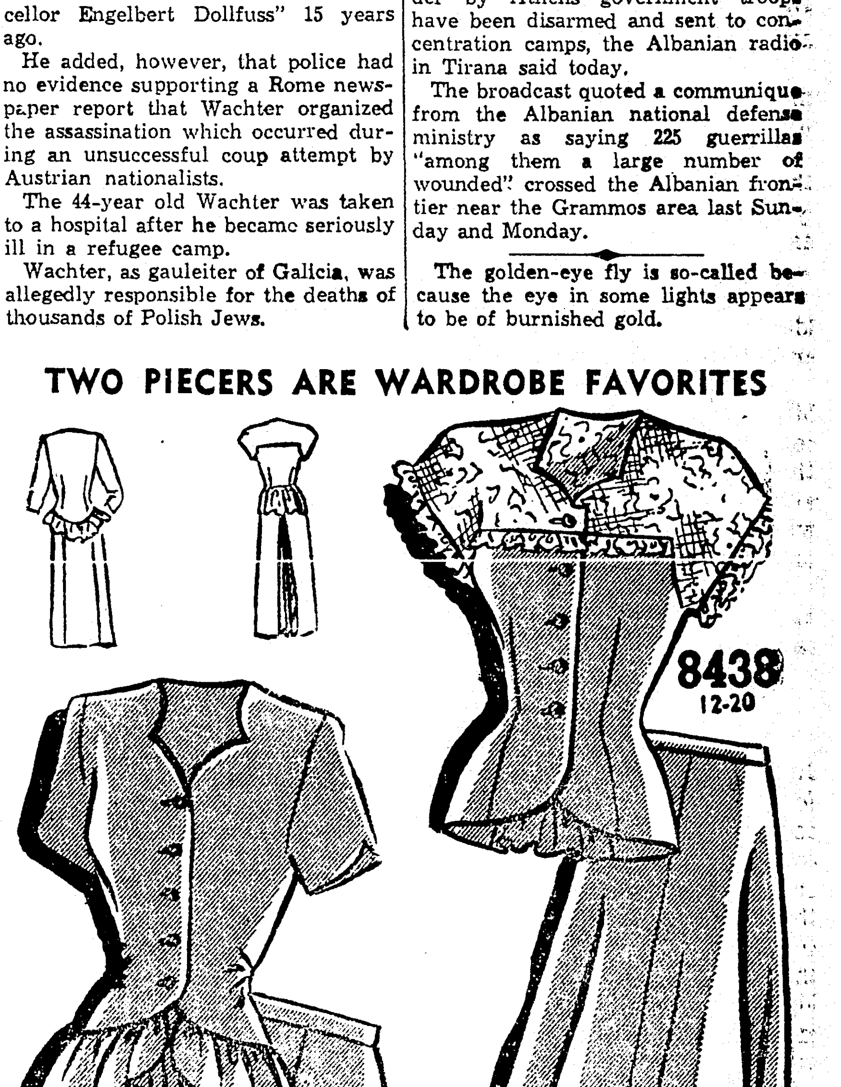
TWO PIECERS ARE WARDROBE FAVORITES



By Sue Burnett

"Dear Miss B." writes Mrs. Thomas Borden of Illinois, "will you show some two piece dresses that are more on the dressy side—something I can feel I look my best on important occasions. This is my favorite style, by the way."

We're very happy to show the two piecers above, Mrs. Borden. Each has special back interest that takes it out of the tailored class, yet retains the comfortable feeling of a well fitting two piece frock. Hope you like them!

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

New dissatisfaction is brewing on the farm about an old complaint. The middleman is once again making more money out of farm products than the farmer receives for raising them. The U. S. department of agriculture has just reported that the farmer's share of the consumer's food dollar has slipped to 48 cents and appears to be heading down toward pre-war levels.

All during the war the farmer was getting a steadily increasing share of the dollar which the consumer spent for food. His share reached an all-time high of 56 cents in 1945, and throughout the period since 1941 has averaged 51 cents. However, the trend has now sharply reversed.

Marketing costs are still increasing, while the retail price of food is dripping, and the farmer is getting caught in the pinch. In fact, marketing charges in June, 1949, according to the department's index were at the highest level on record since July, 1920.

The department uses the "family market basket" as its index—the amount of food that an average middle class family of four buys in a year. Retail cost of the "market basket" which hit an all-time high of $708 in July, 1948, is now down to $654 according to the department's statistics. Meanwhile, though, the share which goes to the middlemen of the marketing system, has risen to $343, the highest of the entire war and postwar period.

It doesn't take a crystal ball to see that farmers are going to resist this trend and that complaints during the months to come are going to get louder. In the 1935-39 period the farmer was getting only 40 cents out of every dollar the consumer spent on food. Sixty cents went for marketing costs. Back in 1932 the farmer received an all-time low of 32 cents. This was caused by the fact that marketing costs are relatively inflexible while food prices are not. When food prices start down, all of the money as at the present time, comes out of the farmer's pocket.

The farmer certainly doesn't want to return to the prewar situation and he will be looking to Washington for help if the trend continues. It will also strengthen the hand of farmers' cooperatives which have been under attack in Washington from private business because of the tax exemption they enjoy. The lower the farmer's share of the food dollar, the bigger the talking point cooperatives have.

An interesting illustration of how the farmer comes to get such a small share of the consumer's dollar has just been prepared by two agricultural economists, Drs. H. H. Reizenstein and H. W. Bitting. They learned that of the average price of $5.13 being paid by consumers in Chicago for delicious apples from Yakima Valley, Washington, only $1.36 was received by growers—or 26 cents on the dollar.

Following through the marketing process here is what they found: The first charge which was added to the $1.36 the grower received was 11 cents a box for gathering up the boxes of picked fruit in the orchards, loading and hauling them to the packing plants.

The packing plant added a whopping $1.22 per box to the cost—almost as much as the grower got. This was broken down to a charge of 46 cents a box forsorting, washing, and packing; 38 cents for the broken box and lid; 21 cents for warehousing and storage until apples were shipped to market; 13 cents as a brokerage fee for selling; and 4 cents for incidental costs.

Then came transportation. The average cost of moving the apples to Chicago by mail was ascertained to be 73 cents a box. In Chicago the apples are disposed of on the auction market. In addition to the fee charged by terminal brokers, the auction commission rate is 1 3/4 per cent of the sale price. There is an unloading fee of 1/3 cent per box and a terminal storage charge of 3 cents a box. All of this, however, adds up to only 9 cents a box. The Chicago auction price averaged $3.39 a box for the apples for which growers got $1.36.

Now the wholesaler or less-than-carload jobber had them and began the process of distribution that sometimes went through several hands before the apples go to the neighborhood fruit store where the clerk weighed them out into a bag for the consumer. Total retailing charges amounted to $1.74 a box or well in excess of what the original grower received. The final cost was $5.13 a box to the Chicago consumer, with 74 cents of each dollar going to some point along the marketing line.

It is obvious that apple growers will not be satisfied.

Genial, bald-headed Charles Brannan, secretary of agriculture was testifying before the senate agriculture committee.

A number of complicated questions had come up in connection with proposed changes in the price support program. Several members of the committee remarked on the complexity of the matter they were discussing.

"Well, it's likely that a lot of us will have considerably more gray hair before we solve this problem."

A titter began in the back of the hearing room, and developed into a roar as more and more of those present got the import of the bald-headed Brannan's unpremeditated words.

It was two or three minutes before the laughter—in which Brannan joined in—quieted and the hearing could proceed.

Billy Rose:
PITCHING HORSESHOES

I'm 50 years old today and, if you'll pardon the mildewed mot, the only thing I want for my birthday is not to be reminded of it.

Do I feel 50? Of course not. The only people who feel 50 are 60. On the other hand, there's no point in kidding myself—according to the bureau of vital statistics, I'm old enough to be my own father—and those carpet slippers my secretary handed me this morning weren't designed to be worn with roller skates.

Do I look 50? I don't think so—although I'd rather no one started counting the rings under my eyes. Father Time may heal a lot of things, but let's face it—he's no beauty specialist.

One of the things that makes me realize the years are creaking up on me is the New York police force. When I was a kid, every cop looked like an old man to me. Now the men on the force look like a bunch of cut-ups fresh out of college. Yet, I'm 50, all right.

The other day Eleanor suggested we have a few close friends in for a little birthday dinner.

"Close friends!" I said. "If you're going to restrict it to close friends, you'll have to serve the meal on a bridge table. In my book, a close friend is a fellow who not only will draw his last buck from the bank to get you out of a jam, but who, if necessary, will pull a pistol and start shooting. Sure, I've got dozens of friends who will trade roast beef dinners and letters of recommendations with me, but these are merely friendly friends. The only three I rate as close friends are yourself, my sister, Polly, and a certain white-haired gent who does a lot of his thinking on park benches. That isn't much of a line-up for a guy who's 50."

"Maybe so," said my wife, "but I'll bet it's two more than the average fellow has."

And it's my hunch that Eleanor is a lot nearer right than wrong.

Back when the century and I were both in our teens, I was present at another 50th birthday party—my pop's. At the time, we were living on Delancey street and folding money was a sometime thing around our house. I remember my dad telling me he hoped I'd have a happier celebration when my half-century marker showed up—one with champagne and a lot of fancy delicatessen.

Well, in recent years, my house has been stocked with most of the things my old man mentioned and a few he didn't—an air conditioning dingus and a television set, for instance. But, pop notwithstanding, I'm afraid it's going to take more than groceries and gadgets to make me happy on my 50th birthday. The way I feel right now, I'll probably celebrate the event by pulling down the blinds and hoping the darned thing will go away.

Speaking of groceries, I've often wondered why I ever wanted the things I've worked so hard to get. To my tummy and tonsils, a hot dog with mustard still tastes better than the pressed duck at Tour d'Argent in Paris. And meaning no disrespect to Gene Cavallero who runs the Colony Restaurant, the Pont L'Eveque he serves isn't one-two-three with the old yella cheese the corner grocer used to sell up on Tremont avenue.

I've spent a lot of time and two bitses trying to educate my palate, but evidently I can't educate it out of its memories.

On this frustrative occasion, I suppose the thing to do is to draw up a set of resolutions to govern the rest of my allotted span and spin. Nothing thunderous, you understand; just a few guide-posts for greying gracefully.

1. WORK: As long as I have enough pesos in my poke to get away with it, to continue working for kicks instead of cash.

2. PLAY: To spend at least eight weeks out of every 52 traveling.

3. MY WIFE: Never to argue with her. What's the percentage in arguing with a girl who cries at a Lana Turner movie?

4. POLITICS: To be a Communist-Republican. That is, to go along with any sensible notion that will provide more for the many, but to vote only for good old-fashioned Americans who will administer these notions according to the will of vox pop, rather than vox Stalin.

5. CHARITY: To avoid becoming a professional do-gooder, but to continue taking a little cash out of my shoe on occasion and handing it to some bloke who needs a pair of shoes.

6. RELIGION: To do my darnedest to live up to one rule: Don't hurt anybody.

That winds up my birthday bromides and, if you don't mind, I'd like to be myself the rest of the day. After all, It's no fun to realize that I'm as old as my jokes.

Looking Ahead
IN WASHINGTON

(By the World Staff of Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The Democrats are not abandoning the Brannan farm plan in favor of the Anderson compromise reported agreed on at the White House.

So says an official of the Democratic national committee. He says there is "more than meets the eye in the so-called compromise." He adds significantly:

"We are going to hit out for the Brannan plan from hell to breakfast. We are going into the farm program again in a bigger field at the San Francisco party conference Sept. 18-19. Secretary of Agriculture Brannan will be there."

The assumption is that the administration may be willing to go along on the Anderson proposal—keeping present high level rigid price supports for 11 major crops and substituting flexible supports for others—in the belief it cannot get anything more at this time.

But, this party official says, the Brannan plan—to allow prices of perishable commodities to drop/ and pay farmers the difference if they go below levels regarded by the agriculture department as fair—will be kept alive for future use if conditions warrant abandoning general price supports.

Democrats say the fixing of the date for the San Francisco meeting—ahead of the Republican party's farm conference at Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 24—is significant.

Encyclopedia Soviet

MOSCOW—(AP)—A 50-volume, 100,000-word second edition of the "Big Soviet Encyclopedia" is being published.

The Literary Gazette says a considerable number of articles in the first edition do not cover recent Soviet scientific and cultural attainments and contain "crude theoretical and political errors."

"It is necessary," the Gazette says, "to remove all these errors and deficiencies."

British Aid

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A treasury informant who says he's not just guessing says not to expect anything sensational in the way of help for Great Britain to come out of the U. S.-British economic conference opening here Wednesday.

The only really big development possible would be for this country to give the British a large batch of money—but congress would have to approve and congress is in no mood to advance additional funds to Britain now.

Palestine

LAUSANNE, Switzerland—(AP)—New direction and hope have been given United Nations Palestine negotiations by the U. S. proposal for a large economic survey mission to make a thorough study of the problems of Arab refugees, frontiers and the status of Jerusalem.

The mission will be at work this month. Both Arab and Israeli representatives here have approved it, and there will be great moral pressure on them to accept its findings.

Dulles' Decision

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Dulles (R.-N. Y.) will ponder a decision whether to run in New York's special November senatorial election in the quiet surroundings of his summer home on Duck Island in Lake Ontario.

Before he left Wednesday night for Canada his inclination was not to make the race. He will return to Washington next Wednesday with his mind made up.

Wool and Dollars

LONDON—(AP)—The British government is expected to introduce export licensing for raw wool to prevent loss in dollar earnings by British commonwealth members. The board of trade, a government agency, confirms that it is considering such a step.

Commonwealth members, particularly Australia, have complained that British gowers sell wood for Brtish pounds to European, who then resell it for dollars in competition with them.

Editor Boyle

WASHINGTON —(AP)— William M. Boyle, Jr., new chairman of the Democratic national committee, is taking over the editorship of "Capital Comment," the committee's weekly four-pager.

In his first issue he bears down on getting "working" Democratic majorities elected in 1950.

Boyle is starting his new job by talking with committeemen from all over the country by phone and letter. He will make his first major speech at the big party rally Sept. 18 in San Francisco.

After Deadline

BONN—(AP)—German newspapermen will be able to buy their allied colleagues a drink after Wednesday.

A joint press club is being set up for reporters who will cover the new German government to convene here then. Germans weer admitted to the formerly segregated allied press clubs, but they were forbidden to use occupation scrip—the only kind of money that was good at the clubs.

Capital Briefs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Although the navy has been authorized to allocate ship repair work to private yards, it is doubtful that it will find it necessary to do so. President Truman still is looking fo rthe right man to be chairman of the Civil Service Commission. The army, navy and air force will do their best to swap job vacancies to absorb the 135,000 defense employes to be discharged within four months under Secretary Johnson's order.

Italian TV

MILAN—(AP)—Italy's would-be television fans (there is no T. V. in Italy yet) will get a glimpse of it at an exposition Sept. 10-19. Latest equipment from England, France, Holland and Sweden will be displayed. Entertainment will be "piped in" by wire from a nearby stage.

The Germans destroyed Italy's only experimental television station, at Rome.

Japanese Scouts

TOKYO—(AP)—The Boy Scouts of Japan will hold their first postwar gathering here Sept. 24-25. Postal authorities have promised to issue a commemorative stamp.

DeWitt Mackenzie:
MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

This befuddled old world of ours has become so war-minded that it spends half its time talking about past conflict and the other half worrying over the next.

I fear that we live too much in the past and future, and not enough in the present. Anyway your columnist is fed up with war and rumors of war. So let's talk about fishin', one of the really worth while things in life. I've angled in many countries for various kinds of fish, but I struck something new as an observer at the recent state of Maine tuna tournament held at Boothbay Harbor, one of America's beauty spots. I'd like to tell you about that.

Some call tuna fishin' with rod and reel the acme of piscatorial sport. Well, we won't argue that point, but it certainly is one of the most rugged—so much so that unless the fisherman is physically fit he runs the risk of bodily injury. A battle with say a 900 pound tuna is terrific, a fact which of course explains its fascination for the seeker after thrills. It's the purpose of this article to record an impression of such a fight with a big fish—one that got away.

I had the privilege of being for three days aboard the fast cruiser of one of America's widely known tuna fishermen — Walter McDonough, of Brielle, N. J. He won last year's tourney at Boothbay. Aboard the "Jersey Lightning II" also were his charming wife, who accompanies him in all tournaments, and his crew of two—Louis (Sonny) de Filipo, skipper, and Bob (Red) Stuart, mate—both experienced tuna fishermen and first class sailors. The crew have to be wizards in the handling of the boat, as you shall see.

McDonough is a huge, barrel-chested chap, about six-feet-two and weighing 245 pounds. I'll tell you how powerful he is: I was put aboard his cruiser one day from another craft in a rough sea. My boat was backed close to the cruiser as I balanced my 200 pounds in the pitching stern. McDonough stood by his rail and at his command I stepped trustingly out into space. He grabbed me and laughingly hoisted me aboard as though he were handling a five year old.

Well, that's the giant I saw battling a big tuna. He had been sitting patiently for a long and weary time in his swivel chair at the stern, feet braced and set for action if a fish should strike his bait. He was stripped to the waist and wore a heavy, wide leather corset like a pony saddle. Tournament fishing is a serious business.

Sonny crouched against the controls of the cruiser, watching McDonough. "Red" kept on "chumming"—throwing pieces of fish overboard to attract tuna. Mrs. Mac (Betty) played a highly important role by relaying occasional bits of food to her husband and resort to frequent bits of bandiage to ease the tension.

Suddenly McDonough barked "Let's go!" He swung on his huge rod as he set the hook in what was estimated to be an 800 to 900 pound fish. Sonny yanked a cord which released the craft from its mooring. The powerful motors began to throb. Betty and I made ourselves scarce. "Red" stood at hand for any emergency, but away from McDonough since no aid can be given a tournament fisherman once he has hooked his fish.

The battle was on. It's an absurd comparison, I know, but as McDonough fought that fish I could think of nothing but a man tackling a bengal tiger with his bare hands.

The tuna now had perhaps 300 yards of line run out and was in command of the situation. It was Mac's business to curb the fish's rushes and gain command himself. He had to work mighty fast because we were encircled by other boats and our theater of operation was relatively small.

It was a savage fight. Mac's big muscles swelled as he threw every ounce of his vast strength into the task of curbing the tuna's wild rushes and reeling it in inch by inch. His chair swung violently back and forth as his line lashed the water. No man could stand that long.

Meantime Sonny was performing unbelievable feats with the craft. He swung it, he reversed it with screaming gears, he drove it lunging forward—he rode it like a spinning polo pony. He followed every movement of the fisherman.

Nobody spoke. The tension was thick enough to cut, and became more so as we apprroached other boats anchored nearby. About nine minutes had passed and Mac had all but gained control over the huge fish when the tuna gave a sudden rush around the anchor line of a neighboring craft.

McDonough's line was severed. Silence on the Jersey Lightning II. Everybody was stunned. Sonny was as white of face as a sheet. Mac sat and stared at the water for a long minute. Then he suddenly threw back his head and his big, boyish laugh boomed out.

With that the crew jumped into action to prepare for more fishing. Betty slipped a sympathetic and encouraging arm about her husband's neck as he settled down to more hours of tedious waiting.

Well, there you have nine minutes in the life of a tuna fisherman—and an observer. Mac took second place in the tournament but he can gain the permanent trophy if he wins next year, since he already has one leg on it through his victory in 1948. I reckon he'll be there trying.

The Nation Today
JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. —(AP)— Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, a big man with a bald head, caused a lot of grins in Washington with the jolt he has just handed a bunch of senators.

When Johnson, a businessman himself, took over the defense department last spring, he said he'd "knock heads together" if he had to, to make the armed forces work all right.

Since he has been in office, he has heard senators preaching the virtues of the free enterprise system and the need for economy in government spending.

Nobody has to tell Johnson about the free enterprise system. He's a great believer in it, himself, having made a lot of money under it.

He's quite a hand at economy, too, and when he hears senators preaching it he takes them literally, it seems. Only recently he announced he was firing 135,000 civilian employes of the armed forces to save around $500,000,000.

The senate had whacked $1,400,000,000 from the money the house voted to pay the expenses of the armed forces this next year. They chopped $800,000,000 off the money for the air force.

Then Johnson got a letter from Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat and chairman of a subcommittee of the appropriations committee.

Seems in his letter Thomas told Johnson about 11 members of his committee wanted to take an "official" inspection trip to Europe, and some wanted to go around the world, and please would he send them around in an air force plane.

(Since this was to be an "official" trip, it would be at government expense anyway, whether they went by air force plane or one of the airlines or by boat).

Johnson wrote Thomas he was sorry but there was economy to worry about in the armed services, and it cost about $130 an hour to keep a plane in the air on such a trip, and please would they just go by commercial plane. In short, he said no air force plane for the senators.

Then he put in the little reminder about free enterprise: ". . . . I have felt that I could not justify placing the armed services in competition with commercial carriers. . . ."

That's another way of saying that, since the government is going to have to foot the travel bill for the senators anyway, let them spend it on regular airline planes which stay in business by carrying passengers.

This must have been a shock to Thomas—the air force has always jumped when congressmen wanted to make "official" trips—for he said later: "I know senators will not be pleased."

Every year when congress closes, or is near closing, as this one is, senators and representatives scamper off in all directions around the world by plane or boat.

When they go—singly or in groups, as a committee—on "official" business, it's at government expense. Which means that you, the taxpayer, pay for the ride, hotel, meals and so on.

Newsmen who cover congress year in and out estimate that 99 per cent of all travel by congressmen and senators abroad is at government expense.

One veteran house member, who hasn't missed a trip abroad for years, predicted that this year around half the 435 house members will be out of the country by the end of the year.

One house committee sailed a week ago on the Queen Mary to study "population trends" in Europe. Other planned trips include:

One to study medical programs in Europe; another to study military morale on the continent; and other trips are scheduled for Puerto Rico, Japan, farm areas of Europe, Panama and Mexico.

WAY TO LOSE A FRIEND

I remember seeing a cartoon once depicting a man saying to his friend, "No, I never lend; I only borrow. If friendships must be disrupted, I want to be the one who benefits in the process."

This may seem a cold and cynical remark, but no student of human nature will deny that it sets forth, by implication at least, a very basic truth: that the surest way to lose a friend is to once get him accustomed to receiving your loans or gifts—and then call a halt to the practice.

This basic characteristic of human beings is just as true of nations as of individuals, for after all nations are nothing more than a great many individuals banded together. We are now beginning to see it exemplified in the case of Great Britain, particularly in the case of its Labor government.

After spending eight weeks in Great Britain last spring making a firsthand study of their present socialist government, I was convinced that we had done that great nation no favor by our loans, so-called, and our gifts since the close of the war. The four billon dollar loan we made them in 1946, which was supposed to last five years, was dissipated in eighteen months. The better than one billion dollars in Marshall aid per year we started their way in 1948 is not having the desired effect, and they are already asking for more—and are expected to ask for assurance that it will be extended beyond 1952, by which time it was supposed to have fully accomplished its purpose.

Sound-thinking Britishers have been realizing the real effects of our loans and gifts to their nation all along. Many of them told me that so far as rebuilding their economy was concerned, the British loan was poured down a rathole. They are deeply appreciative of our generosity, but they are dubious of our good pudgment Several of them said to me, "The greatest service the United States could render Great Britain would be to stop Marshall aid—and the sooner, the better. You are only subsidizing a socialist government. You are enabling it to stay in power and to claim credit for supposed benefits which it is providing the people, for which it deserves no credit at all. The sooner we start paying our own way, as hard as it might be at first, the better off we shall all be."

Now that we are beginning to realize these truths, and now that some of us are beginning to be quite critical of the methods and policies pursued by Britain's socialist government, we are rapidly building up to the point where it is entirely possible the bonds of friendship between the two nations may be broken. It would be a great pity if that happened. We have many things in common with the British—common language and, in many ways, common customs and traditions and ideals. We have been allies through two great wars. But there is nothing in common between American Democracy and British Socialism.

The British Socialists have been quite willing to accept the largess of the United States since they came into office in 1945, even though their recently issued platform openly states, ". . . we seek freedom from the enslaving material bonds of capitalism." They are quite willing to continue to accept from us the products of capitalism, while at the same time they say we have no right to criticise their government, that we had better think twice before we attempt to "twist the tail of the British lion."

Since when has the giver had no right to be concerned with what happens to his gift? Anyway, we are not twisting the tail of the British lion; we are only poking a stick at a Socialist Jackal masquerading in lion's clothing. Let's give the real British Lion a chance.

NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—There will be no more peace in our time.

John D. Rockefeller 3rd has seen to that. He has carried his family's generous tradition of philanthropy right out the window.

John D. Sr., did wonders for world health with his millions. John D. Jr., made a hopeful bid for world order by donating a fine site for the United Nations to build its echo chambers.

And John D. Three? What is he doing? Why, he's building a guest house for visiting relatives. There is no doubt he and his wife probably need it. They hardly have room in their East Side apartment to entertain the 95 relatives who showed up for their wedding in 1932.

But young Rockefeller has put some 3,000,000 other New York families on the spot. Because—you know how relatives are—their hinterland kin are going to expect the same kind of treatment.

"Rockefeller built a house for his relatives," they'll sneer. "Why don't you? Getting too big for us, eh?"

And this will be difficult to answer, because most out-of-town visitors are sure that everybody here lives like Rockefeller—or Tommy Manville. Maybe they do, but it is often on a smaller scale.

The trouble with John D. 3rd's adventure is family goodwill is that he built his guest house as if he r-e-a-l-l-y w-a-n-t-e-d all his obscure relatives to visit him.

It has a living room with a fireplace, three bedrooms and three baths. It has a sunlit patio complete with a goldfish pond and a live tree. Wonderful place for a city picnic.

And it would be a fine gesture of good will if young John D. Three would rent the joint out occasionally when his own folks weren't having a clambake. A lot of fellow citizens here could use it to show their relatives a hot time.

But, like me, they would probably want to make some modifications. I have in mind entertaining my fourth cousin, Flap-Eared Roscoe ("Squeegee") Boyle. Cousin Squeegee lives in Corntop, Iowa, and earned his nickname as a boy by winning a dime bet he could wash a department store window with one ear without using a ladder.

Squeegee still has the dime—also a wife, a pet parrot, and eight flap-eared children. Everybody else in our family regards Squeegee as a worse plague than the locust, which appears only once in 17 years. The Squeegee tribe is an annual blight.

It would be necessary, as I say, to fix up the Rockefeller guest house a bit for the Squeegees. First, I'd stop up the fireplace flue with concrete and get a good smudgy fire going. Then I'd put a garter snake in every bureau drawer, and five famished rats in each kitchen cabinet.

A wild falcon would be perched on the tree to take care of the parrot; the pond would be full of snapping turtles instead of goldfish. I'd put two live grizzly bears in the master's bedroom to entertain Mr. and Mrs. Squeegee. There'd be four wildcats in each of the other two bedrooms to play with Squeegee's eight little monsters.

As I left I'd scatter tacks and cut glass on the living room rug, as the Squeegees usually arrive barefooted—"it feels so cool, Cousin Hal, and you know what they want these days for shoe leather."

When the Squeegees arrived, I'd usher them in, back out fast, lock the door and throw the key down the nearest manhole.

Lots of people have relatives like Squeegee. If young Rockefeller would rent out his guest house, he not only would go down as a benefactor of mankind—he'd make a profit.

IN MOVIELAND

By Gloria Yarbrough

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Gone, apparently, are the days when movie queens were picked from the ranks of hashslingers and beauty contest winners. Stars of the future will have to be intelligent as well as beautiful—so so say the bosses at one Hollywood studio.

Six lovely young things with college sheepskins neatly filed away in their memory books have arrived at Universal-International, to be intellectual.

Even so, the studio has decreed that all starlets shall pose for cheesecake during the first five years of their contracts (if they last that long). Brainy women must have sex appeal too.

Four of the six studied drama at college but only one was really preparing for an acting career.

"I took drama simply because I liked it better than any other subject," said Peggie Castle, from Mills College. Peggie is a blonde, with blue eyes. "When my husband went overseas I wanted to do something, so I started acting in soap operas."

Dark-haired Ann Pearce, a graduate of the University of Southern California, was a pre-medical student until she switched to drama in her senior year.

"I finally decided that I wanted to act," she said. "But I think my pre-med training will help. Both doctors and actors have to study people."

Dorothy Hart, the gal who had the acting career in mind all the time, went through Western Reserve in two and one-half years, "so that I wouldn't be an old lady by the time I got on Broadway." Dorothy, a blue-eyed brunette, modeled in New York to pay for music and drama lessons.

Peggy Dow, another blonde, has a degree from Northwestern. Said Peggy: "Whether you can sing or dance doesn't make any difference at the studio. They'll teach you. I told them I couldn't, but I wound up doing both."

Helena Carter, a green-eyed redhead from Columbia University, has been taking diction lessons for a year to polish off a British accent. A literature major, Helena said an acting career never entered her head. "It was just a matter of circumstance, and quite a surprise, when I got a bid."

Donna Martel, signed right off the campus of Los Angeles City College, wants to make films abroad and wants to be a wife and mother some day. She can't see any conflict between the two pursuits.

The girls are unanimous in the belief that a college education is a great asset to an actress. Said Peggie Castle:

"The college girl has more tolerance. She has a sharper perception of human traits and characteristics and is, therefore, better equipped to imitate them. There is no place in the movie industry for a biased viewpoint."

Only one question seems to await an answer: Can they act?

Former Nazi Dies In Hospital Near Rome

ROME, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Police said today that Otto Wachter, identified as the former Nazi gauleiter of Galicia, died in a Catholic hospital in Rome last July 14.

The chief of the foreigners' section of police headquarters said "it is possible he was a secondary personage in the assassination of Austrian Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss" 15 years ago.

He added, however, that police had no evidence supporting a Rome newspaper report that Wachter organized the assassination which occurred during an unsuccessful coup attempt by Austrian nationalists.

The 44-year old Wachter was taken to a hospital after he became seriously ill in a refugee camp.

Wachter, as gauleiter of Galicia, was allegedly responsible for the deaths of thousands of Polish Jews.

Flaming Tank Truck Driven To Safe Area

MORLAND, Kans., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A heroic gasoline truck driver last night piloted his blazing vehicle through Morland in a vain effort to save the town from damage.

The driver, George Richmeier, leaped from the roaring tanker minutes before a blast ripped it apart.

In the wake of his flaming dash were two automobiles that burned and exploded, two blazing business houses, and a burning string of trees.

No one was injured.

The truck, owned by a Farmers' Cooperative Association caught fire as it was being filled. Sensing the possibility of a spreading fire and explosion that might destroy the town's business section, Richmeier jumped into the truck's cab and sped toward the city limits.

Gasoline pouring from the rear of the tank blazed in streams along the street. The truck struck two parked cars and they burned and exploded. When his truck stalled, Richmeier leaped from the cab. The violent explosion followed.

A billard parlor, set afire by the gasoline, was destroyed with damage estimated at $5,000, a restaurant was damaged, but firemen saved most of it.

GUERRILLAS DISARMED

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Greek guerrillas driven across the Albanian border by Athens government troops have been disarmed and sent to concentration camps, the Albanian radio in Tirana said today.

The broadcast quoted a communique from the Albanian national defense ministry as saying 225 guerrillas "among them a large number of wounded" crossed the Albanian frontier near the Grammos area last Sunday and Monday.

Air Force Wants War Plants Safe From Possible Attacks

By Elton C. Fay

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A quiet but persistent effort of the air force to get warplane factories moved out of potential bombing target zones will be stepped up next week.

Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington is scheduled to fly to Seattle on Tuesday, accompanied by production experts and other officials of his department, to talk with the Boeing Aircraft Company.

Officials explain that in the case of the Boeing plant or any of the other plane factories the air force's primary interest is in having production of military craft dispersed and moved inland from danger areas along the coasts.

Where the companies build commercial type planes is no business of the airforce, they say.

In the case of one contract with Boeing that for the new, high speed jet bomber, the B-47—the air force reached a "firm understanding" with the company these planes are to be made at its Wichita, Kan. plant instead of at the coastal plant in Seattle, officials said.

(During the war, clauses were written into contracts requiring production at specified places, but it was unclear whether such a clause went into the postwar B-47 contract.)

However, Boeing has other military plane contracts for production or development and what the air force apparently aims at is to get this work moved to the inland Wichita plant.

In addition, some officials say it might be difficult to induce skilled workers who are longtime residents of Seattle to move to Wichita, thus requiring training of new artisans.

At present, the Boeing Seattle plant is turning out B50s, the modern version of the wartime B-29.

But of greater interest to the air force is the fact that Boeing is working on development o fthe XB-52, a heavy bomber, jet-powered. That bomber, the air force has indicated, may become the successor to the B-36, the intercontinental bomber powered by six reciprocating engines with four jet "pods" attached for added speed and climb in emergencies. If an experimental model is found satisfactory, the air force wants to see actual production of the plane carried out at some less exposed point than the northwest coast, it is suggested.

Other plane manufacturers are keeping a sharpy eye on developments in the Boeing transfer case, although the Boeing plant seems to be the only currently active objective of the air force's plant dispersal program.

At least four other large companies which do business with the air force also are located on the west coast—Lockheed, North American, Douglas, and Consolidated Vultee, all of them in California. Consolidated Vultee makes B-36s at the government-owned but company-operated factory at Fort Worth although it still operates the California plant at San Diego.

The air force belief that concentrations of plane factories should be broken up and dispersed rests primarily on the danger of enemy attack, although there are other factors. The air force argument goes something like this:

The major danger lies in attack not only by long-range bombers (which could hit inland cities as well as coastal targets) but from carrier-borne planes or medium-range guided missiles launched from enemy submarines surfacing close to the Pacific or Atlantic coasts. Present-day range of such missiles is about 200 miles. The striking radius of carrier-based planes may be about 500. Therefore the danger zone extends inland from both coasts for several hundred miles.

In addition to the mere presence of individual airplane plants in the two zones there is the added factor of high concentration. Defense officials have prepared, as an example, a chart of the Los Angeles area purporting to show that six atomic bomb bursts in that one area could wipe out all factories of the Lockheed, Consolidated Vultee, and Douglas plants, together with other military installations. Therefore, the argument goes, such plants should be scattered over wide geographic areas.

The air force also presents arguments for production factors, aside from the bomb danger case. Looking ahead to the possibility of another war with accompanying acute production problems, the air force says there are these factors:

Widely scattered plane plants would mean that a better supply of labor would exist. Many plants in one area creates a labor shortage. Similarily, it is contended, a heavy concentration of plants creates bottlenecks in transportation of raw materials and power shortages.

YOUTH BURIED

to send specifications for the steel caisson to the Elkhart Bridge and Iron Co.

A welder working in the plant on his own called in other workers and made the big cylinder, 42 inches in diameter and 20 feet long.

An hour and a half later Charles Miller, plant superintendent, was back at the Peterson farm with the big pipe. A derrick had been brought to lower it. But the pipe was too big. The well narrowed part of the way down.

Welders went to work on the spot, cutting out a 10-inch strip. The second time it fit, and rescuers began scooping the sand that had kept Sanders cramped in a sitting position.

At first he had called up, "It's no use."

"I thought I was going to die," he said today. "Then all I could think of was how cold and numb by legs were. I couldn't feel a thing in them."

Rescue workers, while waiting for the caisson, tried to cheer him by talking down the hole to him.

When rescue was near, the boy's spirits brightened; some of the color of his Chicago South Side neighborhood began to flow into his talk.

He seemed astounded when he saw a crowd of some 500 spectators as he was hoisted out by the crane cable.

The boy had been visiting in the home of Peterson, a former Seabee from Chicago, and had intended to return to Chicago by bus last night. He lives with his mother at 6446 Stony Island Ave., in Chicago.

but they quickly assured him by telegram there would be no charge for the good turn.

'A SWELL KID'

Little Mickey Cottrell, red-headed, bright-eyed Monroe youngster who'll have one of the swellest birthdays in his young life today, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cottrell, 1002 North 7th street.

Mickey is the second of the Cottrell children to be stricken with polio. Rodney, 14, also was taken to the New Orleans clinic but returned last week. However, he and Mr. and Mrs. Cottrell were in New Orleans last night to be with Mickey tomorrow when he's made an honorary fireman and given other presents to make his birthday a day long to remember.

"He's a swell little kid," one of his neighbors said last night. "He deserves everything they'll do for him, and, all of us are praying for his speedy recovery.

Mr. Cottrell is an attorney and a representative of a life insurance company here.

As all know, this building served as the city's high school until the Neville High was erected in the nineteen thirties. The senior class of 1931 erected a sundial on the campus on which were listed names of the city school board members at the time: "Mayor Arnold Bernstein (ex-officio); Ernest L. Neville, superintendent; Mrs. Theo Terzia, Will Faulk, T. E. Flournoy and J. M. Cobb."

Interviewed concerning this school, Mr. Neville declared that the structure has never been condemned as a whole or in part and added that when the Neville High School was erected, that the builders of Neville made an exhaustive investigation of Central Grammar School and reported to him that it was amazingly well built and predicted that it would stand with little need for reconstruction for fully 50 more years. Mr. Neville stated that any talk that the school building is condemned is wholly incorrect. When it was erected, however, was before his time.

A few months more and it will be 50 years old it appears.

"My next door neighbors are so interested in my affairs that they cut a hole out of my hedge about as long as a new Hudson car, while I was away.

"It had grown a little too high and they could not see over it or through it so they cut it where they could be sure not to miss a single move we make. So you see I wish I lived next to the vacant lot instead of on the side being constantly reviewed.

Although they live as ranchers along the isolated border of Colorado and Wyoming, they are supplied with the delivery of a newspaper once weekly, made by airplane.

This airplane newspaper delivery is carried out by the Continental Divide Aviation Company of Rawlins, Wyo., which last month initiated this unique delivery service over a 400-mile route. Ranch houses, as far apart as five to ten miles, are served. The cost of delivery is 25 cents a week and the goal insight is that of 500 customers.

When a delivery is made, the ranch house is "buzzed" to make sure that notice is taken of the delivery. Newspapers are specially wrapped so that they will not become mutilated when they fall to the ground.

Sister Allie Colquitt, much beloved house mother in the St. Francis Nurses dormitory on Oak street here, is to leave for Shreveport September 10 to accept a similar post with Schumpert Sanitarium. The change is necessary because of illness among relatives, and Shreveport is her native home.

For five and one-half years, Sister Allie has ministered to the girls in the nurses home, cared for them when sick, encouraged them when the world may have presented personal problems, and cheered when homesickness has clouded their landscape.

In a kindly, sympathetic, yet ever modest manner, she has been just the friend that is needed when a young woman has lacked consolation. It is needless to say that her leaving will be a cause for sincere regret. Her place as yet is unfilled. It is a position that will be most difficult to fill for there are unfortunately few "Miss Allie's" in the world today.

PUNISHING MATERIAL FOR COWBOYS

Untamed broncs and fierce Brahma bulls congregate near bleacher seats at the eastern end of Gentry's Arena in West Monroe. Brought in early last week the "bucking stuff" is rested and ready to go. Owner Homer Todd, who has furnished stock for the North Louisiana Rodeo Association for the last three years, promises the riders of these animals a rough time. In the foreground may be seen the steel fence at the arena which protects spectators from enraged bulls and wild horses. Counted one of the finest arenas in the nation by cowboys, the stands can hold several thousand fans. Shows start Monday night. (Staff photo by Leon C. Noland, Jr.)

rodeo, prompting officials to tak that performance "Governor's Night."

A touch of the modern has been added to the parade with an announcement that automobile dealers in Monroe will place their new model convertibles in the parade.

Assembling on the vacant lot on Commerce street in front of the store, riders will follow Parade Marshal D. C. Metcalf down Wood to Trenton street, left to the new traffic bride and across to Walnut where they turn left again.

Striking DeSiard street the assemblage will turn left, clomping down to South Sixth street at Five Points where they take a right turn, traveling to Grammont street. On Grammont the colorful group will head east to South Grand, cross DeSiard street and then disband.

A hearty welcome to every rider in northeast Louisiana who can sit a nag, mule, or a prancing saddle horse has been issued by the president of the North Louisiana Rodeo Association, Hayes Gentry.

Top riders of the American Rodeo Association from all over the nation will be on hand Monday night to take their chances atop fresh, catankerous stock provided by Homer Todd. Todd's bucking stock has been in the West Monroe arena grounds for a week and should present many sore spots to the buckaroos.

Bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bull-dogging, and Brahma bull riding will be wide open for those who like to take a ride. A purse totaling as high as any offered in the south will further enhance the rider's prospects.

A large number of those western acts which have grew up around rodeos will be present each night to entertain fans. A special feel of the Old West is forthcoming with the tribal dances and songs produced by a group of real Ote Indians.

Dallas' colorful quadrille, trick riders and ropers in the persons of Don and Jean McLaughlin, horses dancing to the tune of a whip in Busbarn's Liberty Act, and Tony Martin's popular rodeo band have been signed by W. H. "Smitty" Smith, association vice-president.

Combining clowning with a very real service in drawing the rage of the big Brahma bulls will be John Lindsey and Ike Tacker. Tacker, with his trained mule, and Lindsey with his trained bull are always crowd favorites.

Tickets will be on sale at the rodeo grounds each night and at Tom Hicks' office in West Monroe at all times.

a small, closely-knit, seasoned staff who have a thorough knowledge of government procurement. Since opening a downtown conference office in the Washington building, nearer all government buildings, so much time has been saved we are now in a position to accept additional accounts on a yearly or special assignment basis.

"Being versatile we will act as YOUR government representative and expediter at any of the 1,800 agencies, departments, bureaus, corporations or other units and we can also represent you with foreign governments.

"Without claiming to perform miracles we modestly admit that we have 'pulled a few rabbits out of hats' for some of our clients, and we guarantee that every transaction will be handled with dispatch and that all business will be held in strictest confidence."

"When 'in trouble with the government' or if you need or want anything done in Washington it may pay you big dividends to get in touch with us."

Mundt said the ageny's letter was given to him by a fellow senator who, in turn, had received it from a manufacturer. He declined to identify the other senator.

The letter was signed Earl C. Noyes, and Mundt said he felt the senate committee should look into his operations.

"Without condemning him," the senator said. "I would like to check up to see how he exercises his activities."

Told that the committee had a copy of his sales letter, Noyes said:

"For many years we've been helping small manufacturers and other businessmen throughout the country to do business with the government that would be mutually satisfactory and profitable.

"The senate 'five percenter' investigation has chased the phonies and influence peddlers out of Washington and now many other smaller businessmen will need legitimate representation here by a firm which can and will need legitimate representation here by a firm which can and will do an honest job of expediting their problems with the government. And that's the kind of business we're trying to do."

Noyes' letter mentioned the passage of appropriation bills by congress and added, "You know that when a government agency gets money they spend it."

"Contractors, manufacturers and suppliers of all kinds who go after this business intelligently and quickly should get their fair share, for the military now purchase about 5,800,000 separate items."

Attached to the letter was a reprint of a magazine article (United States News and World Report) citing the many different things the government buys. Some excerpts from the article were quoted in the letter, such as:

"What is needed most is a competent salesman who knows where the business is and how to go about getting it." . . . "Knowing when and where to bid is a full-time job."

The letter was undated. The attacked magazine article was from the July 1 issue of this year.

Earlier both Mundt and Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.), another member of the investigating committee, said Vaughan likely will be recalled as a witness at future hearings.

He was grilled for two days this week. He denied any wrongdoing but acknowledged doing favors for friends and others.

Calling Vaughan's reappearance "very probable," Mundt said he expects the presidential aide will figure in testimony about new evidence now being uncovered from tips received by committee members.

TITO DENIES

thorities are afraid of showing the results of socialism in Yugoslavia as would be done through Yugoslav exhibits.

The government also denounced Hungary's refusal to permit a delegation from this country to participate in a "world congress" at Budapest.

For the past week rumors have spread through Europe and America that Russia is sending troops to the Yugoslavia border. A widely-publicized N. E. said five Soviet divisions were grouped in Romania and Hungary near Tito's frontier.

In Washington, Secretary of State Acheson said such reports appear to be part of a war of nerves. U. S. and British diplomatic sources in London said they'd heard nothing to indicate the report were anything but rumors. American army circles in Austria were skeptical of the reports.

Belgrade itself remained calm amid the flood of rumors.

Joza Vilfan, Tito's spokesman at the United Nations, was asked by reporters in London how he felt about Russian threats against his country.

"There is always a feeling of confidence in Yugoslavia," he said.

Russian threats against the Balkan country began 15 months ago when the Moscow-run cominform accused Tito of not following the Kremlin's political line.

Today, the Petars and the Mishas of Yugoslavia—the average men and women who work for their daily bread—reacted calmly to the news that Tito had severed two of his chief commercial ties with Russia.

Word that the joint Yugoslav-Russian civil aviation and Danube river shipping companies had been dissolved came as no surprise to the Yugoslav people.

The agreement under which most of Tito's aerial and water shipping was handled by these companies had, in effect, stopped operating months ago.

It was the same sort of arrangement Russia set up with other satellite states when the war ended. In the role of a big brother, Moscow lent its name along with a promise to push the development of joint enterprises in the mutual interests of Communist nations.

Charges of negligent homicide were filed by state police against the driver of the truck which struck Robert Seay, about 30, of Mer Rouge, in which he and the two mules were killed officers said. The driver was identified as Linkman Gatson, Negro, of Monroe.

Sheriff Harp said that the wagon pulled by the team of mules was demolished. The wagon was traveling south and the truck was headed north. Gatson was being held in the Morehouse parish jail late Saturday, the sheriff stated.

ing their arrest. They also denied they were with Thomas the night of the crime.

Greenlee was then placed on the stand. He denied knowing either of the other defendants prior to his arrest. He said he hitchhiked to Groveland with Thomas the night of the attack and that they went to a shed near a filling station. Greenlee testified Thomas asked him to keep a gun, left the weapon with him and departed. Greenlee said he went to sleep but awoke some time later and went to a filling station for a drink of water.

He testified it was then that he was taken into custody.

Later, Greenlee said, he was confronted with the alleged rape victim and her husband. The defendant quoted the woman as saying: "Well, he looks like the one." The husband was unable to identify him as one of the assailants, Greenlee testified.

In reporting the crime, the young woman's husband told authorities he was beaten and robbed by four Negroes shortly before his wife was raped.

The state presented a series of witnesses in an effort to establish positive identification of the three Negroes.

Deputy Sheriff Rames L. Yates, who was on the stand when court recessed yesterday, testified he found the car in which the Negroes were riding the night of the alleged attack in front of the home of Irvin. He arrested Irvin and Shepherd at the time.

Plaster of paris casts of tire tracks, taken at the scene of the alleged attack, and of footprints at the scene of the fight between the Negroes and the victim's husband were offered in evidence.

Yates said the tire tracks were the same as those on the Negroes' car, and the footprints were those of Irvin. The defense vigorously objected to introduction of the casts, but was overruled by the court.

Harry McDonald, Groveland night watchman, said he arrested Greenlee about 3:30 a.m. that morning when he saw him with a pistol.

Greenlee was later identified by the young farm wife as one of her attackers.

The attack occurred on a lonely rural sideroad. The woman declared she did not fight or resist the Negroes because she "was scared," * * * and knew she "had to do it, or be killed."

19TH YEAR

The change will provide much larger and better arranged facilities for the work of this group.

The entire third floor of Brown hall has been assigned to the commerce department, which hitherto has been scattered over various parts of the building. This will permit a better degree of centralization of academic function both for the department of commerce and for the other classes taught in Brown hall.

The opening of the fall term will also mark the first complete year for use of the handsome new science building that was completed during the past spring. This building, rated by many observers as the finest in the state, houses all the classes and laboratories for chemistry, physics, biology, home economics and agriculture.

Prospective students are invited to call at the administration office of the college to arrange for admission. Offices will be open daily, except Sundays, and Labor Day. Appointments may be arranged by mail or by calling telephone No. 4200.

Actual sponsors of the new concert are People's Artists, Inc., which arranged the original meeting, and the Westchester citizens "law and order committee." The latter group organized during the week to help Robeson's second attempt.

Earlier today the committee lost a round when Federal Judge John W. Clancy in New York City refused to grant an injunction to stop the proposed veterans parade. He said his court had no jurisdiction, and called the committee request "a cheeky application."

2 DIE, 6 SAVED IN PLANE CRASH

Most Crewmen Parachute From Crippled Flying Boxcar

FAIRFIELD, Calif., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Parachutes saved six from a crippled air force flying boxcar troop carrier just before the plane crashed last night killing two crewmen.

The C-82 shattered and burned in marshland near the mouth of the Sacramento river shortly after 10:40 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time)—the time when the pilot radioed that one of his two engines had quit.

The pilot and copilot died in an attempt to bring the plane down safely. They were only 30 miles from their destination of Alameda Naval Air Base on San Francisco Bay. The plane had left Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, only a few hours earlier.

Headquarters of Fairfield-Suisun Air Force Base here identified the victims as Lieut. Vess J. Ward, Jr., 26, the pilot, and Lieut. John G. Page, 31, copilot.

Ward's parents live at Gilman City, Mo., and his widow at Greenville, S. C. Page's parents live at Benson, N. C. His wife, Erna, was reported visiting in Los Angeles.

The survivors, none seriously injured were:

Technical Sergeants Kermit H. Carlson and Charles W. Sturdevant, of the 37th troop carrier division, Greenville Air Force Base, and Kenneth J. Giorno, Fifth rescue squadron, also of the Greenville base.

Lieut. Col. Robert E. Horton, headquarters training command, Barksdale Field, La.

Capt. Horace G. Deston, R. O. T. C. instructor at the University of Denver.

Second Lieut, Roy W. Chamberlain, Eglin Air Force, Fla.

Carlson and Sturdevant were crew members of the plane. The others were passengers. The craft was carrying freight from Lowry base to Alameda.

The only injuries suffered by the parachutists were bruises and "the normal shock of parachute landings," the field said.

Sgt. Carlson hit the ground near Gird's Landing and from a farm house telephoned news of the accident to Fairfield-Suisun base. He said he was the last to make the jump.

The pilots apparently attempted to make an emergency landing and smashed into a drainage ditch. Then it plowed on through the marshland. Wreckage was strewn nearly a mile.

the state chaplain, will deliver the sermon at mass.

The first business session of the convention which is expected to be the largest held here this year, will be held at the Virginia Hotel at 10:50 a. m. today. Highlights of the Sunday program will be the annual banquet, to be held on the Virginia roof, at 7:30 p. m., and the coronation ball to be held at the Progressive Men's Club at Selman Field, starting at 10 p. m.

Speakers at the banquet will be U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long, Bishop Charles Greco of Alexandria, George Piazza, of New Orleans, R. Dalla Rosa, Italian consul, also of New Orleans, and Frank Fulco, Shreveport, president of the National Federation of Young Men's Clubs. Approximately 500 reservations already have been made for the banquet. Among other distinguished guests to attend the banquet will be Judge Charles Anzalone, and Calagero Occhipinti, both presidents of New Orleans clubs, and Sam Raine, Birmingham, Ala., president of the club there.

Two business sessions are scheduled for today, one at 10 a. m. and the other at 2:30 p. m. Officers for the coming year will be elected at the afternoon session. Entertainment features Sunday will include a luncheon in the Crystal ballroom of the Virginia Hotel for all officers, governors, distinguished guests and their wives, and a boat ride for registered ladies of the convention at 4 p. m.

The final business session of the convention will be held at 9:30 p. m. Monday, to be followed Monday afternoon by the championship softball playoff at Selman Field.

the nation's economic and political life.

"On the world front, the leaders of the Kremlin are also gambling upon a depression to weaken American resistance and to enable them to gain dominion over all of Europe and Asia. We must not allow that depression to take place."

Philip Murray, head of the C. I. O., said:

"For our own sake, and for the cause of freedom everywhere, we must show that free collective bargaining works in behalf of all the people; that we can avert mass unemployment and in fact, constantly raise our living standards; that our government acts vigorously, at all times and in all places, to avert hardship and distress, while buttressing our civil liberties and our economic rights.

"The C. I. O. is committed to these goals, and determined that they shall quickly be achieved. Workers in America are devoted to the preservation and strengthening of our democratic way of life against the attacks of all totalitarians. We will fight, and fight hard, against all who seek to undermine our liberties or encroach upon our standards of living."

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, said:

"In too many areas, sweatshop working conditions still persist. These bring adverse effects upon the whole economy. They tend to drag down wages in high-wage areas, reduce the work week, and cause work to flow into sweatshop establishments. They also have an adverse effect-upon decent business management, for the lowest wages have an effect reaching to the extreme end of our economy."

the destination, number of miles flown, and estimated cost."

Johnson figured his idea of the senators buying airline tickets would save his department some $25,000. He said the armed services do not have aircraft to spare for such purposes, and also could not justify competing with commercial airlines as passenger carriers.

Thomas had been trying to arrange an inspection trip to Europe by the senate appropriations subcommittee on military funds, which he heads. Some of the senators planned to continue the planned aerial tour to the middle and near east, then home across the Pacific.

In his letter to Johnson today, Thomas took note of the cabinet member's economy hints. Then he said:

"If it is advisable for congressional parties, who make the policies for government and provide the funds to keep it a going concern, to use private airplane facilities, then it occurs to at least one member of this committee that such a program would be advisable for other executive officials."

Thomas also served notice on Johnson that he has told members of the appropriations committee staff to check the logs of aircraft activities at nearby airforce and navy fields.

The senator asked Johnson to furnish him full data on the flights of other government officials.

This is the information he requested about Johnson's own jaunts:

"A description of each airplane trip made at government expense by the present secretary of defense since taking office, including length of trip, origin and destination, number of miles flown, purpose of trip, a complete list of persons accompanying the secretary, and the estimated cost of each trip, including cost of crew."

Before making public his pungent letter to the cabinet official Thomas had told a reporter that congress might have to fix a policy about who could ride government planes.

Thomas said that information on use of government planes by both congressional and executive officials would help save money.

Other information he asked of Johnson included:

1. Descriptions like that of Johnson's trips made by secretaries and assistant secretaries of the army, navy and air force, the chiefs of staff and Vice-President Barkley since January 1.

2. The number of trips made by all military aircraft to the winter White House at Key West during Mr. Truman's last two visits.

3. A complete list of all government personnel with aircraft assigned to their use, with all costs involved.

4. "Number of planes and number of trips and estimated cost of trips to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., during the much publicized 'unification party' week-end. Give total cost of entire party." This referred to a recent get-together of top brass of the three services in a move to smooth out operations.

5. Whether planes used by individuals are placed in a pool or are on a standby basis.

Senator Reed (R.-Kas.), a member of the subcommittee who does not plan to make the trip to Europe, told a reporter he is not so sure that Johnson is right in his attitude toward the committee's flight. Said he:

"If there is a need for travel on urgent government business, why should congressmen be forced to hire private planes when hundreds of army planes are standing around, not in active use?"

COLLEGE YOUTH

murder charge was filed against Petersen today.

"I fired six times. I think I got her with five of six."

An instructor at Southern Methodist University where young Petersen was a junior journalism student described him as: "neurotic, intellectual, very spoiled and highly intelligent. When he talks about himself you have the feeling he is sitting off on a perch, looking at himself."

"I don't think I am crazy," he said of himself today. "I suppose I did something abominable, but I think I am very sane. But insanity probably will be the plea—I have tried suicide twice, you know. My father thinks I'm as crazy as hell—told me so when he and mother came up here to see me last night."

The tall, handsome, Petersen sighed, and went on:

"I loved the girl I murdered so very much. She was very, very attractive. She was five feet three inches tall, she had brown eyes, dark hair, olive skin and a very trim figure. She was getting away from me and I didn't want to let her go. I haven't been able to eat or sleep—for two weeks I've lived on a bowl of soup a day. My weight has dropped from 215 to 186.

"Early yesterday afternoon I called her and asked her if I couldn't buy season tickets for us for the Dallas symphony concerts this winter. She said no. I called her again and asked her if I might see her occasionally. She refused. It was a blow. Last February we had decided to be married this month.

"I went up to see Carolyn. She told me she was going to be married next week.

"I tried to hit her with the pistol. She grabbed at it and I started shooting.

"I really don't think she was very surprised.

"I kept on shooting. After the six bullets were fired I started to reload. Then I saw blood staining her white blouse. She stirred, slightly, and said 'oh.' I felt her pulse, then pushed aside her butcher red linen jacket and felt her heart. I couldn't feel any beat. I bent down and picked her up and kissed her dying lips."

EUROPE COUNCIL TO ASK U. S. AID

Plan To Bolster European Economy Cheered By 12-Nation Delegates

By Joseph E. Dynan

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Europe's consultative assembly today called for a European economic union and made plans to seek American aid in its creation.

The union would have a free money market and a single preferential trading system embracing European colonies and empires, and perhaps a single postage stamp.

The assembly of 101 delegates from 12 nations voted overwhelming by a show of hands to call upon the ministerial committee, the upper house of the Council of Europe, to prepare such a program of economic union. The ministerial committee is to meet here next month to consider the recommendation.

Plans are afoot to send a delegation headed by Assembly President Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium to Washington while the British-American dollar talks are in progress. The delegation's job would be to request tariff cuts and to negotiate for treaty changes—such as the United States' "most favored nation" trade agreements.

In effect, the proposed economic union would extend Britain's preferential trading system—by which trade with her empire and colonies receive favored treatment in tariff rates—to the French, Dutch and Belgian empires and eventually to the other European members of the Council—Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Luxembourg, Greece and Turkey.

Such a union would run counter to the "most favored nation" treaties these nations now have with the United States. Washington's permission would be necessary before one member could give its neighbors better trading rights than Americans now enjoy.

Britain's Socialists voted in favor of a free money market—letteing European currencies find their own level with relation to one another—when assured this would not involve removing control of European currencies in their relation to the dollar.

At the same time British Conservatives helped carry a proposal that a system of "guaranteed European markets" be set up. Hugh Dalton, British cabinet member, explained this meant that "one country will offer to purchase from another, for a considerable stated period of time, a definite amount of that country's products."

This was a victory for British labor's planned economy ideas. If carried out it would be a continuation of purchasing agreements between European governments—a form of bilateral trading rather than general multilateral trading favored by the United States.

The assembly called atention of "the peoples of Europe of the gravity of the peril in which they are living and the advantages of uniting their resources in a common effort to regain solvency."

The program, prepared by the young British Conservative, David Eccles and presented by the assembly's economic committee headed by Former Premier Paul Reynoud of France, also urged the ministerial committee to:

Create permanent machinery for consultation on credit polices.

Study ways of encouraging Americans to invest in Europe.

Investigate European production with a view to reduction of imports from non-European countries.

Organize inter-European conferences of employers, workers and consumers on increasing industrial and agricultural production.

zations to support the Peekskill veterns. The cross is a sign of a crusade and not of violence. Light up the skies of America in protest of communism."

The imperial ruling directed the first of the crosses to be burned at Valdosta, Ga., tonight.

In passing, the Knights via Hendrix said "we of the Invisible Empire protest and denounce Paul Robeson and communism."

Demonstrating veterans and those who attended a concert scheduled by Robeson last week clashed in a riot which left eight injured, two seriously. While the riot was in progress a cross flamed on a nearby hill.

Robeson has another concert scheduled for tomorrow afternoon which New York's Gov. Thomas Dewey has described as "pro-communist."

The Knights are the latest of the Klan organizations to be formed in the south. Its organization was announced by Hendrix shortly after the death of Imperial Wizard Samuel Green of the Association of Georgia Klans two weeks ago. Hendrix said his group is not affiliated with other Klan groups in Georgia and Alabama.

The title for the head man "Samuel II" presumably was in honor of Samuel No. 1.

However, in the direct succession in the Georgia Klan there is another Samuel, who stepped into Dr. Green's shoes, office and income tax lawsuit. This one is Samuel Roper, Imperial Wizard of the Georgia Klans.

Dr. Lycurgus Spinks, a Baptist minister, announced recently in Montgomery, Ala., he had formed a Knights of the Ku Klux Klan with himself as imperial emperor. Another Klan group is known as the Federated Klans of Alabama.

Air Force Wants War Plants Safe From Possible Attacks

By Elton C. Fay

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A quiet but persistent effort of the air force to get warplane factories moved out of potential bombing target zones will be stepped up next week.

Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington is scheduled to fly to Seattle on Tuesday, accompanied by production experts and other officials of his department, to talk with the Boeing Aircraft Company.

Officials explain that in the case of the Boeing plant or any of the other plane factories the air force's primary interest is in having production of military craft dispersed and moved inland from danger areas along the coasts.

Where the companies build commercial type planes is no business of the airforce, they say.

In the case of one contract with Boeing that for the new, high speed jet bomber, the B-47—the air force reached a "firm understanding" with the company these planes are to be made at its Wichita, Kan. plant instead of at the coastal plant in Seattle, officials said.

(During the war, clauses were written into contracts requiring production at specified places, but it was unclear whether such a clause went into the postwar B-47 contract.)

However, Boeing has other military plane contracts for production or development and what the air force apparently aims at is to get this work moved to the inland Wichita plant.

In addition, some officials say it might be difficult to induce skilled workers who are longtime residents of Seattle to move to Wichita, thus requiring training of new artisans.

At present, the Boeing Seattle plant is turning out B50s, the modern version of the wartime B-29.

But of greater interest to the air force is the fact that Boeing is working on development o fthe XB-52, a heavy bomber, jet-powered. That bomber, the air force has indicated, may become the successor to the B-36, the intercontinental bomber powered by six reciprocating engines with four jet "pods" attached for added speed and climb in emergencies. If an experimental model is found satisfactory, the air force wants to see actual production of the plane carried out at some less exposed point than the northwest coast, it is suggested.

Other plane manufacturers are keeping a sharpy eye on developments in the Boeing transfer case, although the Boeing plant seems to be the only currently active objective of the air force's plant dispersal program.

At least four other large companies which do business with the air force also are located on the west coast—Lockheed, North American, Douglas, and Consolidated Vultee, all of them in California. Consolidated Vultee makes B-36s at the government-owned but company-operated factory at Fort Worth although it still operates the California plant at San Diego.

The air force belief that concentrations of plane factories should be broken up and dispersed rests primarily on the danger of enemy attack, although there are other factors. The air force argument goes something like this:

The major danger lies in attack not only by long-range bombers (which could hit inland cities as well as coastal targets) but from carrier-borne planes or medium-range guided missiles launched from enemy submarines surfacing close to the Pacific or Atlantic coasts. Present-day range of such missiles is about 200 miles. The striking radius of carrier-based planes may be about 500. Therefore the danger zone extends inland from both coasts for several hundred miles.

In addition to the mere presence of individual airplane plants in the two zones there is the added factor of high concentration. Defense officials have prepared, as an example, a chart of the Los Angeles area purporting to show that six atomic bomb bursts in that one area could wipe out all factories of the Lockheed, Consolidated Vultee, and Douglas plants, together with other military installations. Therefore, the argument goes, such plants should be scattered over wide geographic areas.

The air force also presents arguments for production factors, aside from the bomb danger case. Looking ahead to the possibility of another war with accompanying acute production problems, the air force says there are these factors:

Widely scattered plane plants would mean that a better supply of labor would exist. Many plants in one area creates a labor shortage. Similarily, it is contended, a heavy concentration of plants creates bottlenecks in transportation of raw materials and power shortages.

to send specifications for the steel caisson to the Elkhart Bridge and Iron Co.

A welder working in the plant on his own called in other workers and made the big cylinder, 42 inches in diameter and 20 feet long.

An hour and a half later Charles Miller, plant superintendent, was back at the Peterson farm with the big pipe. A derrick had been brought to lower it. But the pipe was too big. The well narrowed part of the way down.

Welders went to work on the spot, cutting out a 10-inch strip. The second time it fit, and rescuers began scooping the sand that had kept Sanders cramped in a sitting position.

At first he had called up, "It's no use."

"I thought I was going to die," he said today. "Then all I could think of was how cold and numb by legs were. I couldn't feel a thing in them."

Rescue workers, while waiting for the caisson, tried to cheer him by talking down the hole to him.

When rescue was near, the boy's spirits brightened; some of the color of his Chicago South Side neighborhood began to flow into his talk.

He seemed astounded when he saw a crowd of some 500 spectators as he was hoisted out by the crane cable.

The boy had been visiting in the home of Peterson, a former Seabee from Chicago, and had intended to return to Chicago by bus last night. He lives with his mother at 6446 Stony Island Ave., in Chicago.

but they quickly assured him by telegram there would be no charge for the good turn.

'A SWELL KID'

Little Mickey Cottrell, red-headed, bright-eyed Monroe youngster who'll have one of the swellest birthdays in his young life today, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cottrell, 1002 North 7th street.

Mickey is the second of the Cottrell children to be stricken with polio. Rodney, 14, also was taken to the New Orleans clinic but returned last week. However, he and Mr. and Mrs. Cottrell were in New Orleans last night to be with Mickey tomorrow when he's made an honorary fireman and given other presents to make his birthday a day long to remember.

"He's a swell little kid," one of his neighbors said last night. "He deserves everything they'll do for him, and all of us are praying for his speedy recovery.

Mr. Cottrell is an attorney and a representative of a life insurance company here.

As all know, this building served as the city's high school until the Neville High was erected in the nineteen thirties. The senior class of 1931 erected a sundial on the campus on which were listed names of the city school board members at the time: "Mayor Arnold Bernstein (ex-officio); Ernest L. Neville, superintendent; Mrs. Theo Terzia, Will Faulk, T. E. Flournoy and J. M. Cobb."

Interviewed concerning this school, Mr. Neville declared that the structure has never been condemned as a whole or in part and added that when the Neville High School was erected, that the builders of Neville made an exhaustive investigation of Central Grammar School and reported to him that it was amazingly well built and predicted that it would stand with little need for reconstruction for fully 50 more years. Mr. Neville stated that any talk that the school building is condemned is wholly incorrect. When it was erected, however, was before his time.

A few months more and it will be 50 years old it appears.

Although they live as ranchers along the isolated border of Colorado and Wyoming, they are supplied with the delivery of a newspaper once weekly, made by airplane.

This airplane newspaper delivery is carried out by the Continental Divide Aviation Company of Rawlins, Wyo., which last month initiated this unique delivery service over a 400-mile route. Ranch houses, as far apart as five to ten miles, are served. The cost of delivery is 25 cents a week and the goal insight is that of 500 customers.

When a delivery is made, the ranch house is "buzzed" to make sure that notice is taken of the delivery. Newspapers are specially wrapped so that they will not become mutilated when they fall to the ground.

Sister Allie Colquitt, much beloved house mother in the St. Francis Nurses dormitory on Oak street here, is to leave for Shreveport September 10 to accept a similar post with Schumpert Sanitarium. The change is necessary because of illness among relatives, and Shreveport is her native home.

For five and one-half years, Sister Allie has ministered to the girls in the nurses home, cared for them when sick, encouraged them when the world may have presented personal problems, and cheered when homesickness has clouded their landscape.

In a kindly, sympathetic, yet ever modest manner, she has been just the friend that is needed when a young woman has lacked consolation. It is needless to say that her leaving will be a cause for sincere regret. Her place as yet is unfilled. It is a position that will be most difficult to fill for there are unfortunately few "Miss Allie's" in the world today.

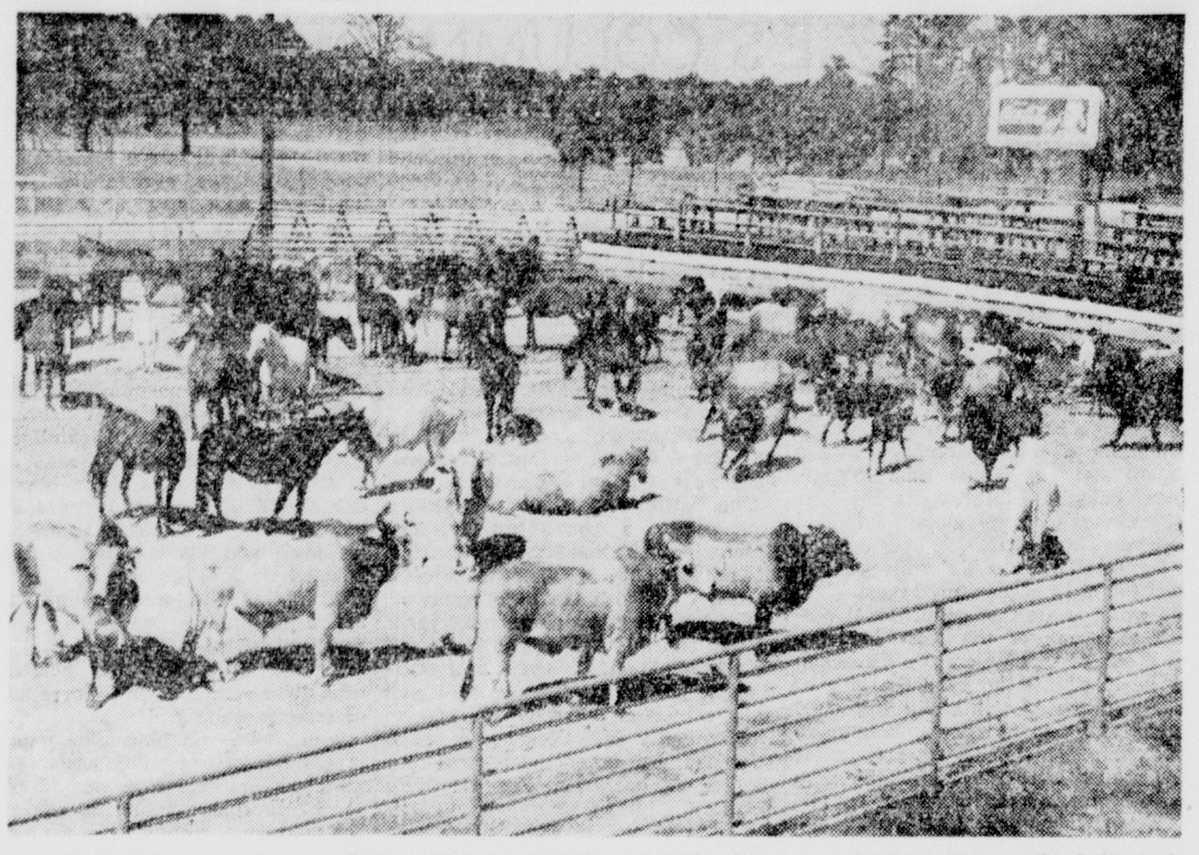
PUNISHING MATERIAL FOR COWBOYS



Untamed broncs and fierce Brahma bulls congregate near bleacher seats at the eastern end of Gentry's Arena in West Monroe. Brought in early last week the "bucking stuff" is rested and ready to go. Owner Homer Todd, who has furnished stock for the North Louisiana Rodeo Association for the last three years, promises the riders of these animals a rough time. In the foreground may be seen the steel fence at the arena which protects spectators from enraged bulls and wild horses. Counted one of the finest arenas in the nation by cowboys, the stands can hold several thousand fans. Shows start Monday night. (Staff photo by Leon C. Noland, Jr.)

rodeo, prompting officials to tak that performance "Governor's Night."

A touch of the modern has been added to the parade with an announcement that automobile dealers in Monroe will place their new model convertibles in the parade.

Assembling on the vacant lot on Commerce street in front of the store, riders will follow Parade Marshal D. C. Metcalf down Wood to Trenton street, left to the new traffic bride and across to Walnut where they turn left again.

Striking DeSiard street the assemblage will turn left, clomping down to South Sixth street at Five Points where they take a right turn, traveling to Grammont street. On Grammont the colorful group will head east to South Grand, cross DeSiard street and then disband.

A hearty welcome to every rider in northeast Louisiana who can sit a nag, mule, or a prancing saddle horse has been issued by the president of the North Louisiana Rodeo Association, Hayes Gentry.

Top riders of the American Rodeo Association from all over the nation will be on hand Monday night to take their chances atop fresh, catankerous stock provided by Homer Todd. Todd's bucking stock has been in the West Monroe arena grounds for a week and should present many sore spots to the buckaroos.

Bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bull-dogging, and Brahma bull riding will be wide open for those who like to take a ride. A purse totaling as high as any offered in the south will further enhance the rider's prospects.

A large number of those western acts which have grew up around rodeos will be present each night to entertain fans. A special feel of the Old West is forthcoming with the tribal dances and songs produced by a group of real Ote Indians.

Dallas' colorful quadrille, trick riders and ropers in the persons of Don and Jean McLaughlin, horses dancing to the tune of a whip in Busbarn's Liberty Act, and Tony Martin's popular rodeo band have been signed by W. H. "Smitty" Smith, association vice-president.

Combining clowning with a very real service in drawing the rage of the big Brahma bulls will be John Lindsey and Ike Tacker. Tacker, with his trained mule, and Lindsey with his trained bull are always crowd favorites.

Tickets will be on sale at the rodeo grounds each night and at Tom Hicks' office in West Monroe at all times.

a small, closely-knit, seasoned staff who have a thorough knowledge of government procurement. Since opening a downtown conference office in the Washington building, nearer all government buildings, so much time has been saved we are now in a position to accept additional accounts on a yearly or special assignment basis.

"Being versatile we will act as YOUR government representative and expediter at any of the 1,800 agencies, departments, bureaus, corporations or other units and we can also represent you with foreign governments.

"Without claiming to perform miracles we modestly admit that we have 'pulled a few rabbits out of hats' for some of our clients, and we guarantee that every transaction will be handled with dispatch and that all business will be held in strictest confidence."

"When 'in trouble with the government' or if you need or want anything done in Washington it may pay you big dividends to get in touch with us."

Mundt said the ageny's letter was given to him by a fellow senator who, in turn, had received it from a manufacturer. He declined to identify the other senator.

The letter was signed Earl C. Noyes, and Mundt said he felt the senate committee should look into his operations.

"Without condemning him," the senator said, "I would like to check up to see how he exercises his activities."

Told that the committee had a copy of his sales letter, Noyes said:

"For many years we've been helping small manufacturers and other businessmen throughout the country to do business with the government that would be mutually satisfactory and profitable.

"The senate "five percenter' investigation has chased the phonies and influence peddlers out of Washington and now many other smaller businessmen will need legitimate representation here by a firm which can and will need legitimate representation here by a firm which can and will do an honest job of expediting their problems with the government. And that's the kind of business we're trying to do."

Noyes' letter mentioned the passage of appropriation bills by congress and added, "You know that when a government agency gets money they spend it."

"Contractors, manufacturers and suppliers of all kinds who go after this business intelligently and quickly should get their fair share, for the military now purchase about 5,800,000 separate items."

Attached to the letter was a reprint of a magazine article (United States News and World Report) citing the many different things the government buys. Some excerpts from the article were quoted in the letter, such as:

"What is needed most is a competent salesman who knows where the business is and how to go about getting it." . . . "Knowing when and where to bid is a full-time job."

The letter was undated. The attacked magazine article was from the July 1 issue of this year.

Earlier both Mundt and Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.), another member of the investigating committee, said Vaughan likely will be recalled as a witness at future hearings.

He was grilled for two days this week. He denied any wrongdoing but acknowledged doing favors for friends and others.

Calling Vaughan's reappearance "very probable," Mundt said he expects the presidential aide will figure in testimony about new evidence now being uncovered from tips received by committee members.

TITO DENIES

thorities are afraid of showing the results of socialism in Yugoslavia as would be done through Yugoslav exhibits.

The government also denounced Hungary's refusal to permit a delegation from this country to participate in a "world congress" at Budapest.

For the past week rumors have spread through Europe and America that Russia is sending troops to the Yugoslavia border. A widely-publicized N. E. said five Soviet divisions were grouped in Romania and Hungary near Tito's frontier.

In Washington, Secretary of State Acheson said such reports appear to be part of a war of nerves. U. S. and British diplomatic sources in London said they'd heard nothing to indicate the report were anything but rumors. American army circles in Austria were skeptical of the reports.

Belgrade itself remained calm amid the flood of rumors.

Joza Vilfan, Tito's spokesman at the United Nations, was asked by reporters in London how he felt about Russian threats against his country.

"There is always a feeling of confidence in Yugoslavia," he said.

Russian threats against the Balkan country began 15 months ago when the Moscow-run cominform accused Tito of not following the Kremlin's political line.

Today, the Petars and the Mishas of Yugoslavia—the average men and women who work for their daily bread—reacted calmly to the news that Tito had severed two of his chief commercial ties with Russia.

Word that the joint Yugoslav-Russian civil aviation and Danube river shipping companies had been dissolved came as no surprise to the Yugoslav people.

The agreement under which most of Tito's aerial and water shipping was handled by these companies had, in effect, stopped operating months ago.

It was the same sort of arrangement Russia set up with other satellite states when the war ended. In the role of a big brother, Moscow lent its name along with a promise to push the development of joint enterprises in the mutual interests of Communist nations.

Charges of negligent homicide were filed by state police against the driver of the truck which struck Robert Seay, about 30, of Mer Rouge, in which he and the two mules were killed officers said. The driver was identified as Linkman Gatson, Negro, of Monroe.

ing their arrest. They also denied they were with Thomas the night of the crime.

Greenlee was then placed on the stand. He denied knowing either of the other defendants prior to his arrest. He said he hitchhiked to Groveland with Thomas the night of the attack and that they went to a shed near a filling station. Greenlee testified Thomas asked him to keep a gun, left the weapon with him and departed. Greenlee said he went to sleep but awoke some time later and went to a filling station for a drink of water.

He testified it was then that he was taken into custody.

Later, Greenlee said, he was confronted with the alleged rape victim and her husband. The defendant quoted the woman as saying: "Well, he looks like the one." The husband was unable to identify him as one of the assailants, Greenlee testified.

In reporting the crime, the young woman's husband told authorities he was beaten and robbed by four Negroes shortly before his wife was raped.

The state presented a series of witnesses in an effort to establish positive identification of the three Negroes.

Deputy Sheriff Rames L. Yates, who was on the stand when court recessed yesterday, testified he found the car in which the Negroes were riding the night of the alleged attack in front of the home of Irvin. He arrested Irvin and Shepherd at the time.

Plaster of paris casts of tire tracks, taken at the scene of the alleged attack, and of footprints at the scene of the fight between the Negroes and the victim's husband were offered in evidence.

Yates said the tire tracks were the same as those on the Negroes' car, and the footprints were those of Irvin. The defense vigorously objected to introduction of the casts, but was overruled by the court.

Harry McDonald, Groveland night watchman, said he arrested Greenlee about 3:30 a.m. that morning when he saw him with a pistol.

Greenlee was later identified by the young farm wife as one of her attackers.

The attack occurred on a lonely rural sideroad. The woman declared she did not fight or resist the Negroes because she "was scared," * * * and knew she "had to do it, or be killed."

19TH YEAR

The change will provide much larger and better arranged facilities for the work of this group.

The entire third floor of Brown hall has been assigned to the commerce department, which hitherto has been scattered over various parts of the building. This will permit a better degree of centralization of academic function both for the department of commerce and for the other classes taught in Brown hall.

The opening of the fall term will also mark the first complete year for use of the handsome new science building that was completed during the past spring. This building, rated by many observers as the finest in the state, houses all the classes and laboratories for chemistry, physics, biology, home economics and agriculture.

Prospective students are invited to call at the administration office of the college to arrange for admission. Offices will be open daily, except Sundays, and Labor Day. Appointments may be arranged by mail or by calling telephone No. 4200.

Actual sponsors of the new concert are People's Artists, Inc., which arranged the original meeting, and the Westchester citizens "law and order committee." The latter group organized during the week to help Robeson's second attempt.

Earlier today the committee lost a round when Federal Judge John W. Clancy in New York City refused to grant an injunction to stop the proposed veterans parade. He said his court had no jurisdiction, and called the committee request "a cheeky application."

2 DIE, 6 SAVED IN PLANE CRASH

Most Crewmen Parachute From Crippled Flying Boxcar

FAIRFIELD, Calif., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Parachutes saved six from a crippled air force flying boxcar troop carrier just before the plane crashed last night killing two crewmen.

The C-82 shattered and burned in marshland near the mouth of the Sacramento river shortly after 10:40 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time)—the time when the pilot radioed that one of his two engines had quit.

The pilot and copilot died in an attempt to bring the plane down safely. They were only 30 miles from their destination of Alameda Naval Air Base on San Francisco Bay. The plane had left Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, only a few hours earlier.

Headquarters of Fairfield-Suisun Air Force Base here identified the victims as Lieut. Vess J. Ward, Jr., 26, the pilot, and Lieut. John G. Page, 31, copilot.

Ward's parents live at Gilman City, Mo., and his widow at Greenville, S. C. Page's parents live at Benson, N. C. His wife, Erna, was reported visiting in Los Angeles.

The survivors, none seriously injured were:

Technical Sergeants Kermit H. Carlson and Charles W. Sturdevant, of the 37th troop carrier division, Greenville Air Force Base, and Kenneth J. Giorno, Fifth rescue squadron, also of the Greenville base.

Lieut. Col. Robert E. Horton, headquarters training command, Barksdale Field, La.

Capt. Horace G. Deston, R. O. T. C. instructor at the University of Denver.

Second Lieut, Roy W. Chamberlain, Eglin Air Force, Fla.

Carlson and Sturdevant were crew members of the plane. The others were passengers. The craft was carrying freight from Lowry base to Alameda.

The only injuries suffered by the parachutists were bruises and "the normal shock of parachute landings," the field said.

Sgt. Carlson hit the ground near Gird's Landing and from a farm house telephoned news of the accident to Fairfield-Suisun base. He said he was the last to make the jump.

The pilots apparently attempted to make an emergency landing and smashed into a drainage ditch. Then it plowed on through the marshland. Wreckage was strewn nearly a mile.

the state chaplain, will deliver the sermon at mass.

The first business session of the convention which is expected to be the largest held here this year, will be held at the Virginia Hotel at 10:50 a. m. today. Highlights of the Sunday program will be the annual banquet, to be held on the Virginia roof, at 7:30 p. m., and the coronation ball to be held at the Progressive Men's Club at Selman Field, starting at 10 p. m.

Speakers at the banquet will be U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long, Bishop Charles Greco of Alexandria, George Piazza, of New Orleans, R. Dalla Rosa, Italian consul, also of New Orleans, and Frank Fulco, Shreveport, president of the National Federation of Young Men's Clubs. Approximately 500 reservations already have been made for the banquet. Among other distinguished guests to attend the banquet will be Judge Charles Anzalone, and Calagero Occhipinti, both presidents of New Orleans clubs, and Sam Raine, Birmingham, Ala., president of the club there.

Two business sessions are scheduled for today, one at 10 a. m. and the other at 2:30 p. m. Officers for the coming year will be elected at the afternoon session. Entertainment features Sunday will include a luncheon in the Crystal ballroom of the Virginia Hotel for all officers, governors, distinguished guests and their wives, and a boat ride for registered ladies of the convention at 4 p. m.

The final business session of the convention will be held at 9:30 p. m. Monday, to be followed Monday afternoon by the championship softball playoff at Selman Field.

the nation's economic and political life.

"On the world front, the leaders of the Kremlin are also gambling upon a depression to weaken American resistance and to enable them to gain dominion over all of Europe and Asia. We must not allow that depression to take place."

Philip Murray, head of the C. I. O., said:

"For our own sake, and for the cause of freedom everywhere, we must show that free collective bargaining works in behalf of all the people; that we can avert mass unemployment and in fact, constantly raise our living standards; that our government acts vigorously, at all times and in all places, to avert hardship and distress, while buttressing our civil liberties and our economic rights.

"The C. I. O. is committed to these goals, and determined that they shall quickly be achieved. Workers in America are devoted to the preservation and strengthening of our democratic way of life against the attacks of all totalitarians. We will fight, and fight hard, against all who seek to undermine our liberties or encroach upon our standards of living."

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, said:

"In too many areas, sweatshop working conditions still persist. These bring adverse effects upon the whole economy. They tend to drag down wages in high-wage areas, reduce the work week, and cause work to flow into sweatshop establishments. They also have an adverse effect-upon decent business management, for the lowest wages have an effect reaching to the extreme end of our economy."

the destination, number of miles flown, and estimated cost."

Johnson figured his idea of the senators buying airline tickets would save his department some $25,000. He said the armed services do not have aircraft to spare for such purposes, and also could not justify competing with commercial airlines as passenger carriers.

Thomas had been trying to arrange an inspection trip to Europe by the senate appropriations subcommittee on military funds, which he heads. Some of the senators planned to continue the planned aerial tour to the middle and near east, then home across the Pacific.

In his letter to Johnson today, Thomas took note of the cabinet member's economy hints. Then he said:

"If it is advisable for congressional parties, who make the policies for government and provide the funds to keep it a going concern, to use private airplane facilities, then it occurs to at least one member of this committee that such a program would be advisable for other executive officials."

Thomas also served notice on Johnson that he has told members of the appropriations committee staff to check the logs of aircraft activities at nearby airforce and navy fields.

The senator asked Johnson to furnish him full data on the flights of other government officials.

This is the information he requested about Johnson's own jaunts:

"A description of each airplane trip made at government expense by the present secretary of defense since taking office, including length of trip, origin and destination, number of miles flown, purpose of trip, a complete list of persons accompanying the secretary, and the estimated cost of each trip, including cost of crew."

Before making public his pungent letter to the cabinet official Thomas had told a reporter that congress might have to fix a policy about who could ride government planes.

Thomas said that information on use of government planes by both congressional and executive officials would help save money.

Other information he asked of Johnson included:

1. Descriptions like that of Johnson's trips made by secretaries and assistant secretaries of the army, navy and air force, the chiefs of staff and Vice-President Barkley since January 1.
2. The number of trips made by all military aircraft to the winter White House at Key West during Mr. Truman's last two visits.
3. A complete list of all government personnel with aircraft assigned to their use, with all costs involved.
4. "Number of planes and number of trips and estimated cost of trips to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., during the much publicized 'unification party' week-end. Give total cost of entire party." This referred to a recent get-together of top brass of the three services in a move to smooth out operations.
5. Whether planes used by individuals are placed in a pool or are on a standby basis.

Senator Reed (R.-Kas.), a member of the subcommittee who does not plan to make the trip to Europe, told a reporter he is not so sure that Johnson is right in his attitude toward the committee's flight. Said he:

"If there is a need for travel on urgent government business, why should congressmen be forced to hire private planes when hundreds of army planes are standing around, not in active use?"

COLLEGE YOUTH

murder charge was filed against Petersen today.

"I fired six times. I think I got her with five of six."

An instructor at Southern Methodist University where young Petersen was a junior journalism student described him as: "neurotic, intellectual, very spoiled and highly intelligent. When he talks about himself you have the feeling he is sitting off on a perch, looking at himself."

"I don't think I am crazy," he said of himself today. "I suppose I did something abominable, but I think I am very sane. But insanity probably will be the plea—I have tried suicide twice, you know. My father thinks I'm as crazy as hell—told me so when he and mother came up here to see me last night."

The tall, handsome, Petersen sighed, and went on:

"I loved the girl I murdered so very much. She was very, very attractive. She was five feet three inches tall, she had brown eyes, dark hair, olive skin and a very trim figure. She was getting away from me and I didn't want to let her go. I haven't been able to eat or sleep—for two weeks I've lived on a bowl of soup a day. My weight has dropped from 215 to 186.

"Early yesterday afternoon I called her and asked her if I couldn't buy season tickets for us for the Dallas symphony concerts this winter. She said no. I called her again and asked her if I might see her occasionally. She refused. It was a blow. Last February we had decided to be married this month.

"I went up to see Carolyn. She told me she was going to be married next week.

"I tried to hit her with the pistol. She grabbed at it and I started shooting.

"I really don't think she was very surprised.

"I kept on shooting. After the six bullets were fired I started to reload. Then I saw blood staining her white blouse. She stirred, slightly, and said 'oh.' I felt her pulse, then pushed aside her butcher red linen jacket and felt her heart. I couldn't feel any beat. I bent down and picked her up and kissed her dying lips."

The court ordered her to pay a total of $7.78.

EUROPE COUNCIL TO ASK U. S. AID

Plan To Bolster European Economy Cheered By 12-Nation Delegates

By Joseph E. Dynan

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Europe's consultative assembly today called for a European economic union and made plans to seek American aid in its creation.

The union would have a free money market and a single preferential trading system embracing European colonies and empires, and perhaps a single postage stamp.

The assembly of 101 delegates from 12 nations voted overwhelming by a show of hands to call upon the ministerial committee, the upper house of the Council of Europe, to prepare such a program of economic union. The ministerial committee is to meet here next month to consider the recommendation.

Plans are afoot to send a delegation headed by Assembly President Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium to Washington while the British-American dollar talks are in progress. The delegation's job would be to request tariff cuts and to negotiate for treaty changes—such as the United States' "most favored nation" trade agreements.

In effect, the proposed economic union would extend Britain's preferential trading system—by which trade with her empire and colonies receive favored treatment in tariff rates—to the French, Dutch and Belgian empires and eventually to the other European members of the Council—Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Luxembourg, Greece and Turkey.

Such a union would run counter to the "most favored nation" treaties these nations now have with the United States. Washington's permission would be necessary before one member could give its neighbors better trading rights than Americans now enjoy.

Britain's Socialists voted in favor of a free money market—letteing European currencies find their own level with relation to one another—when assured this would not involve removing control of European currencies in their relation to the dollar.

At the same time British Conservatives helped carry a proposai that a system of "guaranteed European markets" be set up. Hugh Dalton, British cabinet member, explained this meant that "one country will offer to purchase from another, for a considerable stated period of time, a definite amount of that country's products."

This was a victory for British labor's planned economy ideas. If carried out it would be a continuation of purchasing agreements between European governments—a form of bilateral trading rather than general multilateral trading favored by the United States.

The assembly called atention of "the peoples of Europe of the gravity of the peril in which they are living and the advantages of uniting their resources in a common effort to regain solvency."

The program, prepared by the young British Conservative, David Eccles and presented by the assembly's economic committee headed by Former Premier Paul Reynoud of France, also urged the ministerial committee to:

Create permanent machinery for consultation on credit polices.

Study ways of encouraging Americans to invest in Europe.

Investigate European production with a view to reduction of imports from non-European countries.

Organize inter-European conferences of employers, workers and consumers on increasing industrial and agricultural production.

In passing, the Knights via Hendrix said "we of the Invisible Empire protest and denounce Paul Robeson and communism."

Demonstrating veterans and those who attended a concert scheduled by Robeson last week clashed in a riot which left eight injured, two seriously. While the riot was in progress a cross flamed on a nearby hill.

Robeson has another concert scheduled for tomorrow afternoon which New York's Gov. Thomas Dewey has described as "pro-communist."

The Knights are the latest of the Klan organizations to be formed in the south. Its organization was announced by Hendrix shortly after the death of Imperial Wizard Samuel Green of the Association of Georgia Klans two weeks ago. Hendrix said his group is not affiliated with other Klan groups in Georgia and Alabama.

The title for the head man "Samuel II" presumably was in honor of Samuel No. 1.

However, in the direct succession in the Georgia Klan there is another Samuel, who stepped into Dr. Green's shoes, office and income tax lawsuit. This one is Samuel Roper, Imperial Wizard of the Georgia Klans.

Dr. Lycurgus Spinks, a Baptist minister, announced recently in Montgomery, Ala., he had formed a Knights of the Ku Klux Klan with himself as imperial emperor. Another Klan group is known as the Federated Klans of Alabama.

BENGALS BATTLE BOLTON IN FIRST CONTEST FRIDAY

Bears, Tigers To Play Here; Lions Invade Homer For Initial Scrap

Football takes a commanding position in the Monroe sports scene Friday night as the Neville High School Tigers and the Ouachita Parish High School Lions, who meet later on in the season—October 29—for their first engagement in 38 years, launch their 1949 campaigns against Bolton of Alexandria and the Homer Pelicans respectively.

The Bolton Bears come to Monroe to give Coach Bill Ruple's Neville eleven its first taste of action Friady night at 8 o'clock at Neville Stadium.

SEASON TICKETS

Season tickets for six home games to be played by the Neville High School Tigers here this fall go on sale tomorrow at Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop and at Neville High School, it was announced last night by Principal Paul J. Neal. Season tickets will not include the Ouachita game billed for October 29.

The tickets are selling for $2.50 to students and $5 to adults, and include games with Bolton of Alexandria, Minden, Rayville, Lake Providence, Winsboro, and Bastrop.

Coach Jim Hodgins, whose Ouachita Lions won't play before a home crowd before September 22, takes his club to Homer for its opener Friday.

Both the Tigers and the Lions regard their initial battles as tough affairs. Bolton will be giving Neville a taste of Class AA football, a brand the Class A Tigers expect to be playing next year, and the Lions will be facing a Homer club that is already getting pre-season recogntion as a team to beat in the Class A championship race.

Neville will also be at home against Minden the following week before taking the road for a first out-of-town game at Homer on September 23. Ouachita goes to Bossier City after the Homer invasion and comes here for its home opener against the Ruston Bearcats on September 22.

"We have weight to match Bolton," Coach Ruple said last night, "But Neville will have its hands full with the Bears presenting a slightly heaveir and more experienced backfield. Our lines will weigh about the same."

Coach Charlie Armstrong's Bruins will be led by J. E. Schroll, 195-pound line busting back and brother of L. S. U.'s Schroll. Bolton has outstanding players in "Boo" Loomis, 200-pound tackle; L. E. Ryland, 200, tackle; Larry Roertson, 200, end; A. J. Cicardo, 145, quarterback; and Eddie Savoy, 150, left halfback.

The Tigers lost their entire backfield from last year and most of the line, but W. T. Brown, fullback, and Benny Heidenreich, right half, are looking like good backfield prospects, and Jack Baugh is looking mighty improved at left end.

The Neville Tigerettes and band are ready to perform for the game Friday, and Neville followers are expected to jam the local stadium with one of its largest opening night crowds.

At Ouachita, Coach Hodgins has little to complain about with his backfield, but is still working hard on a line that boasts little veteran material.

Although Bob Carter, because of an operation, is expected to miss the Homer scrap, the Lions still have good backfield timber in Mark Boatright, "Red" Phillips, Billy Joe Milstead, and Kenneth Greer. Boatright, Phillips, and Milstead are regulars of proven talent, while Greer is showin gexceptional ability as the replacement for the absent Carter.

The Lion backfield combination has displayed such power, that Coach Hodgins is wondering if the offense is as good as it looks working against the defense he has thrown against it. He's not ready to say how good the attack is, fearing the show may indicate a weak defense.

Concordia To Back Game Laws Rigidly

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—Embattled police jurors Wednesday afternoon moved to protect Concordia parish's deer and squirrel from hunting "thieves, thugs and law violators," before the advent of the hunting season.

Jurors agreed to enforce the parish camping laws, which require that all campers have a permit from the owner of the land on which they intend to camp.

Four additional game wardens will be deputized through the sheriff's department for the hunting season, it was voted.

"We are inviting sportsmen into our parish," H. A. Martin of Ferriday, president of the police jury states "but we are warning thugs, thieves and law violators to stay out."

The squirrel season has been set by the state in Concordia parish to be from October 15 to January 1. The deer season will be anounced within the next two weeks.

Martin stated that not one-tenth of the squirrels are left in the parish that were here five years ago, and "we won't have any deer."

Sheriff Hartwell Love appeared at the meeting and promised to back up 100 per cent any action taken by the grand jury.

Robert "Bob" Graham, police juror from the second ward and owner of large holdings in that area, stated that he had already been contacted for permits by hunters as far away as Arkansas, and other land owners indicated that from queries received hunters intend to swarm into the parish during the hunting season.

Tulane, Vanderbilt Tagged As Best Of 'Dixie Dozen'

Commodores, Wave Get Coaches Rating On Strength Of Returning Stars

By Sterling Slappey
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

ATLANTA — Southeastern Conference football coaches think Tulane and Vanderbilt will be the best this season, but few will say if the "Dixie Dozen" as a whole will be stronger or weaker.

Without hesitation coaches list the 12 teams of the Southeast in this order: Tulane, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Kentucky, L. S. U., Florida, Mississippi State and Auburn.

Henry Frnka

However, from past experience you can forget coaches' ratings and name yourself a list. Chances are you can do just as well as the experts.

This time last year Georgia Tech was the glory grabber but Georgia gobbled up everybody. Mississippi climber from a subterranean cave in the coaches' estimation into second place. In fact about the only team coaches tabbed correctly was Auburn. The plainsmen were picked for last place and they ended there.

Bill Edwards

Also last year coaches thought the league would be at a peak. But, frankly it wasn't. The southeastern was a good shade or two lighter and slower than usual.

In numbers the league will be stronger this time. Squads total 713 men as against about 650 last September. In that battalion size bunch of beef are 97 players who were pretty good performers on occasions in 1948.

Tulane and Vanderbilt — both of whom once ruled Dixie but suffered relapses — have the most returning

KIWANIS WIN WEST MONROE TITLE

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—As far as the galleries go, Rufus King probably is the most unknown "unknown" who ever reached the final of the amateur golf championship . . . When Rufus was walking down the tenth fairway yesterday morning in his match with Willie Turnesa, a cop checking tickets stopped him and asked, "Where's your button?" It took a loud laugh from the gallery to convince the arm of the law that King really was one of the players—because Rufus actually had forgotten his competitor's badge . . . Udo Reinach, Willie Turnesa's employer, flew in from New York just in time to see Willie lose . . . And the tournament was made official by the arrival of Joe Horgan, who claims to be the world's oldest caddie . . . When the referee in one match measured to see if a ball was less than six inches from the cup, a spectator asked: "Why is he doing that?" His companion replied: "Don't you know, if its less than six inches it's a gimmie." . . . Some players wish it was.

Medicine Man

West Virginia's Billy Campbell, a hay fever sufferer, was taking his daily medicine at lunchtime Thursday when the high winds nearly disrupted the amateur . . . An acquaintance asked how come . . . "Oh," said Billy, "these are special pills to keep the ball low in the wind."

Putter Patter

First to congratulate Charlie Coe on his semi-final victory was Johnny Dawson, the guy Coe beat in the quarter finals. Coe asked: "Where have you been, Bob Hope has been trying to get you on the phone all day." . . . Irish Max McCready, who works for a big tobacco firm, says he'll be absent from big time golf for four years. He has an assignment in Singapore that will occupy him that long . . . Bobby Fair, the surprising Toronto youngster, also plays hockey and is a skier.

Poetic justice of something dept.: When Rufus King played in the 1947 amateur at Pebble Beach, one of the few guys he could beat was a slugger named S. B. Anderson. Andy was a teammate of Charlie Coe at Oklahoma U. At a tense moment, a feminine fan trailing Willie Turnesa exclaimed: "I just couldn't take much more of this. I'm so nervous." . . . Willie turned and asked: "And how do you think I feel, lady?"

Weak End Notes

Southern California's Jeff Cravath, who checked the Notre Dame offense last fall by using four tackles, weighing a total of 835 pounds, in the middle of his defensive line, figures to have one of the heaviest front walls in college football this year . . . The Trojan line will average 215 from end to end . . . Glenn McCarthy, the Houston oil and hotel man, turned up some surprisingly good teen-age swimming and track prospects in his "Junior Olympics" this summer . . . When Roy Smalley, the Cubs shortstop, was a sandlot catcher in Springfield, Mo., his idol was neighbor Mickey Owen. Now they're on the same team, Roy must be privileged to say its a Smalley world.

Los Angeles Dons Promise Trouble In All-America

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Los Angeles Dons may be the surprise team the All-America Football Conference this season.

They pulled their first surprise of the campaign last night, burying the Baltimore Colts under a seven touchdown, 49 to 17, avalanche of points and uncorking a host of flashy rookies in the process.

The Baltimores, heading for Cleveland and more trouble in the new campaign, couldn't match the Don running attack or overcome their ever dangerous aerial warfare.

The Colts took a 17-14 lead in the second quarter, quickly lost it and trailed, 21-17, at halftime.

Tailback Glenn Dobbs ran, passed, punted and blocked the Dons to three touchdowns and set the stage for the fourth before going out of heavy action early in the third period.

Y. A. Tittle, former Louisiana State quarterback, kept the Colts alive for the first half. His screen pass to Halfback Billy Stone went for 66 yards, he ran the team 59 yards in eight plays for another tally.

Dade And Charity Take Beating At Fight Show

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Charity and former Bantamweight Champion Harold Dade both took a beating in the "Carnival of Champions" at Chicago Stadium last night.

Sandy Saddler, New York's former featherweight champion, gave Dade a rough going-over for a one-sided victory in their 10-rounder which was the chief item of business as five world champions mixed in as many exhibition bouts.

The show, billed as a benefit for Negro charities, attracted only 7,236 patrons, who paid a gate of $21,872.

Retired Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis refereed the four-round exhibition between Ezzard Charles, N. B. A., heavyweight title-holder, and Joe Modzelle, New Kensington, Pa., which was little more than exercise for Charles.

Other champions who displayed their talent included Middleweight Jake Lamotta, Featherweight Willie Pep, Bantamweight Manuel Oritz, Lightweight Ike Williams, and Welterweight Ray (Sugar) Robinson.

Motormen Play Little Eight Club This Afternoon At Legion Memorial Park

McCain-Richards Motors independent baseball club, after losing an exhibition Friday night to the West Monroe Volunteers of the Delta League, bring out a revamped lineup today for a contest with the Nip and Tuck club of the Little Eight circuit at 3 o'clock at Legion Memorial Park.

The McCain-Richards club, boasting a local talent aggregation has Tom Perry, former Cotton States chunker, and Kelly and Murphy as its pitchers. The lineup today, other than the starting pitcher, was announced as Towers, left field; Salsberry, catcher; McCain, center field; Darling, second base; Glasco, shortstop; Johnson, right field; Rockett, first base; and Nelms, third base.

Nip and Tuck, which will follow today's game with a Labor Day meeting with Swartz of the Little Eight at Sterlington, beginning at 3 o'clock tomorrow, will have a lineup consisting of Howard, left field; Rugg, second base; Smith, catcher; R. Savage, first base; Halley, shortstop; Armstrong, center field; Pace, third base; Matkins, right field; and Bayles, pitcher.

Nip and Tuck plans the same lineup for tomorrow against a Swartz lineup of Boykin, shortstop; Higgenbotham, second base; Mears, center field; F. Wallace, catcher; Stengart, third base; Williams, right field; Parker, first base; O'Neal, left field; and P. Cook, pitcher. Swartz is meeting Terrill's Store in a Little Eight playoff game at Farmerville this afternoon.

The West Monroe Vols, playing at Jonesville today in a Delta playoff contest, beat McCain-Richards, 9 to 2, Friday night.

Auto Auction Will Play Progressives

The Monroe Auto Auction Pirates, Senior Softball League champions who the past week scored an extra inning win over the City League and district champions, Spatafora's Pharmacy, will clash with Progressive Men's Club, City League outfit, in an exhibition game tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at Selman Field.

The Pirate battery will probably be Danny Sullivan, ace Auto Auction hurler, and Billy Gimler, a hard hitter, catcher.

Rounding out the infield for Manager James McKay's Pirates will be the skipper himself at first base where he is filling in for Mark Boatright, now in football training at Ouachita; Jimmy George, shortstop; Jimmy Pettit, second base; and Eddie Foster or Don Stewart, third base. In the outfield will be John Smith, a top-notch hitter, in left; Charles Stratford or Guy Jones, center; and Carl McBeth or Bill Hance, right.

"If the Pirates play the kind of ball they are capable of putting over, they will give the Progressives a fine game," McKay said last night.

The lineup for the Progressives was not announced, but Manager Tony Lewis said his battery would probably be James McKenzie pitching and Sam Rubin catching.

The Progressive Men's Club will also give away an automobile during the course of the game.

ENTERING 'COON TRIALS

Eddie Ross, 321 North Sixth street, Monroe, will have several hounds entered in the Ring-Tailed Coon Hunters Association meeting at Arcadia tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. Ross is pictured above with one of his favorite hounds, Judy, a product of Bland Pittman stock from Oklahoma.

Monroe, Tallulah Negroes To Play Two-Game Series

The Monroe All-Stars open a two-game series with the Tallulah Trade School Tigers today, playing the first game at Tallulah this afternoon at 3 o'clock and returning to Monroe for the second contest tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the new Legion Memorial Park.

Joe Gulledge, manager of the Monroe Negroes, said special buses would run to Tallulah for the convenience of local fans. The buses leave Haynes Lane in West Monroe at 10:30 o'clock this morning and from the 700 block of DeSiard street at 11 o'clock.

The Tallulah Negro club boasts several former members of the Monroe Monarch nine.

Manager Gulledg declined to announce his All-Star lineup, but M. L. Potter, Tallulah skipper, said his lineup would probably be Harris, second base; Clay, center field; Polette, shortstop; James, right field; Cowan, first base; Hall, third base and pitcher; Holmes, left field; Treadway, catcher; Barker or Williams, pitcher; and Dunn in reserve.

Stock Car Racers Run At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 4.—(Special)—Mile in less than a minute thrills are promised at the Fair Grounds track Sunday and Monday afternoons when the Southwestern Racing Association presents a gala holiday stock car racing program.

The regular 100-mile classic is on the Sunday agenda while Monday a program of sprint races ranging from five to 25 laps will be held.

There will be a group of new faces for the races. Bob Jackson of the Southwestern Racing Association spent a week roaming around the southwest and midwest searching for some new talent to meet his top drivers.

Ott Crabtree of Fort Smith, Buddy Rackley of Houston, Bill Flenchum of Oklahoma City, and Woddy Willett of El Dorado are among the talented newcomers to sign for both races. Although many of the old reliables have not signed as yet more than 30 drivers are in the fold.

Tommy Roseborough, the midget racer pilot from Shreveport, informed officials that he will be among the competitors. Red Dowdy of Dallas, winner of three of the seven races this season, entered Tuesday.

The Sabbath-day show begins with the time trials at 10 a.m. followed by the 25-lap consolation race at 1:30 p.m. The 200-lap finale begins at 2:30 p.m. The nine-event Labor Day program begins at two o'clock in the afternoon with the races ranging in distance from the five-lap opener to the 25-lap feature. The competitors will race according to time trials.

THREE-DAY MEET OF 'COON HUNTERS DUE FOR ARCADIA

Hounds And Sportsmen Start Annual Event At Club Tomorrow

ARCADIA, La., Sept. 3—(Special)—The Ring-Tailed Coon Hunters' Association of Louisiana holds its second annual meeting here Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday with three featured events—coon-on-the-log, field trial, and bench show.

The meeting will take place at the association's clubhouse three miles north of here on the organization's 60-acre tract in rolling hills and timberland. A cafe is located on the site and plenty of camping space is available.

Some of the nation's outstanding breeders of bluetick, black and tan and redbone hounds are expected to have entries competing in the events.

Thre will b no races Monday as the day will be devoted to registration of entries, beginning at 10 a.m., but the bench show will be held Monday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Races will start early Tuesday morning and continue throughout the day. The coon-on-the-log feature, the spectator event of the meet, will also have its first performance Tuesday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Finals in the field races and coon-on-the-log events will be conducted Wednesday.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded for the first tree and first line in the finals, and also to the hounds making the best time in forcing their coons to quit the log.

Ruler, classy hound owned by Ben Craighead, Arcadia, won the coon-on-the-log event last year, forcing his game to take water in 31 seconds.

Officers of the association are Jones Talbert, Ringgold, president; Billy Culverson, Shreveport, vice-president; Cecil Lee, Arcadia, second vice-president; J. M. Lamkin, Jr., Arcadia, secretary and treasurer.

Ben Craighead will be master of the hunt.

His companion replied: "Don't you know, if its less than six inches it's a gimmie." . . . Some players wish it was.

Medicine Man

West Virginia's Billy Campbell, a hay fever sufferer, was taking his daily medicine at lunchtime Thursday when the high winds nearly disrupted the amateur . . . An acquaintance asked how come . . . "Oh," said Billy, "these are special pills to keep the ball low in the wind."

Putter Patter

First to congratulate Charlie Coe on his semi-final victory was Johnny Dawson, the guy Coe beat in the quarter finals. Coe asked: "Where have you been, Bob Hope has been trying to get you on the phone all day." . . . Irish Max McCready, who works for a big tobacco firm, says he'll be absent from big time golf for four years. He has an assignment in Singapore that will occupy him that long . . . Bobby Fair, the surprising Toronto youngster, also plays hockey and is a skier.

Poetic justice of something dept.: When Rufus King played in the 1947 amateur at Pebble Beach, one of the few guys he could beat was a slugger named S. B. Anderson. Andy was a teammate of Charlie Coe at Oklahoma U. At a tense moment, a feminine fan trailing Willie Turnesa exclaimed: "I just couldn't take much more of this. I'm so nervous." . . . Willie turned and asked: "And how do you think I feel, lady?"

Weak End Notes

Southern California's Jeff Cravath, who checked the Notre Dame offense last fall by using four tackles, weighing a total of 835 pounds, in the middle of his defensive line, figures to have one of the heaviest front walls in college football this year . . . The Trojan line will average 215 from end to end . . . Glenn McCarthy, the Houston oil and hotel man, turned up some surprisingly good teen-age swimming and track prospects in his "Junior Olympics" this summer . . . When Roy Smalley, the Cubs shortstop, was a sandlot catcher in Springfield, Mo., his idol was neighbor Mickey Owen. Now they're on the same team, Roy must be privileged to say its a Smalley world.

Los Angeles Dons Promise Trouble In All-America

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Los Angeles Dons may be the surprise team the All-America Football Conference this season.

They pulled their first surprise of the campaign last night, burying the Baltimore Colts under a seven touchdown, 49 to 17, avalanche of points and uncorking a host of flashy rookies in the process.

The Baltimores, heading for Cleveland and more trouble in the new campaign, couldn't match the Don running attack or overcome their ever dangerous aerial warfare.

The Colts took a 17-14 lead in the second quarter, quickly lost it and trailed, 21-17, at halftime.

Tailback Glenn Dobbs ran, passed, punted and blocked the Dons to three touchdowns and set the stage for the fourth before going out of heavy action early in the third period.

Y. A. Tittle, former Louisiana State quarterback, kept the Colts alive for the first half. His screen pass to Halfback Billy Stone went for 66 yards. he ran the team 59 yards in eight plays for another tally.

Dade And Charity Take Beating At Fight Show

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Charity and former Bantamweight Champion Harold Dade both took a beating in the "Carnival of Champions" at Chicago Stadium last night.

Sandy Saddler, New York's former featherweight champion, gave Dade a rough going-over for a one-sided victory in their 10-rounder which was the chief item of business as five world champions mixed in as many exhibition bouts.

The show, billed as a benefit for Negro charities, attracted only 7,236 patrons, who paid a gate of $21,872.

Retired Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis refereed the four-round exhibition between Ezzard Charles, N. B. A., heavyweight title-holder, and Joe Modzelle, New Kensington, Pa., which was little more than exercise for Charles.

Other champions who displayed their talent included Middleweight Jake Lamotta, Featherweight Willie Pep, Bantamweight Manuel Oritz, Lightweight Ike Williams, and Welterweight Ray (Sugar) Robinson.

M'CAIN-RICHARDS VS. NIP AND TUCK

Motormen Play Little Eight Club This Afternoon At Legion Memorial Park

McCain-Richards Motors independent baseball club, after losing an exhibition Friday night to the West Monroe Volunteers of the Delta League, bring out a revamped lineup today for a contest with the Nip and Tuck club of the Little Eight circuit at 3 o'clock at Legion Memorial Park.

The McCain-Richards club, boasting a local talent aggregation has Tom Perry, former Cotton States chunker, and Kelly and Murphy as its pitchers. The lineup today, other than the starting pitcher, was announced as Towers, left field; Salsberry, catcher; McCain, center field; Darling, second base; Glasco, shortstop; Johnson, right field; Rockett, first base; and Nelms, third base.

Nip and Tuck, which will follow today's game with a Labor Day meeting with Swartz of the Little Eight at Sterlington, beginning at 3 o'clock tomorrow, will have a lineup consisting of Howard, left field; Rugg, second base; Smith, catcher; R. Savage, first base; Halley, shortstop; Armstrong, center field; Pace, third base; Matkins, right field; and Bayles, pitcher.

Nip and Tuck plans the same lineup for tomorrow against a Swartz lineup of Boykin, shortstop; Higgenbotham, second base; Mears, center field; F. Wallace, catcher; Stengart, third base; Williams, right field; Parker, first base; O'Neal, left field; and P. Cook, pitcher. Swartz is meeting Terrill's Store in a Little Eight playoff game at Farmerville this afternoon.

The West Monroe Vols, playing at Jonesville today in a Delta playoff contest, beat McCain-Richards, 9 to 2, Friday night.

Auto Auction Will Play Progressives

The Monroe Auto Auction Pirates, Senior Softball League champions who the past week scored an extra inning win over the City League and district champions, Spatafora's Pharmacy, will clash with Progressive Men's Club, City League outfit, in an exhibition game tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at Selman Field.

The Pirate battery will probably be Danny Sullivan, ace Auto Auction hurler, and Billy Gimler, a hard hitter, catcher.

Rounding out the infield for Manager James McKay's Pirates will be the skipper himself at first base where he is filling in for Mark Boatright, now in football training at Ouachita; Jimmy George, shortstop; Jimmy Pettit, second base; and Eddie Foster or Don Stewart, third base. In the outfield will be John Smith, a top-notch hitter, in left; Charles Stratford or Guy Jones, center; and Carl McBeth or Bill Hance, right.

"If the Pirates play the kind of ball they are capable of putting over, they will give the Progressives a fine game," McKay said last night.

The lineup for the Progressives was not announced, but Manager Tony Lewis said his battery would probably be James McKenzie pitching and Sam Rubin catching.

The Progressive Men's Club will also give away an automobile during the course of the game.

Tulane, Vanderbilt Tagged As Best Of 'Dixie Dozen'

Commodores, Wave Get Coaches Rating On Strength Of Returning Stars

By Sterling Slappey
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

ATLANTA—Southeastern Conference football coaches think Tulane and Vanderbilt will be the best this season, but few will say if the "Dixie Dozen" as a whole will be stronger or weaker.

Without hesitation coaches list the 12 teams of the Southeast in this order: Tulane, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Kentucky, L. S. U., Florida, Mississippi State and Auburn.

Henry Frnka

However, from past experience you can forget coaches' ratings and name yourself a list. Chances are you can do just as well as the experts.

This time last year Georgia Tech was the glory grabber but Georgia gobbled up everybody. Mississippi climber from a subterranean cave in the coaches' estimation into second place. In fact about the only team coaches tabbed correctly was Auburn. The plainsmen were picked for last place and they ended there.

Bill Edwards

Also last year coaches thought the league would be at a peak. But, frankly it wasn't The southeastern was a good shade or two lighter and slower than usual.

In numbers the league will be stronger this time. Squads total 713 men as against about 650 last September. In that battalion size bunch of beef are 97 players who were pretty good performers on occasions in 1948.

Tulane and Vanderbilt — both of whom once ruled Dixie but suffered relapses — have the most returning

THREE-DAY MEET OF 'COON HUNTERS DUE FOR ARCADIA

Hounds And Sportsmen Start Annual Event At Club Tomorrow

ARCADIA, La., Sept. 3—(Special)—The Ring-Tailed Coon Hunters' Association of Louisiana holds its second annual meeting here Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday with three featured events—coon-on-the-log, field trial, and bench show.

The meeting will take place at the association's clubhouse three miles north of here on the organization's 60-acre tract in rolling hills and timberland. A cafe is located on the site and plenty of camping space is available.

Some of the nation's outstanding breeders of bluetick, black and tan and redbone hounds are expected to have entries competing in the events.

Thre will b no races Monday as the day will be devoted to registration of entries, beginning at 10 a.m., but the bench show will be held Monday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Races will start early Tuesday morning and continue throughout the day. The coon-on-the-log feature, the spectator event of the meet, will also have its first performance Tuesday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Finals in the field races and coon-on-the-log events will be conducted Wednesday.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded for the first tree and first line in the finals, and also to the hounds making the best time in forcing their coons to quit the log.

Ruler, classy hound owned by Ben Craighead, Arcadia, won the coon-on-the-log event last year, forcing his game to take water in 31 seconds.

Officers of the association are Jones Talbert, Ringgold, president; Billy Culverson, Shreveport, vice-president; Cecil Lee, Arcadia, second vice-president; J. M. Lamkin, Jr., Arcadia, secretary and treasurer.

Ben Craighead will be master of the hunt.

Monroe, Tallulah Negroes To Play Two-Game Series

The Monroe All-Stars open a two-game series with the Tallulah Trade School Tigers today, playing the first game at Tallulah this afternoon at 3 o'clock and returning to Monroe for the second contest tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the new Legion Memorial Park.

Joe Gulledge, manager of the Monroe Negroes, said special buses would run to Tallulah for the convenience of local fans. The buses leave Haynes Lane in West Monroe at 10:30 o'clock this morning and from the 700 block of DeSiard street at 11 o'clock.

The Tallulah Negro club boasts several former members of the Monroe Monarch nine.

Manager Gulledg declined to announce his All-Star lineup, but M. L. Potter, Tallulah skipper, said his lineup would probably be Harris, second base; Clay, center field; Polette, shortstop; James, right field; Cowan, first base; Hall, third base and pitcher; Holmes, left field; Treadway, catcher; Barker or Williams, pitcher; and Dunn in reserve.

Stock Car Racers Run At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 4.—(Special)—Mile in less than a minute thrills are promised at the Fair Grounds track Sunday and Monday afternoons when the Southwestern Racing Association presents a gala holiday stock car racing program.

The regular 100-mile classic is on the Sunday agenda while Monday a program of sprint races ranging from five to 25 laps will be held.

There will be a group of new faces for the races. Bob Jackson of the Southwestern Racing Association spent a week roaming around the southwest and midwest searching for some new talent to meet his top drivers.

Ott Crabtree of Fort Smith, Buddy Rackley of Houston, Bill Flenchum of Oklahoma City, and Woddy Willett of El Dorado are among the talented newcomers to sign for both races. Although many of the old reliables have not signed as yet more than 30 drivers are in the fold.

Tommy Roseborough, the midget racer pilot from Shreveport, informed officials that he will be among the competitors. Red Dowdy of Dallas, winner of three of the seven races this season, entered Tuesday.

The Sabbath-day show begins with the time trials at 10 a.m. followed by the 25-lap consolation race at 1:30 p.m. The 200-lap finale begins at 2:30 p.m. The nine-event Labor Day program begins at two o'clock in the afternoon with the races ranging in distance from the five-lap opener to the 25-lap feature. The competitors will race according to time trials.

Talent Hunt Begins As N. J. C. Seeks To Cover Losses

UNITED GAS' INDUSTRIAL SOFTBALL CHAMPS

Biloxi Skipper Leads In Lipton Cup Series

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Walter Seymour of Biloxi, Miss., skippered his craft to the finish line half a minute ahead of his nearest opponent to win the first race of the Lipton Cup series on Lake Pontchartrain today.

His time was 4:56.18. Sam Cary of St. Petersburg was 30 seconds behind.

The next of the series will be held tomorrow for the fishing class craft.

Third in the first round went to Bubber Weatherly of Gulfport, who finished in 4:57.15.

Following in the order they finished were: C. W. Cleveland of Fairhope, 4:57.35; Sidney Ellis, Jr., of Pass Christian, 4:58.06; J. FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—The Ferriday High School Bulldogs football team is holding daily workouts at the Melz Field in preparation for the opening of the 1949 season. The workouts started August 15th. Forty candidates are out for the sessions.

The first game of the season will be played with the Menard Memorial High School eleven in Alexandria on September 15.

Coaches Charley Loomis and Ray Harris have an experienced line, but a green backfield. Lettermen returning are: line, Charles Enterkin, end; Roger Arbold, tackle; William Wheat, tackle; Billy Loomis, guard; O'Dare Hammett, guard; Lloyd Perkins, guard, and Joe Hamilton, center. In the backfield, the other lettermen are Charley Massey, Hubert Horton and Bill Gore.

Roger Arnold, who is playing his third year at tackle for the Bulldogs this season is showing up as of old. He weighs 180 pounds and will make a strong bid for an all-state berth this season, barring possible injuries as he has the weight and the experience and is regarded as one of the best linemen in this section.

REX PENSINGER, TOM DANKS ONLY REGULARS BACK

Malone Declines Early Comment On Prospect Of New Material

The football coaches wailing season has started, but the boys who are lamenting the loss of some particular star or a few outstanding regulars of a year ago have nothing on James L. Malone, head mentor of the Northwest Junior College here. Malone lost practically every member of his first two lineups last year and figures he gets first choice of the seats on the moaners' bench.

"I guess I'll take it in stride, however," Malone declared yesterday, "although my stride is shortening what with the heavy losses in manpower and the tough schedule ahead."

From a squad of more than three teams last year, the Tribe boasts a return of only seven squadmen, and only two of them—Quarterback Tommy Danks and Center Rex Pensinger—were considered as regulars.

TICKETS ON SALE

Season tickets for all home games to be played by Northeast Junior College this year are now on sale at Walgreen's Drugs, Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop, Calvert's Drugs, Haddad Hardware and Sporting Goods, and Fink, the Tailor's, it was announced yesterday.

Season tickets only are being sold, and the pasteboards cover seven home games.

The boys who bowed out in the greatest exodus of talent at N. J. C., through graduations chiefly and a few transfers, were four ends, "Terrapin" Bell, Don Vining, Tommy Moncrief, and Bob Lively; four tackles, Glen Gossett, "Red" Dillon, Rip Harlan, and James Raines; four guards, Claude Brawner, Charles Cain, Clark Matkins, and Jay Broussard; and six backs, Arlis Armstrong, Dick Ochoa, Al Carter, Joe Glen Gibson, Lonnie Hampton and Doyle Penton.

Ochoa, sparkplug of the backfield in his freshman year last season, has transferred to the University of Texas.

Very few of the boys now in training at N. J. C. were in Malone's spring practice sessions, and the Indian mentor, who called his charges for their first workout Thursday, has the job first of getting acquainted with just about everybody in camp.

Biggest headache appears in remoulding the forward wall.

Malone has already shown he's not satisfied wth the setup in the line by making shifts in his player personnel. Milton "Red" Craighead, the big recruit from Start High School who was expected to play center, has been moved to right tackle where strength is sorely needed. Pensinger, regular center last year, had been moved to an end in the spring work, but Malone has now called him back to the pivot position.

Although Malone has refused to make any predictions this early on expected performances from new talent, at least two are already catching the eye of the railbirds.

Pat Marnell, a 210-pound tackle prospect, and Dub Rush, a 180-pound right halfback from Bolton High of Alexandria, are both showing superior ability so far.

Big Tom Harp, the Bonita product who had never played more than six-man football before coming to N. J. C. last year, has been moved from guard to tackle, taking on at his new position very well, and Tommy Danks is back at his old quarterback slot. Although Malone has announced all positions wide open, Danks seems well entrenched at his slot already.

The Tribe wasted no time beginning rough work and won't be easing up a bit during the rest of their grind in preparation for the season opener with Eastern Oklahoma A. and M. here September 23. Yesterday the Redskins were subjected to a long offensive drill, and are already averaging seven hours a day on the practice field in two-a-day workouts.

"The spirit and old hustle is there," Malone boasted. "The boys are willing, and that's something to be proud of. Before the season is over we may have a pretty good team."

Women Bowlers Set For Season Opening

The Women's Bowling League will open its 1949-50 season here Tuesday night with games at Herron's Bowling Lanes scheduled to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Clover Leaf Dairy, defending champions, will open in a three-game series with Bakal's Drive-In. Other series have Sav-Mor Grocery appearing against Pearce Paint and Paper, Jaycee Jaynes battling Spatafora's Pharmacy, and Monroe Sand and Gravel facing Trianon.

The league promises to present some fancy bowling this season, and exhibition games so far indicate close competition.

One of the latest threats to the supremacy of Clover Leaf Dairy appears to be the Jaycee Jaynes, sponsored by Morris Johnson and H. V. Pitts.

Columbia Registers 40-7 Win Over Many

COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—The Columbia High School Crimson Tide returned home today with the scalp of the Many High School gridders as the locals scored an impressive 40-7 win at Many last night.

Coach Woodrow Turner immediately began pointing his charges for the invasion of Jena next Friday.

Hall scored three touchdowns and added one extra point to lead the rout of Many. Two of his touchdown sprints came on runs of 60 yards. Holliday scored two touchdowns and two extra points, Hopper got one TD, and Smith made on conversion.

"We'll beworking hard for the games coming up," Turner said.

"I was well pleased with the boys at Many. They were in good physical condition and came through with good ball handling, blocking, and tackling."

OUACHITA LOOP TITLE PLAYOFFS OPEN NEXT WEEK

Semi-Finals To Be Played As Double Headers At Legion Memorial Park

It will be house cleaning time in the Ouachita Valley League this week as the contending teams make up postponed games and at the same time try to get possible ties for positions played off in time to open the championship playoffs next Sunday.

Joe Haddad, league president, last night said the league's four leading clubs will open the semi-final playoff with a double header next Sunday afternoon at Legion Memorial Park here, the first game to begin at 2:30 o'clock. The second games will also be played at part of a twin bill the following Tuesday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

If third games are necessary they will be played Sunday afternoon, September 15, beginning at 2:30. If only one game is due that day, whether it be a deciding semi-final contest or the opening game of the championship finals, it will begin at 3 o'clock.

Right now five teams are running strong for playoff slots. They are Prairie Road, fast-coming Southside, Monroe Rockets, Liberty and Eureka.

Eureka will be at Southside today in what looms as a decisive battle, while Liberty will be at Prairie Road in another contest that is also due to have plenty bearing on the final outcome.

The Rockets will be idle today since Twin City has desbanded and the Rockets have been credited with a forfeit.

Playoff arrangements were made Thursday night at a meeting of league managers with President Haddad.

The managers, their teams hurt by loss of players leaving for school, agreed to allow each contending team to sign three new players, but such players must be selected from league members not reaching the playoffs.

Umpires for the series were also named as C. O. Prestridge, "Butch" Martin, J. W. Welch, H. L. Henry, Alvin Malone and Earl Brooks. Three umpires will be used for each playoff game.

Admission prices for the playoffs will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children with 40 per cent of the take going for the use of the park, and the remaining 60 per cent going to playoff clubs.

Homer Pelicans Defeat Cotton Valley, 24 to 0

COTTON VALLEY, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Homer Pelicans, displaying plenty of power, rolled over the Cotton Valley High eleven by a 24-0 score in a pre-season football game here last night.

Pelican Halfback Albert Doggett accounted for all the scoring, crossing the goal line once during each quarter.

In the third quarter he returned a Cotton Valley kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown.

KENNEDY JOLTS BROOKLYN WITH 6 TO 3 GIANT WIN

Phillies Plaster Boston Braves, 10 To 4; Cubs Thump Pirates, 11-7

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Lefty Monte Kennedy jolted the pennant hopes of the Brooklyn Dodgers today as he pitched the New York Giants to a 6-3 triumph over the contending Dodgers. Willard Marshall and Bill Rigney batted in two runs apiece to pace the Giants' attack.

CUBS BLAST BUCS

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs exploded for a nine-run rally in the eighth inning, topped by Hank Sauer's three-run homer, to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11 to 7, today before 13,289. It was the sixth straight defeat for the Bucs and snapped a four-game losing streak for the Cubs.

Sauer also hit an earlier homer to run his total for the season to 26. Johnny Hopp topped the Bucs with his No. 3 homer, a double and single. Ralph Kiner hit his No. 40.

REYNOLDS HURLS THREE-HIT, 6 TO 0, WIN OVER SOLONS

Athletics Fall Before Crimson Hose, 10-3; Browns Drop Indians

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Allie Reynolds came up with his best game of the season today as he pitched the American League's front-running New York Yankees to a 6-0 three-hit triumph over the tail-end Washington Senators. The victory was Reynolds' 14th and his second shutout.

The honor was paid Boykin here during the closing session of the chamber's board meeting.

Talent Hunt Begins As N. J. C. Seeks To Cover Losses

REX PENSINGER, TOM DANKS ONLY REGULARS BACK

Malone Declines Early Comment On Prospect Of New Material

The football coaches wailing season has started, but the boys who are lamenting the loss of some particular star or a few outstanding regulars of a year ago have nothing on James L. Malone, head mentor of the Northwest Junior College here. Malone lost practically every member of his first two lineups last year and figures he gets first choice of the seats on the moaners' bench.

"I guess I'll take it in stride, however," Malone declared yesterday, "although my stride is shortening what with the heavy losses in manpower and the tough schedule ahead."

From a squad of more than three teams last year, the Tribe boasts a return of only seven squadmen, and only two of them—Quarterback Tommy Danks and Center Rex Pensinger—were considered as regulars.

TICKETS ON SALE

Season tickets for all home games to be played by Northeast Junior College this year are now on sale at Walgreen's Drugs, Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop, Calvert's Drugs, Haddad Hardware and Sporting Goods, and Fink, the Tailor's, it was announced yesterday.

Season tickets only are being sold, and the pasteboards cover seven home games.

The boys who bowed out in the greatest exodus of talent at N. J. C., through graduations chiefly and a few transfers, were four ends, "Terrapin" Bell, Don Vining, Tommy Moncrief, and Bob Lively; four tackles, Glen Gossett, "Red" Dillon, Rip Harlan, and James Raines; four guards, Claude Brawner, Charles Cain, Clark Matkins, and Jay Broussard; and six backs, Arlis Armstrong, Dick Ochoa, Al Carter, Joe Glen Gibson, Lonnie Hampton and Doyle Penton.

Ochoa, sparkplug of the backfield in his freshman year last season, has transferred to the University of Texas.

Very few of the boys now in training at N. J. C. were in Malone's spring practice sessions, and the Indian mentor, who called his charges for their first workout Thursday, has the job first of getting acquainted with just about everybody in camp.

Biggest headache appears in remoulding the forward wall.

Malone has already shown he's not satisfied wth the setup in the line by making shifts in his player personnel. Milton "Red" Craighead, the big recruit from Start High School who was expected to play center, has been moved to right tackle where strength is sorely needed. Pensinger, regular center last year, had been moved to an end in the spring work, but Malone has now called him back to the pivot position.

Although Malone has refused to make any predictions this early on expected performances from new talent, at least two are already catching the eye of the railbirds.

Pat Marnell, a 210-pound tackle prospect, and Dub Rush, a 180-pound right halfback from Bolton High of Alexandria, are both showing superior ability so far.

Big Tom Harp, the Bonita product who had never played more than six-man football before coming to N. J. C. last year, has been moved from guard to tackle, taking on at his new position very well, and Tommy Danks is back at his old quarterback slot. Although Malone has announced all positions wide open, Danks seems well entrenched at his slot already.

The Tribe wasted no time beginning rough work and won't be easing up a bit during the rest of their grind in preparation for the season opener with Eastern Oklahoma A. and M. here September 23. Yesterday the Redskins were subjected to a long offensive drill, and are already averaging seven hours a day on the practice field in two-a-day workouts.

"The spirit and old hustle is there," Malone boasted. "The boys are willing, and that's something to be proud of. Before the season is over we may have a pretty good team."

Biloxi Skipper Leads In Lipton Cup Series

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Walter Seymour of Biloxi, Miss., skippered his craft to the finish line half a minute ahead of his nearest opponent to win the first race of the Lipton Cup series on Lake Pontchartrain today.

His time was 4:56.18. Sam Cary of St. Petersburg was 30 seconds behind.

The next of the series will be held tomorrow for the fishing class craft.

Third in the first round went to Bubber Weatherly of Gulfport, who finished in 4:57.15.

Following in the order they finished were: C. W. Cleveland of Fairhope, 4:57.35; Sidney Ellis, Jr., of Pass Christian, 4:58.06; J. Scale of Sarasota, 4:58.10; Fred Clerc of Southern, 4:58.28; Shaw Freeman of the Buccaneer Club, 4:58.47; Bill Lurton of Pensacola, 4:59.-8; Julian Bennett, St. Andrews Bay, 4:59.26; Ed Moore, Mobile, 4:59.41; and B. Moody, Houston, 4:59.41.

EAGLE ROCK, Calif.—(NEA)—Samy Baugh of the Washington Redskins claims 12 seconds as his best mark for roping and tying a calf.

Ferriday Preps For First Game With Maynard Eagles

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—The Ferriday High School Bulldogs football team is holding daily workouts at the Melz Field in preparation for the opening of the 1949 season. The workouts started August 15th. Forty candidates are out for the sessions.

The first game of the season will be played with the Menard Memorial High School eleven in Alexandria on September 15.

Coaches Charley Loomis and Ray Harris have an experienced line, but a green backfield. Lettermen returning are: line, Charles Enterkin, end; Roger Arbold, tackle; William Wheat, tackle; Billy Loomis, guard; O'Dare Hammett, guard; Lloyd Perkins, guard, and Joe Hamilton, center. In the backfield, the other lettermen are Charley Massey, Hubert Horton and Bill Gore.

Roger Arnold, who is playing his third year at tackle for the Bulldogs this season is showing up as of old. He weighs 180 pounds and will make a strong bid for an all-state berth this season, barring possible injuries as he has the weight and the experience and is regarded as one of the best linemen in this section.

Captain Windham Playing On Unbeaten Service Team

Capt. Clell Windham, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clell Windham, Sr., of Mangham, is a member of the undefeated 319th station hospital volley ball team of the United States army in Germany and his team is competing in a service tournament at Frankfort, Germany, according to information received here.

Captain Windham, in service for eleven years, was making his home here with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Edwards, 2701 Lee avenue, the parents of his wife, before going to Germany. His wife, the former Miss Lilly Merle Edwards, and their young son, Johnny, are in Germany with him.

RECORD RECEIVER

SANTA CLARA, Calif.—(NEA)—End Ellery Williams of Santa Clara shattered a six-year college mark, set by Lamar Davis of Georgia, averaging 29.6 yards per forward pass caught last season while amassing 621 total yards gained.

Women Bowlers Set For Season Opening

The Women's Bowling League will open its 1949-50 season here Tuesday night with games at Herron's Bowling Lanes scheduled to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Clover Leaf Dairy, defending champions, will open in a three-game series with Bakal's Drive-In. Other series have Sav-Mor Grocery appearing against Pearce Paint and Paper, Jaycee Jaynes battling Spatafora's Pharmacy, and Monroe Sand and Gravel facing Trianon.

The league promises to present some fancy bowling this season, and exhibition games so far indicate close competition.

One of the latest threats to the supremacy of Clover Leaf Dairy appears to be the Jaycee Jaynes, sponsored by Morris Johnson and H. V. Pitts.

Columbia Registers 40-7 Win Over Many

COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—The Columbia High School Crimson Tide returned home today with the scalp of the Many High School gridders as the locals scored an impressive 40-7 win at Many last night.

Coach Woodrow Turner immediately began pointing his charges for the invasion of Jena next Friday.

Hall scored three touchdowns and added one extra point to lead the rout of Many. Two of his touchdown sprints came on runs of 60 yards. Holliday scored two touchdowns and two extra points, Hopper got one TD, and Smith made on conversion.

"We'll beworking hard for the games coming up," Turner said.

"I was well pleased with the boys at Many. They were in good physical condition and came through with good ball handling, blocking, and tackling."

OUACHITA LOOP TITLE PLAYOFFS OPEN NEXT WEEK

Semi-Finals To Be Played As Double Headers At Legion Memorial Park

It will be house cleaning time in the Ouachita Valley League this week as the contending teams make up postponed games and at the same time try to get possible ties for positions played off in time to open the championship playoffs next Sunday.

Joe Haddad, league president, last night said the league's four leading clubs will open the semi-final playoff with a double header next Sunday afternoon at Legion Memorial Park here, the first game to begin at 2:30 o'clock. The second games will also be played at part of a twin bill the following Tuesday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

If third games are necessary they will be played Sunday afternoon, September 15, beginning at 2:30. If only one game is due that day, whether it be a deciding semi-final contest or the opening game of the championship finals, it will begin at 3 o'clock.

Right now five teams are running strong for playoff slots. They are Prairie Road, fast-coming Southside, Monroe Rockets, Liberty and Eureka.

Eureka will be at Southside today in what looms as a decisive battle, while Liberty will be at Prairie Road in another contest that is also due to have plenty bearing on the final outcome.

The Rockets will be idle today since Twin City has desbanded and the Rockets have been credited with a forfeit.

Playoff arrangements were made Thursday night at a meeting of league managers with President Haddad.

The managers, their teams hurt by loss of players leaving for school, agreed to allow each contending team to sign three new players, but such players must be selected from league members not reaching the playoffs.

Umpires for the series were also named as C. O. Prestridge, "Butch" Martin, J. W. Welch, H. L. Henry, Alvin Malone and Earl Brooks. Three umpires will be used for each playoff game.

Admission prices for the playoffs will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children with 40 per cent of the take going for the use of the park, and the remaining 60 per cent going to palyoff clubs.

Homer Pelicans Defeat Cotton Valley, 24 to 0

COTTON VALLEY, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Homer Pelicans, displaying plenty of power, rolled over the Cotton Valley High eleven by a 24-0 score in a pre-season football game here last night.

Pelican Halfback Albert Doggett accounted for all the scoring, crossing the goal line once during each quarter.

In the third quarter he returned a Cotton Valley kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown.

KENNEDY JOLTS BROOKLYN WITH 6 TO 3 GIANT WIN

Phillies Plaster Boston Braves, 10 To 4; Cubs Thump Pirates, 11-7

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Lefty Monte Kennedy jolted the pennant hopes of the Brooklyn Dodgers today as he pitched the New York Giants to a 6-3 triumph over the contending Dodgers. Willard Marshall and Bill Rigney batted in two runs apiece to pace the Giants' attack.

HOLT WINS LABOR DAY GOLF MEET MEDAL

BAYOU DESIARD OFFERS 1ST BIG TOURNEY TODAY

Pro-Amateur Event Won By Foursome Of Shirah, Holt, Russell, Connell

Firing a brilliant seven-under-par 65 that set a new course record for Bayou DeSiard Country Club, Kenneth Holt, West Monroe, took medalist honors for the first annual Labor Day Golf Tournament opening today at the new country club here.

Holt, one of the local favorites to win the tournament, won the Labor Day tournament at Municipal Golf Club here two years ago, was in the finals of the spring Twin City Tournament at McGuire Park, and reached the semi-finals of the Krafco tourney two weeks ago at McGuire.

Runner-up for medal honors was another hometown favorite, Bill Jones, who qualified yesterday with a 70 over the par 72 course.

Holt was alos on the winning team in the low ball foursome pro-amateur event today with Pro C. J. Shirah, West Monroe, and Amateurs W. E. Russell and T. C. Connell. They had a low ball 62, ten under par.

Second place in the pro-am went to Milo Mattinson, host pro, and his amateur followers, Bill Scruggs, E. E. Lawson, and Fred Schindler, the latter of Forth Worth and Kansas City, with a 63.

Two teams tied for third with 64, but the combination of Johnny Myers, Bastrop pro, and Bill Jones, O. L. McCleary, and McVea Oliver, all of Monroe, won on the first role of a playoff with James Shamblin, McGuire pro, and Tilden Austin, Clyde Nash, and Bobby Ledbetter.

Fifth place went to Pro Bill Wright, Jackson, Miss., and his amateur group of Piggy McCaskill, Jackson, and Bobby Guerriero and Bobby Oliver, Monroe, with a 65.

Battling it out in the championship flight of the tournament, first big show ever offered at Bayou DeSiard will be Holt, Jones, J. C. Lee, Tallulah; Frank Clark, Lake Charles; Ed Shaver, Monroe; Fred Schindler, Alan Andrews, Bastrop; Herbert Land, Monroe; Jaques Doucet, Lafayette; Leo Edwards, Vicksburg Miss.; Edric Comeaux, Baton Rouge; Al Maracheau, Monroe; McVea Oliver, Monroe; D. Walcott, Greenville, Miss.; Lamar Loe, Jr., Tallulah; and Dr. T. A. Brulte, Monroe.

Pairings and starting times for today's first round matches were announced as follows:

Championship—Holt vs. J. C. Lee, Tallulah, 8:30 a. m.; Frank Clark, Lake Charles, vs. Ed Shaver, Monroe, 8:35; Fred Schindler, Fort Worth and Kansas City, vs. Alan Andrews, Bastrop, 8:40; Herbert Land, Monroe, vs. Jaques Doucet, Lafayette, 8:45; Bill Jones, Monroe, vs. Leo Edwards, city champion of Vicksburg, Miss.,

Albrecht Is 'Most Valuable' Player

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fire Ball Artist Eddie Albrecht, young Pine Bluff Cardinal hurler, today was named the Cotton States League's most valuable player.

He will receive a handsome, engraved trophy at Pine Bluff Monday night when the Cardinals meet the Greenwood Dodgers in the fourth game of their playoff series.

The Hot Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored the award. Last year's honor went to Herb Adams of the Hot Springs Bathers who now plays with the Chicago White Sox.

Club manager and presidents and Cotton States League sportswriters and sportscasters were asked to vote in the poll. Albrecht, who won 29 games this year against 11 defeats won by a wide margin.

Runner-up was Jimmy Morgan, El Dorado shortstop who finished the 1949 season in the number three spot in hitting.

Others nominated were:

Mobley, Estes Signed For Ten-Round Boxing Fracas

WRESTLERS DON GLOVES IN GRUDGE BATTLE TUESDAY

Steddum And Henry Harrell Billed For Semi-Final Mat Scramble

Rex Mobley, the lean Texan who formerly held the world's light heavyweight wrestling championship, and Balk Estes, the Oklahoma tussler with Indian ancestry, are billed for ten rounds of boxing in the feature event at Gus Kallio's arena Tuesday night. The match is a challenge affair in which Mobley seeks to gain some measure of revenge for what happened last Tuesday night when Estes ended their wrestling date by knocking the Texan out with a chair.

Although the boxing bill, probably to be something in the way of a wild slugfest with little real boxing skill showing, Kallio will have wrestling in his semi-final attraction which brings together "Wild Bill" Steddum, the stampeding Texan, and Henry Harrell, the roughhouse artist from Memphis and Vicksburg.

When Estes went wild last Tuesday night and knocked Mobley out of the ring, the Indian blood apparently rose to the front as Estes followed Mobley outside the ring, grabbed up a chair, and smashed it to kindling wood over his opponent's head.

Referee Al Getz declared the match no contest because of the action outside the ring, and it wasn't long after Mobley regained consciousness before he was challenging Estes to meet him with the gloves.

"Estes started the whole thing when he attacked me with his fists," Mobley complained. "I was never treated so badly in my life. If he wants to fight why doesn't he put on the gloves?"

Meeting Mobley at payoff time, Estes said, "I'm a wrestler and try to stick to the rules, but if you want to fight so bad why don't you go to New York and contact some fight promoters."

"Yea, I didn't figure you wanted to fight me near as bad as you liked to make the customers think when we were up there in the ring. You like to show off as long as the fans are looking at you."

"Is that so?" Estes came back. "Come on outside and I'll give you all you want as soon as you get through the door. There's no fans around now, and it'll still be your sorrow."

One word led to another and both got heated to a fighting pitch, but Al Getz and Kallio stepped between them and cooled things off.

"You're not going to pull off any alley fights around here," Kallio cautioned. "If I can't promote matches in the ring for you fellows, then I don't want either of you here any more."

Estes then backed down on his challenge for a fight right then, and said he would meet Mobley in the ring and give him "a fight that he'll remember when he talks to his grandchildren."

Steddum, who wrestled Bob Corby to a draw in the semi-final last Tuesday, his first showing here since last spring, asked for a place on the card, claiming to Kallio that "what you need now to go with your boxing show is a good clean wrestling match."

Steddum instructed Kallio to line up a good, clean wrestler and I'll guarantee to keep the match clean.

But since Kallio signed Harrell, however, it begins to look like T. N. T. being drawn into contact with a red hot fire—something is bound to explode.

Both Harrell and Steddum have rowdy reputations although Harrell is inclined to prescribed wrestling course, but never hesitates about the tactics to be used when the opposition lets the bars down.

The Steddum-Harrell battle will carry a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

Kallio also said yesterday that Walter C. Fisher, the West Monroe baker who has been his time keeper for nearly eleven years, is "going on a pension."

"It all came up in fun," Kallio said. "W. L. Moore asked me in joking way for a job to keep him busy while he's watching the matches. I said, 'All right, you can referee tonight.' But Mrs. Moore declined that job in a hurry and said, 'How about a nice, easy job like Fisher has here.'

"I told him Fisher is the best time keeper I ever had, but if he'll take a free ringside seat for his pension, I'll be glad to let you try your hand at watching the clock."

Fisher later said the whole thing sounded fine to him, especially that ringside seat for as long as Kallio is in business. So W. L. Moore will break in as timer.

Getz will be back as referee.

Favorites Forge Ahead In Mobile Golf Tourney

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Medalist Henderson Hilton-Green and other top-ranking contenders marched methodically through first round match play of the Mobile Country Club Labor Day Golf Tournament today.

The only championship flight favorite to run into serious trouble was H. G. Weddington of Meridian, Miss. He squeezed into the quarter-finals past Bill Allen of Mobile, one up in 21 holes.

Rain harrassed golfers playing the rolling par 72, 6,347 yard course for several hours.

Defending Champion Jack McCormick of Pensacola, Fla., won over R. G. Martin, Jr., another Pensacolan, 1 up.

FOOTBALL CAMPS

S. L. I.

LAFAYETTE, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach George Mitchell drove his charges through a gruelling scrimmage today to end the first week of fall football practice at Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

The scrimmage was costly to the S. L. I. squad. C. L. Wink, a two-letter guard, dislocated an elbow late in the session. Wink had been counted on heavily in the 1949 Gulf States Conference race.

KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach Paul Bryant told his Kentucky football squad today the first scrimmage session of the fall practice season would be held early next week.

Bryant is speeding the workouts to get the varsity squadmen in shape for the Mississippi Southern opener, two weeks from tonight.

Dividing his linemen and backs today, the Kentucky mentor worked on both offensive and defensive tactics. Handling the bulk of the throwing in a passing drill were Babe Parilli and Bob Bezukn, sophomores, who are slated for the No. 1 and 2 spots respectively at quarterback.

AUBURN

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach Earl Brown's tackle situation got worse today. He lost two more permanently—one from each side of the Auburn football line.

Dr. John T. Strickland advised Sophomore Right Tackle Jim Kite, 215-pound Columbus, Ga., lad, to drop football because of persistent high blood pressure.

At left tackle, Jim Burns of Birmingham, who put on excessive weight during the summer, decided not to return to the squad.

OLE MISS

OXFORD, Miss., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Passes featured today's twin sessions in the University of Mississippi football camp. Coach John Vaught stacked spot scrimmage training on the program for the first time.

The Reb mentor commended four quarterbacks for their performances, particularly as passers. The quarter was headed by Bob Jabour of Vicksburg, junior and the lone lettermen at the spot. Backing him were Rocky Byrd of Pascagoula, Cecil Puckett of Kingsport, Tenn., and Ed Brandenburg of Memphis.

Vaught will take the entire squad to Memphis tomorrow to see the Chicago Bears—Washington Redskins pro game.

He promised Monday will be "a real Labor Day."

Three promising sophomores have quit football. Center Doug Dedeaux of Columbia failed to report, and George Rhodes of Sturgis, 240-pound guard, and Don Gunday of Newport, Minn., 235-pound tackle, resigned from the squad today.

GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A brisk, two-hour scrimmage earned Eli Maricich and Floyd Reid new positions today on the Georgia football squad.

Coach Wally Butts sent Maricich over from right to left halfback and Reid from right halfback to fullback. Reid will filli in at his new post from Tom Kaminski, sidelined for two weeks by injuries.

Maricich, Reid, Gus Hlebovy, Dick Raer and Jack McHugh all stamped themselves as capable ball-carriers in the scrimmage.

Butts was pleased with the showing of his backs, although he was very cautious in saying so. He put it this way:

"If we are a serious contender this year, it will be due largely to a fine crop of halfbacks."

L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two combinations the Louisiana State Tigers may bet on in their gamble for a football comeback this year turned up today in the first real scrimmage of fall practice.

On the offensive line he named Coach Gaynell "Gus" Tinsley assigned Mel Lyle and Ray Bullock to the end posts, Charles Cusimano and Ed Coyne as tackles, Allen Hover and Nick Roussos to the guard posts—where the Tigers lack experience—and Joe Reid at center.

Keneth Konz at quarterback, sophomores Jimmy Roshto and Chester Freeman at halfback and Ebert Van Buren at fullback made up the offensive backfield.

Freeman and Van Buren each scored on long runs, and two sophomore substitutes, fleet little Elmer "Bubba" Field and Lee Hedges, accounted for more long gains.

On the defensive platoon Ed Bulliard and Jesse Yates drew the end assignments, Harold Voss and Ray Collins were at tackle, Ewell Walsh and Dick Bradley at guard. John Venable took over safety duties, Jack Cole and Al Heroman held down the halfback posts and Hugh Smith backed the line.

TENNESSEE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach Bob Neyland is "reasonably pleased" with the University of Tennessee Volunteers after the first three days of fall practice.

"The entire squad has been working well," he said tonight. "Their enthusiasm and spirit has more than overcome their mistakes."

VANDERBILT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Vanderbilt's chances to capture the Southeastern Conference football title this year took a nose-dive today.

Coach Bill Edwards announced that Star Tackle Bob Werckle broke his left leg in scrimmage today and will be out for the season.

Werckle, a sophomore from Teaneck, N. J., was one of only two second year men slated to start against Georgia Tech, Sept. 24, Edwards said.

Two other promising linemen were lost earlier this week Ronald Clary, sophomore center from Dayton, O., was dropped because he failed to pass his school work this summer; and Eddie Ellington re-injured his knee and is counted out for the season.

Shreveport Hogs Honors In Four Ball Medal Play

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Edwin McClure, Shreveport amateur, and Tommy Morrow, also from Shreveport, carded a team 65 to tie with Jimmy McGonnigal of Shreveport and Gene Vinson of Meridian, Miss., for medalist in the opening round today of the Deep South Four Ball championship at the Alexandria Golf and Country Club.

McGonnigal shot birdies on the final two holes for himself and Morrow to tie for medalist honors.

Meanwhile McClure set the Alexandria club course on fire by carding a 66 for a course record. It was the second time he had ever toured the Alexandria course.

Justice Rutledge Is Still Deathly Ill

YORK, Maine, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Wiley B. Rutledge went into his second 24 hours of coma today.

He is in York hospital, after having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Rutledge's physician, Dr. Elmer Tower, reported him as slightly improved physically although still unconscious.

The former dean of Washington University and University of Iowa Law Schools entered the hospital a week ago today. He had been vacationing at nearby Ogunquit, a seaside resort.

Remaining close by in the hospital were Rutledge's wife; his son, Neal, and his daughters, Mary Lou and Jean Ann.

Telegrams expressing hopes for Rutledge's recovery poured in from many parts of the nation.

The 55-year-old "liberal" jurist has been a member of the supreme court since 1943. President Roosevelt elevated him from the District of Columbia circuit court of appeals.

Brilliant Objects In Sky Still Unexplained

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—What were the two brilliant objects seen falling from the skies near New Orleans and what happened to them?

A day long search of swamps in the area failed to give a clue today but the U. S. Weather Bureau said one probably was a meteor and the other might have been.

Observers who saw the first object about 5:30 p.m. yesterday said they believed it was a flaming plane. But they heard no explosion or sound of crash as it went down in swamps near Westwego, La.

But the Civil Aeronautics Administration said it had no reports of any missing plane.

Witnesses told authorities they saw a small plane circling in the sky for 15 or 20 minutes after the object fell.

At 9:30 p.m. the second object was reported seen from scattered sections of New Orleans and from as far away as Lafayette, La., 120 miles northwest of New Orleans.

GREENIES' PRICE

stars. Vandy's new coach — Bill Edwards from the professional Cleveland Browns — has about 13 dreadnaughts coming back along with a fleet of lesser weights.

Henry Frnka at Tulane, has about 12. Bob Neyland, commander of the third ranked team, has about eight, but they are an extra potent eight.

Among Tulane's top stars are two of the best in the country—Fullback Eddie Price, third string All-America last year—and Paul Lea, all-Southeastern tackle.

Price very probably will be the top star in Dixie in 1949.

Vandy should be set with everything except experience in the T formation. Edwards switched the Commodores from the single wing after Red Sanders resigned to take the U. C. L. A. job.

Such backfield men as Dead Davidson, Joe Hicks, Herb Rich, Bobby Berry, Jamie Wade and Lee Nally, and Linemen Charley Speir, Russ Faulkinberry, Carl Copp and Bucky Curtis, should keep Vandy followers fairly happy.

Knoxville, Tenn., is well accustomed to the rest of the south and a good sized listening public up east and out west jabbering about what easy schedules the Tennessee Vols play.

No one can say that this season. The Vols play the usual ten games and among opponents are North Carolina, Duke, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt, Alabama and Mississippi.

Third string All-America tackle Norman Meseroll is back along with Hal Littleford and W. C. Cooper in the backfield.

For two years the Mississippi rebels made monkeys out of the guessers when they climbed far higher than anyone thought they could. So to play safe S. E. C. coaches have them in fourth place and here's a couple of reasons why — a comparatively weak S. E. C. schedule and nine returning stars.

The defending champion Georgia Bulldogs should defend well if their schedule again can help them. Wally Butts and his south-for-the-winter Yankee players meet only one high ranking conference team — Georgia Tech.

Sixth ranking Tech plays one of the meanest schedules in Dixie—four out of the six top teams. Besides those the Yellow Jackets meet Duke. If Bobby Dodd can win seven out of ten he says he'll be smiling.

Buried down among the lowest six teams are some fine names in national southern and bowl football—Alabama, L. S. U. and Auburn.

However, the experts say this isn't their year.

But watch out. S. E. C. coaches may know their coaching, but their record for picking winners would never win a bowl bid.

The opening of the championship playoffs in the Jackson-Bienville Baseball League hinges on the outcome of make-up games that may permit the series to start today or be put off until next Sunday.

Ashland and Hodge were playing a game Friday night that could conclude schedule play. An Ashland win would permit the playoffs to start today with Ansley at Saline and Ashland at Chatham.

However, if Hodge won Ashland would have to play two other make-up games this week to settle the final lineup.

FAVORED HERE'S HOPING COPS 1ST IN PRINCESS PAT

Dixiana Stable's Entry Becomes Leading Two-Year-Old Filly

By Charles Dunkley

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Dixiana Stable's Here's Hoping today joined the ranks of claimants to the 1949 juvenile filly championship by winning the $54,425 Princess Pat Stakes at Washington Park.

Here's Hoping, 2 to 1 favorite with a crowd of 21,172, defeated Calumet Farm's Duchess Peg by a neck in a thrilling stretch drive. Two and a quarter lengths further back came Brownell Combs gray filly, Amiga. Mrs. Albert Sabath's Devotional was fourth in a field of nine.

Charles T. Fisher, Detroit automobile body manufacturer, owner of Dixiana Stables, collected $43,175 for Here's Hoping victory.

The triumph made her the leading money winning 2-year-old filly of the year. She displaced Duchess Peg, the Calumet youngster which went into the six furlong affair at the top of her division with $53,687 earned.

First money raised the earnings of Here's Hoping to $72,062.

Jockey Douglas Dodson, former contract rider for the Calumet Stable, had the satisfaction of turning the tables on the Warren Wright establishment in piloting Here's Hoping to her triumph.

The Princess Pat was practically a two-horse race from the start. Duchess Peg bounded to the front, with Johnnie's Bobbie and Amiga right behind. Here's Hoping was fourth early.

Here's Hoping moved into second after leaving the far turn, and the duel began. Duchess Peg hugged the rail on the stretch turn, a length in front, with Here's Hoping driving at her. The two fillies were heads apart with an eighth of a mile to go. Here's Hoping forged in front nearing the finish.

The time for the six furlongs was 1:10 2/5.

Prices on Here's Hoping were $6.80, $3.40 and $2.60. Duchess Peg paid $3.40 and $2.40. Amiga, coupled with So Fair, returned $2.60.

EAGLES FOLLOW VAN BUREN PAST GRID LIONS, 45-14

Former Louisiana State Star Scores Opening Touchdown At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Steve Van Buren led the Philadelphia Eagles to a 45-14 victory here today over the Detroit Lions in a National Football League exhibition game.

The former Louisiana State star showed his backers that he had more of the stuff that led L. S. U. to the Orange Bowl in 1944. He scored the first touchdown of the game on a 46-yard dash in the first quarter and racked up 130 yards during the game.

Philadelphia added a field goal and three touchdowns in the second period. Fine runs by Bosh Pritchard of V. M. I. and Jim Parmer of Oklahoma A. and M. accounted for the touchdowns.

Van Buren set up the fifth touchdown in the third period with a 43-yard gallop. The score came on a pass from Tommy Thompson of Tulsa to Peter Pihos of Indiana.

The Lions began coming into their own in the third, when Bill Dudley, former Virginia star, rolled. He made a nice kickoff runback, then took a 21-yard pass from Fred Enke of Arizona on the fifty. Without the aid of anyone, Dudley dodged and spun to a tally, kicking his own extra point.

Enke and Feets Mote of Duke completed a pass for the second score, with Dudley converting.

The last Philadelphia score was engineered by Pihos and Bill Mac-Rides of Nevada.

Harvard's football team scored 765 points in 14 games during the 1886 season.

SKEET SHOOTERS BEGIN 200-SHOT M'ADAMS EVENT

Open First Round Of Shooting Today; 13 Awards For Day's Best

The first round of a 200-target shoot for the skeet trophy being offered by C. D. McAdams, manager of the Sears, Roebuck store here, gets underway today at the Monroe skeet range, and additional awards will be offered for the top shooters of the day's events.

Range Manager J. B. Thoman last night said shotgun enthusiasts firing for the McAdams trophy would be required to shoot 50 rounds on four successive Sundays with the leading shooter at the close of the September 25 shoot to receive the award.

Many good shooters have been developed on the skeet range here this summer as the sport is enjoying its biggest season locally, and several scatter gun artists are considered possibilities to take home the trophy.

For the 50-shot events today, awards will be made to the top ten in the men's division. Three prizes are being offered for the women.

Thoman also announced last night that shooting will begin at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon in order to give more time in which to move the day's events before dark and take care of the expected big turnout of shooters.

Awards offered for today's events were listed as follows:

Men—A basket of groceries from the A. and P. store; a ham from Tonore's Food Store; a set of fog lights from Lennon Motor Company; a porcelaining job by Sievers Service Station; laundering worth $5 by Sunshine Cleaners; a goose whistle, a wolf whistle, and a flashlight, offered as separate awards by Motor Supply Company; a case of beer by Louisville Avenue Package Store; and four cartons of soft drinks by the Independent Ice Company.

Women—A bed doll from Lee's Pharmacy; a box of soap and a box of ice cream from Johnson's Drug Store; and bath powder from Bell's Pharmacy.

Big Eight League

RUSTON, Sept. 3.—(Special)—The Ruston Volunteers, with their backs to the wall, rallied for four big runs in an eighth inning uprising to defeat their intra-city rivals, the Rebels 6 to 4 here Wednesday night at Fraser Field in the third tilt of their three-out-of-five final series for the Big Eight League pennant.

It was either do-or-die for the Volunteers, who are seeking their third straight loop championship, since the Rebels came out on top in both of the two previous contests in the playoff. The total paid attendance for all three games now stands at 5,005.

Jewel Williamson, lanky right-hander, settled down after getting off to a shaky start in the first frame and limited the Rebs to six scattered hits. The fastballer set nine opposing batsmen down via the strikeout route and walked seven. Pete Adkins went the distance on the mound for the loosers and takes the loss.

Bob Taylor, Vol first baseman, paced his team's hitting attack by clubbing a pair of doubles and a single in four times at bat and batted in the tying run in the eighth to keep the winning rally going. "Round-Man" Willett was next with two singles to his credit. Waynes Williamson collected two hits for the losers, one being a homer.

The Rebels took a quick 3-0 lead two singles to his credit. Wayne Williamson lined the ball over the centerfield fence with two teammates on base. The Vols got two of these back in their half of the same inning to make it 3-2. In the fifth the Rebs tallied their final run then the Vols exploded in the eighth for four big runs to win 6-4.

The fourth game of this championship series between these same two clubs will be played here Sunday afternoon at Fraser Field, with the Rebels being the home club. Tinker Hood will get the starting assignment for the Rebs and will be opposed by either Lewis Pipes or Doug Colvin for the Vols.

Score by innings:

HOLT WINS LABOR DAY GOLF MEET MEDAL

BAYOU DESIARD OFFERS 1ST BIG TOURNEY TODAY

Pro-Amateur Event Won By Foursome Of Shirah, Holt, Russell, Connell

Firing a brilliant seven-under-par 65 that set a new course record for Bayou DeSiard Country Club, Kenneth Holt, West Monroe, took medalist honors for the first annual Labor Day Golf Tournament opening today at the new country club here.

Holt, one of the local favorites to win the tournament, won the Labor Day tournament at Municipal Golf Club here two years ago, was in the finals of the spring Twin City Tournament at McGuire Park, and reached the semi-finals of the Krafco tourney two weeks ago at McGuire.

Runner-up for medal honors was another hometown favorite, Bill Jones, who qualified yesterday with a 70 over the par 72 course.

Holt was alos on the winning team in the low ball foursome pro-amateur event today with Pro C. J. Shirah, West Monroe, and Amateurs W. E. Russell and T. C. Connell. They had a low ball 62, ten under par.

Second place in the pro-am went to Milo Mattinson, host pro, and his amateur followers, Bill Scruggs, E. E. Lawson, and Fred Schindler, the latter of Forth Worth and Kansas City, with a 63.

Two teams tied for third with 64, but the combination of Johnny Myers, Bastrop pro, and Bill Jones, O. L. McCleary, and McVea Oliver, all of Monroe, won on the first role of a playoff with James Shamblin, McGuire pro, and Tilden Austin, Clyde Nash, and Bobby Ledbetter.

Fifth place went to Pro Bill Wright, Jackson, Miss., and his amateur group of Piggy McCaskill, Jackson, and Bobby Guerriero and Bobby Oliver, Monroe, with a 65.

Battling it out in the championship flight of the tournament, first big show ever offered at Bayou DeSiard will be Holt, Jones, J. C. Lee, Tallulah; Frank Clark, Lake Charles; Ed Shaver, Monroe; Fred Schindler, Alan Andrews, Bastrop; Herbert Land, Monroe; Jaques Doucet, Lafayette; Leo Edwards, Vicksburg Miss.; Edric Comeaux, Baton Rouge; Al Maracheau, Monroe; McVea Oliver, Monroe; D. Walcott, Greenville, Miss.; Lamar Loe, Jr., Tallulah; and Dr. T. A. Brulte, Monroe.

Pairings and starting times for today's first round matches were announced as follows:

Championship—Holt vs. J. C. Lee, Tallulah, 8:30 a. m.; Frank Clark, Lake Charles, vs. Ed Shaver, Monroe, 8:35; Fred Schindler, Fort Worth and Kansas City, vs. Alan Andrews, Bastrop, 8:40; Herbert Land, Monroe, vs. Jaques Doucet, Lafayette, 8:45; Bill Jones, Monroe, vs. Leo Edwards, city champion of Vicksburg, Miss.,

Albrecht Is 'Most Valuable' Player

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Fire Ball Artist Eddie Albrecht, young Pine Bluff Cardinal hurler, today was named the Cotton States League's most valuable player.

He will receive a handsome, engraved trophy at Pine Bluff Monday night when the Cardinals meet the Greenwood Dodgers in the fourth game of their playoff series.

The Hot Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored the award. Last year's honor went to Herb Adams of the Hot Springs Bathers who now plays with the Chicago White Sox.

Club manager and presidents and Cotton States League sportswriters and sportscasters were asked to vote in the poll. Albrecht, who won 29 games this year against 11 defeats won by a wide margin.

Runner-up was Jimmy Morgan, El Dorado shortstop who finished the 1949 season in the number three spot in hitting.

Others nominated were:

Mobley, Estes Signed For Ten-Round Boxing Fracas

WRESTLERS DON GLOVES IN GRUDGE BATTLE TUESDAY

Steddum And Henry Harrell Billed For Semi-Final Mat Scramble

Rex Mobley, the lean Texan who formerly held the world's light heavyweight wrestling championship, and Balk Estes, the Oklahoma tussler with Indian ancestry, are billed for ten rounds of boxing in the feature event at Gus Kallio's arena Tuesday night. The match is a challenge affair in which Mobley seeks to gain some measure of revenge for what happened last Tuesday night when Estes ended their wrestling date by knocking the Texan out with a chair.

Although the boxing bill, probably to be something in the way of a wild slugfest with little real boxing skill showing, Kallio will have wrestling in his semi-final attraction which brings together "Wild Bill" Steddum, the stampeding Texan, and Henry Harrell, the roughhouse artist from Memphis and Vicksburg.

When Estes went wild last Tuesday night and knocked Mobley out of the ring, the Indian blood apparently rose to the front as Estes followed Mobley outside the ring, grabbed up a chair, and smashed it to kindling wood over his opponent's head.

Referee Al Getz declared the match no contest because of the action outside the ring, and it wasn't long after Mobley regained consciousness before he was challenging Estes to meet him with the gloves.

"Estes started the whole thing when he attacked me with his fists," Mobley complained. "I was never treated so badly in my life. If he wants to fight why doesn't he put on the gloves?"

Meeting Mobley at payoff time, Estes said, "I'm a wrestler and try to stick to the rules, but if you want to fight so bad why don't you go to New York and contact some fight promoters."

"Yea, I didn't figure you wanted to fight me near as bad as you liked to make the customers think when we were up there in the ring. You like to show off as long as the fans are looking at you."

"Is that so?" Estes came back. "Come on outside and I'll give you all you want as soon as you get through the door. There's no fans around now, and it'll still be your sorrow."

One word led to another and both got heated to a fighting pitch, but Al Getz and Kallio stepped between them and cooled things off.

"You're not going to pull off any alley fights around here," Kallio cautioned. "If I can't promote matches in the ring for you fellows, then I don't want either of you here any more."

Estes then backed down on his challenge for a fight right then, and said he would meet Mobley in the ring and give him "a fight that he'll remember when he talks to his grandchildren."

Steddum, who wrestled Bob Corby to a draw in the semi-final last Tuesday, his first showing here since last spring, asked for a place on the card, claiming to Kallio that "what you need now to go with your boxing show is a good clean wrestling match."

Steddum instructed Kallio to line up a good, clean wrestler and I'll guarantee to keep the match clean.

But since Kallio signed Harrell, however, it begins to look like T. N. T. being drawn into contact with a red hot fire—something is bound to explode.

Both Harrell and Steddum have rowdy reputations although Harrell is inclined to prescribed wrestling course, but never hesitates about the tactics to be used when the opposition lets the bars down.

The Steddum-Harrell battle will carry a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

Kallio also said yesterday that Walter C. Fisher, the West Monroe baker who has been his time keeper for nearly eleven years, is "going on a pension."

"It all came up in fun," Kallio said. "W. L. Moore asked me in joking way for a job to keep him busy while he's watching the matches. I said, 'All right, you can referee tonight.' But Mrs. Moore declined that job in a hurry and said, 'How about a nice, easy job like Fisher has here.'

"I told him Fisher is the best time keeper I ever had, but if he'll take a free ringside seat for his pension, I'll be glad to let you try your hand at watching the clock."

Fisher later said the whole thing sounded fine to him, especially that ringside seat for as long as Kallio is in business. So W. L. Moore will break in as timer.

Getz will be back as referee.

Favorites Forge Ahead In Mobile Golf Tourney

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Medalist Henderson Hilton-Green and other top-ranking contenders marched methodically through first round match play of the Mobile Country Club Labor Day Golf Tournament today.

The only championship flight favorite to run into serious trouble was H. G. Weddington of Meridian, Miss. He squeezed into the quarter-finals past Bill Allen of Mobile, one up in 21 holes.

Rain harrassed golfers playing the rolling par 72, 6,347 yard course for several hours.

Defending Champion Jack McCormick of Pensacola, Fla., won over R. G. Martin, Jr., another Pensacolan, 1 up.

FOOTBALL CAMPS

S. L. I.

LAFAYETTE, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach George Mitchell drove his charges through a gruelling scrimmage today to end the first week of fall football practice at Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

The scrimmage was costly to the S. L. I. squad. C. L. Wink, a two-letter guard, dislocated an elbow late in the session. Wink had been counted on heavily in the 1949 Gulf States Conference race.

KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach Paul Bryant told his Kentucky football squad today the first scrimmage session of the fall practice season would be held early next week.

Bryant is speeding the workouts to get the varsity squadmen in shape for the Mississippi Southern opener, two weeks from tonight.

Dividing his linemen and backs today, the Kentucky mentor worked on both offensive and defensive tactics. Handling the bulk of the throwing in a passing drill were Babe Parilli and Bob Bezukn, sophomores, who are slated for the No. 1 and 2 spots respectively at quarterback.

AUBURN

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach Earl Brown's tackle situation got worse today. He lost two more permanently—one from each side of the Auburn football line.

Dr. John T. Strickland advised Sophomore Right Tackle Jim Kite, 215-pound Columbus, Ga., lad, to drop football because of persistent high blood pressure.

At left tackle, Jim Burns of Birmingham, who put on excessive weight during the summer, decided not to return to the squad.

OLE MISS

OXFORD, Miss., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Passes featured today's twin sessions in the University of Mississippi football camp. Coach John Vaught stacked spot scrimmage training on the program for the first time.

The Reb mentor commended four quarterbacks for their performances, particularly as passers. The quarter was headed by Bob Jabour of Vicksburg, junior and the lone lettermen at the spot. Backing him were Rocky Byrd of Pascagoula, Cecil Puckett of Kingsport, Tenn., and Ed Brandenburg of Memphis.

Vaught will take the entire squad to Memphis tomorrow to see the Chicago Bears—Washington Redskins pro game.

He promised Monday will be "a real Labor Day."

Three promising sophomores have quit football. Center Doug Dedeaux of Columbia failed to report, and George Rhodes of Sturgis, 240-pound guard, and Don Gunday of Newport, Minn., 235-pound tackle, resigned from the squad today.

GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A brisk, two-hour scrimmage earned Eli Maricich and Floyd Reid new positions today on the Georgia football squad.

Coach Wally Butts sent Maricich over from right to left halfback and Reid from right halfback to fullback. Reid will filli in at his new post from Tom Kaminski, sidelined for two weeks by injuries.

Maricich, Reid, Gus Hlebovy, Dick Raer and Jack McHugh all stamped themselves as capable ball-carriers in the scrimmage.

Butts was pleased with the showing of his backs, although he was very cautious in saying so. He put it this way:

"If we are a serious contender this year, it will be due largely to a fine crop of halfbacks."

L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two combinations the Louisiana State Tigers may bet on in their gamble for a football comeback this year turned up today in the first real scrimmage of fall practice.

On the offensive line he named Coach Gaynell "Gus" Tinsley assigned Mel Lyle and Ray Bullock to the end posts, Charles Cusimano and Ed Coyne as tackles, Allen Hover and Nick Roussos to the guard posts—where the Tigers lack experience—and Joe Reid at center.

Keneth Konz at quarterback, sophomores Jimmy Roshto and Chester Freeman at halfback and Ebert Van Buren at fullback made up the offensive backfield.

Freeman and Van Buren each scored on long runs, and two sophomore substitutes, fleet little Elmer "Bubba" Field and Lee Hedges, accounted for more long gains.

On the defensive platoon Ed Bulliard and Jesse Yates drew the end assignments, Harold Voss and Ray Collins were at tackle, Ewell Walsh and Dick Bradley at guard. John Venable took over safety duties, Jack Cole and Al Heroman held down the halfback posts and Hugh Smith backed the line.

TENNESSEE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Coach Bob Neyland is "reasonably pleased" with the University of Tennessee Volunteers after the first three days of fall practice.

"The entire squad has been working well," he said tonight. "Their enthusiasm and spirit has more than overcome their mistakes."

VANDERBILT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Vanderbilt's chances to capture the Southeastern Conference football title this year took a nose-dive today.

Coach Bill Edwards announced that Star Tackle Bob Werckle broke his left leg in scrimmage today and will be out for the season.

Werckle, a sophomore from Teaneck, N. J., was one of only two second year men slated to start against Georgia Tech, Sept. 24, Edwards said.

Two other promising linemen were lost earlier this week Ronald Clary, sophomore center from Dayton, O., was dropped because he failed to pass his school work this summer; and Eddie Ellington re-injured his knee and is counted out for the season.

Shreveport Hogs Honors In Four Ball Medal Play

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Edwin McClure, Shreveport amateur, and Tommy Morrow, also from Shreveport, carded a team 65 to tie with Jimmy McGonnigal of Shreveport and Gene Vinson of Meridian, Miss., for medalist in the opening round today of the Deep South Four Ball championship at the Alexandria Golf and Country Club.

McGonnigal shot birdies on the final two holes for himself and Morrow to tie for medalist honors.

Meanwhile McClure set the Alexandria club course on fire by carding a 66 for a course record. It was the second time he had ever toured the Alexandria course.

Justice Rutledge Is Still Deathly Ill

YORK, Maine, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Wiley B. Rutledge went into his second 24 hours of coma today.

He is in York hospital, after having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Rutledge's physician, Dr. Elmer Tower, reported him as slightly improved physically although still unconscious.

The former dean of Washington University and University of Iowa Law Schools entered the hospital a week ago today. He had been vacationing at nearby Ogunquit, a seaside resort.

Remaining close by in the hospital were Rutledge's wife; his son, Neal, and his daughters, Mary Lou and Jean Ann.

Telegrams expressing hopes for Rutledge's recovery poured in from many parts of the nation.

The 55-year-old "liberal" jurist has been a member of the supreme court since 1943. President Roosevelt elevated him from the District of Columbia circuit court of appeals.

Brilliant Objects In Sky Still Unexplained

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—What were the two brilliant objects seen falling from the skies near New Orleans and what happened to them?

A day long search of swamps in the area failed to give a clue today but the U. S. Weather Bureau said one probably was a meteor and the other might have been.

Observers who saw the first object about 5:30 p.m. yesterday said they believed it was a flaming plane. But they heard no explosion or sound of crash as it went down in swamps near Westwego, La.

But the Civil Aeronautics Administration said it had no reports of any missing plane.

Witnesses told authorities they saw a small plane circling in the sky for 15 or 20 minutes after the object fell.

At 9:30 p.m. the second object was reported seen from scattered sections of New Orleans and from as far away as Lafayette, La., 120 miles northwest of New Orleans.

stars. Vandy's new coach — Bill Edwards from the professional Cleveland Browns — has about 13 dreadnaughts coming back along with a fleet of lesser weights.

Henry Frnka at Tulane, has about 12. Bob Neyland, commander of the third ranked team, has about eight, but they are an extra potent eight.

Among Tulane's top stars are two of the best in the country—Fullback Eddie Price, third string All-America last year—and Paul Lea, all-Southeastern tackle.

Price very probably will be the top star in Dixie in 1949.

Vandy should be set with everything except experience in the T formation. Edwards switched the Commodores from the single wing after Red Sanders resigned to take the U. C. L. A. job.

Such backfield men as Dead Davidson, Joe Hicks, Herb Rich, Bobby Berry, Jamie Wade and Lee Nally, and Linemen Charley Speir, Russ Faulkinberry, Carl Copp and Bucky Curtis, should keep Vandy followers fairly happy.

Knoxville, Tenn., is well accustomed to the rest of the south and a good sized listening public up east and out west jabbering about what easy schedules the Tennessee Vols play.

No one can say that this season. The Vols play the usual ten games and among opponents are North Carolina, Duke, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt, Alabama and Mississippi.

Third string All-America tackle Norman Meseroll is back along with Hal Littleford and W. C. Cooper in the backfield.

For two years the Mississippi rebels made monkeys out of the guessers when they climbed far higher than anyone thought they could. So to play safe S. E. C. coaches have them in fourth place and here's a couple of reasons why — a comparatively weak S. E. C. schedule and nine returning stars.

The defending champion Georgia Bulldogs should defend well if their schedule again can help them. Wally Butts and his south-for-the-winter Yankee players meet only one high ranking conference team — Georgia Tech.

Sixth ranking Tech plays one of the meanest schedules in Dixie—four out of the six top teams. Besides those the Yellow Jackets meet Duke. If Bobby Dodd can win seven out of ten he says he'll be smiling.

Buried down among the lowest six teams are some fine names in national southern and bowl football—Alabama, L. S. U. and Auburn.

However, the experts say this isn't their year.

But watch out. S. E. C. coaches may know their coaching, but their record for picking winners would never win a bowl bid.

The opening of the championship playoffs in the Jackson-Bienville Baseball League hinges on the outcome of make-up games that may permit the series to start today or be put off until next Sunday.

Ashland and Hodge were playing a game Friday night that could conclude schedule play. An Ashland win would permit the playoffs to start today with Ansley at Saline and Ashland at Chatham.

However, if Hodge won Ashland would have to play two other make-up games this week to settle the final lineup.

FAVORED HERE'S HOPING COPS 1ST IN PRINCESS PAT

Dixiana Stable's Entry Becomes Leading Two-Year-Old Filly

By Charles Dunkley

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Dixiana Stable's Here's Hoping today joined the ranks of claimants to the 1949 juvenile filly championship by winning the $54,425 Princess Pat Stakes at Washington Park.

Here's Hoping, 2 to 1 favorite with a crowd of 21,172, defeated Calumet Farm's Duchess Peg by a neck in a thrilling stretch drive. Two and a quarter lengths further back came Brownell Combs gray filly, Amiga. Mrs. Albert Sabath's Devotional was fourth in a field of nine.

Charles T. Fisher, Detroit automobile body manufacturer, owner of Dixiana Stables, collected $43,175 for Here's Hoping victory.

The triumph made her the leading money winning 2-year-old filly of the year. She displaced Duchess Peg, the Calumet youngster which went into the six furlong affair at the top of her division with $53,687 earned.

First money raised the earnings of Here's Hoping to $72,062.

Jockey Douglas Dodson, former contract rider for the Calumet Stable, had the satisfaction of turning the tables on the Warren Wright establishment in piloting Here's Hoping to her triumph.

The Princess Pat was practically a two-horse race from the start. Duchess Peg bounded to the front, with Johnnie's Bobbie and Amiga right behind. Here's Hoping was fourth early.

Here's Hoping moved into second after leaving the far turn, and the duel began. Duchess Peg hugged the rail on the stretch turn, a length in front, with Here's Hoping driving at her. The two fillies were heads apart with an eighth of a mile to go. Here's Hoping forged in front nearing the finish.

The time for the six furlongs was 1:10 2/5.

Prices on Here's Hoping were $6.80, $3.40 and $2.60. Duchess Peg paid $3.40 and $2.40. Amiga, coupled with So Fair, returned $2.60.

EAGLES FOLLOW VAN BUREN PAST GRID LIONS, 45-14

Former Louisiana State Star Scores Opening Touchdown At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Steve Van Buren led the Philadelphia Eagles to a 45-14 victory here today over the Detroit Lions in a National Football League exhibition game.

The former Louisiana State star showed his backers that he had more of the stuff that led L. S. U. to the Orange Bowl in 1944. He scored the first touchdown of the game on a 46-yard dash in the first quarter and racked up 130 yards during the game.

Philadelphia added a field goal and three touchdowns in the second period. Fine runs by Bosh Pritchard of V. M. I. and Jim Parmer of Oklahoma A. and M. accounted for the touchdowns.

Van Buren set up the fifth touchdown in the third period with a 43-yard gallop. The score came on a pass from Tommy Thompson of Tulsa to Peter Pihos of Indiana.

The Lions began coming into their own in the third, when Bill Dudley, former Virginia star, rolled. He made a nice kickoff runback, then took a 21-yard pass from Fred Enke of Arizona on the fifty. Without the aid of anyone, Dudley dodged and spun to a tally, kicking his own extra point.

Enke and Feets Mote of Duke completed a pass for the second score, with Dudley converting.

The last Philadelphia score was engineered by Pihos and Bill MacRides of Nevada.

SKEET SHOOTERS BEGIN 200-SHOT M'ADAMS EVENT

Open First Round Of Shooting Today; 13 Awards For Day's Best

The first round of a 200-target shoot for the skeet trophy being offered by C. D. McAdams, manager of the Sears, Roebuck store here, gets underway today at the Monroe skeet range, and additional awards will be offered for the top shooters of the day's events.

Range Manager J. B. Thoman last night said shotgun enthusiasts firing for the McAdams trophy would be required to shoot 50 rounds on four successive Sundays with the leading shooter at the close of the September 25 shoot to receive the award.

Many good shooters have been developed on the skeet range here this summer as the sport is enjoying its biggest season locally, and several scatter gun artists are considered possibilities to take home the trophy.

For the 50-shot events today, awards will be made to the top ten in the men's division. Three prizes are being offered for the women.

Thoman also announced last night that shooting will begin at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon in order to give more time in which to move the day's events before dark and take care of the expected big turnout of shooters.

Awards offered for today's events were listed as follows:

Men—A basket of groceries from the A. and P. store; a ham from Tonore's Food Store; a set of fog lights from Lennon Motor Company; a porcelaining job by Sievers Service Station; laundering worth $5 by Sunshine Cleaners; a goose whistle, a wolf whistle, and a flashlight, offered as separate awards by Motor Supply Company; a case of beer by Louisville Avenue Package Store; and four cartons of soft drinks by the Independent Ice Company.

Women—A bed doll from Lee's Pharmacy; a box of soap and a box of ice cream from Johnson's Drug Store; and bath powder from Bell's Pharmacy.

Big Eight League

RUSTON, Sept. 3.—(Special)—The Ruston Volunteers, with their backs to the wall, rallied for four big runs in an eighth inning uprising to defeat their intra-city rivals, the Rebels 6 to 4 here Wednesday night at Fraser Field in the third tilt of their three-out-of-five final series for the Big Eight League pennant.

It was either do-or-die for the Volunteers, who are seeking their third straight loop championship, since the Rebels came out on top in both of the two previous contests in the playoff. The total paid attendance for all three games now stands at 5,005.

Jewel Williamson, lanky righthander, settled down after getting off to a shaky start in the first frame and limited the Rebs to six scattered hits. The fastballer set nine opposing batsmen down via the strikeout route and walked seven. Pete Adkins went the distance on the mound for the loosers and takes the loss.

Bob Taylor, Vol first baseman, paced his team's hitting attack by clubbing a pair of doubles and a single in four times at bat and batted in the tying run in the eighth to keep the winning rally going. "Round-Man" Willett was next with two singles to his credit. Waynes Williamson collected two hits for the losers, one being a homer.

The Rebels took a quick 3-0 lead two singles to his credit. Wayne Williamson lined the ball over the centerfield fence with two teammates on base. The Vols got two of these back in their half of the same inning to make it 3-2. In the fifth the Rebs tallied their final run then the Vols exploded in the eighth for four big runs to win 6-4.

The fourth game of this championship series between these same two clubs will be played here Sunday afternoon at Fraser Field, with the Rebels being the home club. Tinker Hood will get the starting assignment for the Rebs and will be opposed by either Lewis Pipes or Doug Colvin for the Vols.

Score by innings:

Grid Cardinals Win, But Bulldogs Look Tough

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The New York Bulldogs may be tougher competition this year for other National Football League clubs than they were last season as the Boston Yankees.

The Bulldogs had the Chicago Cardinals on the run last night until the final 10 seconds of their exhibition game here. Then the Cards cashed a touchdown on a Paul Christman to Boris Dimancheff pass and won the game, 24-21.

Infantile Paralysis Foundation Gives $438,353

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. — (AP) — Basil O'Connor, president of the national foundation for infantile paralysis, said today that the foundation sent checks totaling $438,353 to chapters in 21 states, for the week ended today.

The states, he said, were those where local March of Dimes funds were exhausted for medical treatment and care of polio patients. Among them were Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, and Tennessee.

O'Connor said the sum was the largest advanced by the national foundation in any week since the polio outbreak started its upward spiral.

The foundation has advanced $5,518,164 to chapters in 41 states and Alaska to date.

Rer Sox Roll Over Columbia 13-5; Play Deciding Game Tomorrow

COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—After light failure delayed the start of the game for one hour, the Winnsboro Red Sox took the field here tonight to wallop the Columbia Ramblers, 13 to 5, and even their Northeast Louisiana League championship playoff at three games apiece.

The clubs will rest Sunday and plan to play the deciding battle Monday night at Monroe's new Legion Memorial Park, providing the park will be available, it was announced here.

The Crimson Hose teed off on Rambler pitching for 16 hits tonight, one of them a homer by Bill Godwin. Pete Medek led Columbia's eight-hit attack, also accounting for a circuit clout.

NATCHEZ EVENS SERIES

EL DORADO, Ark., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Natchez Indians stopped a El Dorado ninth inning rally to take the second game of the Cotton States League playoff series 8 to 6 here tonight.

The victory tied the series at one game each. El Dorado squeezed past Natchez 5 to 4 in a 16-inning affair here last night.

The Indians bunched all their hits and runs in four innings while the Oilers, who also collected 13 hits, scattered them throughout the nine inning game.

nine inning game.

A two run homer by Roy Coss brought in two El Dorado runs in the fifth inning. A single accounted for the third tally in that frame.

El Dorado staged a rally in the bottom half of the ninth but it was cut short.

The same teams meet at Natchez tomorrow afternoon for a three game stand in a continuation of the best-four-of-seven series.

3 Autos Smashed In 3-Way Smash-Up; 1 Hurt

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A double triple automobile pile-up occurred here today.

Police said it happened this way:

Two cars stopped for a red light on busy St. Charles Avenue and a third car hit the second from the rear, knocking it into the first.

An auto and a garage truck behind the wreck, and another car repeated the performance.

Damage to three cars was heavy, but only one minor injury was reported.

PERMIT ISSUED

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 3.—A permit was issued during the week by the Louisiana state department of conservation for drilling a wildcat well in Catahoula parish. It was issued to Hunt Oil Company and others No. 16, Louisiana Delta Hardwood Lumber and others, section 27-4N-5E, for drilling approximately 7,000 feet.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

CHICAGO—Wheat: Slightly easier in light trade. Corn: September weak; cash grain arrivals increase. Oats: Steady; expect better European demand. Soybeans: Little changed; trade light. Hogs: Nominally steady. Cattle: Nominally steady.

Spread biscuit dough with butter or margarine (softened), brown sugar, a sprinkling of cinnamon, and a few chopped nutmeats. Then roll up in jelly-roll fashion, cut in slices, and bake in a hot oven.

Millions Still Being Spent For Oil Search

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Millions of dollars still are being spent in search for new oil reserves despite the 1949 slump in domestic production.

Current domestic output is approximately 800,000 barrels daily below a year ago but there still is a good chance more new wells will be drilled this year than in 1948.

Long-range, multi-million dollar exploration programs are well under way by several major companies.

Last week's edition of the Oil and Gas Journal reported 21,672 new wells having been completed the first seven months of 1949. This is only 16 less than the same period in 1948 when the industry's postwar boom reached its peak.

This week Sinclair Oil Corporation announced details of a $250,000,000, five-year expansion program concentrating on undeveloped leases.

This is in addition to Sinclair's $150,000,000 postwar projects for refinery and pipeline expansion.

Sinclair President P. C. Spencer said the company holds leases on over 5,000,000 acres of land, of which only 225,000 are considered proven oil reserves.

Meanwhile, imports of crude oil still dominate forecasts on probable changes in domestic supply and demand the balance of the year.

Major importers recently advised the Texas railroad commission they expect imports to average about 430,000 barrels daily the last three months of 1949.

Russell B. Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, this week said such an estimate indicates a continued increase in imports.

The Texas oil regulatory commission, following receipt of the import estimates, increased the state's September crude allowables by 132,000 barrels daily.

But Ernest O. Thompson, senior member of the commmission, thinks the action may have been a mistake.

Domestic stocks, he said, still are in super-abundance.

His remarks were in reply to a state department charge the commission has kept domestic supplies below desired levels by reducing Texas allowables seven times since last December.

Texas congressmen had solicited the state department's aid in curtailing imports.

Another official group conducting a similar survey among the importers is taking no chances—at least for the present—of its findings adding fuel to the foreign oil controversy.

A three-man house small business subcommittee in Washington is investigating the oil industry's ailments. Much of its testimony has involved complaints against imports.

The survey among the importers is to become part of the committee's records.

Tidelands

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug this week indicated the proposed compromise legislation designed to end the tidelands ownership controversy can expect a veto from the White House.

Krug, testifying before a house judiciary committee, said a veto awaits any legislation turning control of coastal oil lands to the states.

Compromise plans reportedly would split control as well as oil revenues between the respective tidelands states and the federal government.

Tidelands operators meanwhile hope for an early settlement, whether in favor of the states or teh federal government. Some companies have declined to develop leases until the title question is settled. Others have curtailed operations.

Current operations, however, involve huge investments.

Walter S. Hallanan, chairman of the National Petroleum Council, advised the house committee investments have exceeded $150,000,000. Gross returns to date, he said, have totaled only $900,000, or less than 0.5 per cent of the investment.

Gas Boom

Industrial plants are carrying the weight of the summer end of the postwar swing toward use of natural gas.

A federal power commission report says natural gas company sales to commercial and industrial consumers increased in June 3.1 per cent and 3.6 per cent, respectively, over the same month last year. Household sales dropped 0.8 per cent.

Over all company sales the 12 months ending June 30 jumped 16.8 per cent over the previous fiscal year.

Crude oil production cutbacks in Texas have caused little change in the state's gas output.

In June Texas gas production totaled 273,571,840,000 cubic feet, compare dto 260,379,865,000 in June 1948. Oil well gas dropped 900,000,000 cubic feet but natural gas jumped 14,000,000,000.

Pipelines took 50.85 per cent of the state's June production, compared to 45.21 per cent a year earlier.

One Oil Producer, 2 Dry Holes, 5 Gassers In Week

Placid Gets 40-Barrel Pumper At 1,498 Feet In Urania Field; Murphy, Carter, Abandon Dry Holes In Richland, Catahoula

One new oil producer, two dry and abandoned wells and five gassers were reported in the Monroe district in the conservation department's weekly drilling record here yesterday.

The new pumper, producing 40 barrels a day at its site in the Urania field at Tullos, was completed at 1,498 feet, the report disclosed, at the Placid Oil Company's Urania No. 8 at 2-9-1E.

The Murphy-Sun Oil Company abandoned a dry wildcat in Richland parish and the Carter Oil Company pulled out on a dry hole in Catahoula parish. Sites were at 4-9-6E in Catahoula and 15-17-9E in Richland.

Gassers were:

The Union Producing Company's Fee 768 No. 2, an output of 3,800,000 cubic feet in 34-19-3E in the Monroe field in Ouachita parish.

The Feazel et al. Monroe Drilling Company's Dumas No. 1, output of 767,000 cubic feet, at 30-20-3E in Union parish in the Monroe field.

The United Carbon Company's Harrell No. 2 at 21-22-3E, an output of 243,000 cubic feet, in the Monroe field in Union parish.

The United Carbon Company's Harrell No. 3 at 28-22-5E, an output of 243,000 cubic feet, in the Monroe field in Union parish.

The United Carbon Company's Rosa L. McKinney No. 1, an output of 297,000 cubic feet, at 28-22-3E in the Monroe field in Union parish.

And the United Carbon Company's Arvis and W. B. McKinnie No. 1 at 28-22-3E, with an output of 172,000 cubic feet, in the Monroe field in Union parish.

New locations staked were:

The Marine Oil Company's Farrar No. 1 at 19-5-6E in Catahoula parish.

The Arkansas Oil Company's Tremont "A" injection well No. 1 in 3-9-2E in LaSalle parish.

The H. L. Hunt Company's well at 34-7-3E in LaSalle parish in the West Catahoula field.

Sidney Latham-Jack C. Allen et al. No. 1 at 35-7-3E in LaSalle parish in the West Catahoula field.

Southern Carbon Company's Ten Delta No. B at 11-22-4E in the Morehouse parish in the Monroe field.

Nebo Oil Company-LaSalle Ltd. Co. No. 1 at 15-15-4E in Ouachita parish in a wildcat field.

Stanolind Oil and Gas Delta Lumber company's No. 22 at 10-16-7E in a wildcat field in Richland parish.

Stanolind Oil and Gas-Delta Lumber Company's No. 22 at 15-16-7E in the Big Creek field in Richland parish.

Stanolind Oil and Gas-Delta Lumber Company's No. 23 at 3-16-7E in the Big Creek field in Richland parish.

Union Producing Company-Grayling No. 22 at 7-22-4E in the Monroe field in Union parish.

Union Producing Company-Grayling No. 26 at 7-22-4E in the Monroe field in Union parish.

And Guy Mabee Drilling Company's Frost No. 2 at 19-23-1E in the Truxno field in Union parish.

OKLA. DRILLING NOW DWINDLING

Seasonal Slump In Oil Industry Causes Operations To Slow

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Oklahoma drilling operations dwindled this week during a seasonal slump of the oil industry.

Sooner completions were at low ebb, the Tulsa World reported, with a total of 67—including 36 producers, two gas wells and 29 dry holes.

New Locations remained fairly normal. Eighty-six starts were staked out in 29 counties, Carter and Pontotoc each reporting 11.

The week's statistics: Daily oil potential, 2,471 barrels; gas potential, 2,487,000 cubic feet per day; total footage drilled, 249,902.

There were enough bright spots to quicken the average operator's pulse. Among them:

W. C. McBride-Frank Buttram No. 1 Tilley—NE NE NW of 9-4N-5E in the new southeast Bebee Pool of Pontotoc county—flowed 47 barrels an hour average from 1,955 feet in Viola lime.

Also in Bebee, the Eason Oil Co.'s No. 4 Askins—SW NW SW of 27-5N-4E—came in with 10 barrels of crude an hour from the Hunton lime topped at 2,409 feet.

Two new locations were reported in the expanding Elk City Play of Beckham county, both by the Westoak Gasoline Co. It has taked offsets to producers in the C SW NE of 24-10N-21W and the C NW SE of 24-10N-21W.

In that same field, the Shell Oil Co.—its discovered—completed another high gravity producer, the No. 1-A state. The well—C NW SE of 9-10N-21W—flowed 36 barrels of oil in 54 minutes from 9,533 feet.

Gavin county remained in the limelight with several outstanding oilers. They were Magnolia Oil Co.'s No. 1 Richardson—NW NW SE of 34-4N-2W—flowing 49 barrels an hour from 6,248 feet; Sinclair Oil and Gas Co.'s No. 2 Jones-Heffner—C SE NE of 3-4-3W—in for an 11-hour average of 218 barrels from 7,050 feet; Carter Oil Co.'s No. 2 Hale—C NW of 1-1N-2W—finaled at 313 barrels in 24 hours from 6,686 feet; and Sun Oil Co's No. 3 Anderson—NW NW NE of 24-3-3W—flowing 40 barrels an hour from 6,844 feet.

DAILY AVERAGE DROPS SHARPLY

Three Straight Weeks Of Advance Cut By Over 800 Barrels

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—After three straight weeks of advances, the nation's daily average crude oil production dropped 875 barrels during the week ended ug. 27, The Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

The slight decline lowered the total daily average output to 4,720,475 barrels.

A heavy drop in Kansas accounted for most of the slump. That state's production fell 9,050 barrels to 256,30 barrels. Oklahoma was down 1,10 barrels to 378,300 and Wyoming was off 2,900 to 126,800.

Indiana lost 600 barrels to 26,60 Arkansas fell 100 to 73,150, Louisiana was down 300 to 482,700 and California dropped 500 to 899,300.

Five major gains were reported the eastern area, up 1,400 barrels to 6 000; Illinois, 3,850 to 184,100; Michigan 3,050 to 46,900; Mississippi, 2,300 to 100,850, and Colarod, 2,100 to 67,600.

Florida gained 25 barrels to 1,600 Alabama was up 100 to 1200, Kentucky increased 200 to 22,900, Montana added 600 to 27,100, and Utah advaiced 10 to 1,300.

Production was unchanged in Nebraska, 500 barrels; New Mexico, 125,075, and Texas, 1,838,200.

The Journal reported Canada's gain for the week was 2295 barrels to 65,28 of which 62,280 barrels was from Alberta Province.

Grid Cardinals Win, But Bulldogs Look Tough

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The New York Bulldogs may be tougher competition this year for other National Football League clubs than they were last season as the Boston Yankees.

The Bulldogs had the Chicago Cardinals on the run last night until the final 10 seconds of their exhibition game here. Then the Cards cashed a touchdown on a Paul Christman to Boris Dimancheff pass and won the game, 24-21.

Infantile Paralysis Foundation Gives $438,353

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. — (AP) — Basil O'Connor, president of the national foundation for infantile paralysis, said today that the foundation sent checks totaling $438,353 to chapters in 21 states, for the week ended today.

The states, he said, were those where local March of Dimes funds were exhausted for medical treatment and care of polio patients. Among them were Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, and Tennessee.

O'Connor said the sum was the largest advanced by the national foundation in any week since the polio outbreak started its upward spiral.

The foundation has advanced $5,518,164 to chapters in 41 states and Alaska to date.

Rer Sox Roll Over Columbia 13-5; Play Deciding Game Tomorrow

COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—After light failure delayed the start of the game for one hour, the Winnsboro Red Sox took the field here tonight to wallop the Columbia Ramblers, 13 to 5, and even their Northeast Louisiana League championship playoff at three games apiece.

The clubs will rest Sunday and plan to play the deciding battle Monday night at Monroe's new Legion Memorial Park, providing the park will be available, it was announced here.

The Crimson Hose teed off on Rambler pitching for 16 hits tonight, one of them a homer by Bill Godwin. Pete Medek led Columbia's eight-hit attack, also accounting for a circuit clout.

NATCHEZ EVENS SERIES

EL DORADO, Ark., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Natchez Indians stopped a El Dorado ninth inning rally to take the second game of the Cotton States League playoff series 8 to 6 here tonight.

The victory tied the series at one game each. El Dorado squeezed past Natchez 5 to 4 in a 16-inning affair here last night.

The Indians bunched all their hits and runs in four innings while the Oilers, who also collected 13 hits, scattered them throughout the nine inning game.

nine inning game.

A two run homer by Roy Coss brought in two El Dorado runs in the fifth inning. A single accounted for the third tally in that frame.

El Dorado staged a rally in the bottom half of the ninth but it was cut short.

The same teams meet at Natchez tomorrow afternoon for a three game stand in a continuation of the best-four-of-seven series.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A double triple automobile pile-up occurred here today.

Police said it happened this way:

Two cars stopped for a red light on busy St. Charles Avenue and a third car hit the second from the rear, knocking it into the first.

An auto and a garage truck behind the wreck, and another car repeated the performance.

Damage to three cars was heavy, but only one minor injury was reported.

PERMIT ISSUED

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 3.—A permit was issued during the week by the Louisiana state department of conservation for drilling a wildcat well in Catahoula parish. It was issued to Hunt Oil Company and others No. 16, Louisiana Delta Hardwood Lumber and others, section 27-4N-5E, for drilling approximately 7,000 feet.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

CHICAGO—Wheat: Slightly easier in light trade. Corn: September weak; cash grain arrivals increase. Oats: Steady; expect better European demand. Soybeans: Little changed; trade light. Hogs: Nominally steady. Cattle: Nominally steady.

Spread biscuit dough with butter or margarine (softened), brown sugar, a sprinkling of cinnamon, and a few chopped nutmeats. Then roll up in jelly-roll fashion, cut in slices, and bake in a hot oven.

To test a pancake griddle drop a few drops of cold water on it; if the water forms small bubbles that hiss and dance over the griddle pour on the cakes.

One Oil Producer, 2 Dry Holes, 5 Gassers In Week

Placid Gets 40-Barrel Pumper At 1,498 Feet In Urania Field; Murphy, Carter, Abandon Dry Holes In Richland, Catahoula

One new oil producer, two dry and abandoned wells and five gassers were reported in the Monroe district in the conservation department's weekly drilling record here yesterday.

The new pumper, producing 40 barrels a day at its site in the Urania field at Tullos, was completed at 1,498 feet, the report disclosed, at the Placid Oil Company's Urania No. 8 at 2-9-1E.

The Murphy-Sun Oil Company abandoned a dry wildcat in Richland parish and the Carter Oil Company pulled out on a dry hole in Catahoula parish. Sites were at 4-9-6E in Catahoula and 15-17-9E in Richland.

Gassers were:

The Union Producing Company's Fee 768 No. 2, an output of 3,800,000 cubic feet in 34-19-3E in the Monroe field in Ouachita parish.

The Feazel et al. Monroe Drilling Company's Dumas No. 1, output of 767,000 cubic feet, at 30-20-3E in Union parish in the Monroe field.

The United Carbon Company's Harrell No. 2 at 21-22-3E, an output of 243,000 cubic feet, in the Monroe field in Union parish.

The United Carbon Company's Harrell No. 3 at 28-22-5E, an output of 243,000 cubic feet, in the Monroe field in Union parish.

The United Carbon Company's Rosa L. McKinney No. 1, an output of 297,000 cubic feet, at 28-22-3E in the Monroe field in Union parish.

And the United Carbon Company's Arvis and W. B. McKinnie No. 1 at 28-22-3E, with an output of 172,000 cubic feet, in the Monroe field in Union parish.

New locations staked were:

The Marine Oil Company's Farrar No. 1 at 19-5-6E in Catahoula parish.

The Arkansas Oil Company's Tremont "A" injection well No. 1 at 3-9-2E in LaSalle parish.

The H. L. Hunt Company's well at 34-7-3E in LaSalle parish in the West Catahoula field.

Sidney Latham-Jack C. Allen et al. No. 1 at 35-7-3E in LaSalle parish in the West Catahoula field.

Southern Carbon Company's Ter Delta No. B at 11-22-4E in the Morehouse parish in the Monroe field.

Nebo Oil Company-LaSalle Ltd. Co. No. 1 at 15-15-4E in Ouachita parish in a wildcat field.

Stanolind Oil and Gas Delta Lumber company's No. 22 at 10-16-7E in a wildcat field in Richland parish.

Stanolind Oil and Gas-Delta Lumber Company's No. 22 at 15-16-7E in the Big Creek field in Richland parish.

Stanolind Oil and Gas-Delta Lumber Company's No. 23 at 3-16-7E in the Big Creek field in Richland parish.

Union Producing Company-Grayling No. 22 at 7-22-4E in the Monroe field in Union parish.

Union Producing Company-Grayling No. 26 at 7-22-4E in the Monroe field in Union parish.

And Guy Mabee Drilling Company's Frost No. 2 at 19-23-1E in the Truxno field in Union parish.

OKLA. DRILLING NOW DWINDLING

Seasonal Slump In Oil Industry Causes Operations To Slow

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Oklahoma drilling operations dwindled this week during a seasonal slump of the oil industry.

Sooner completions were at low ebb, the Tulsa World reported, with a total of 67—including 36 producers, two gas wells and 29 dry holes.

New Locations remained fairly normal. Eighty-six starts were staked out in 29 counties, Carter and Pontotoc each reporting 11.

The week's statistics: Daily oil potential, 2,471 barrels; gas potential, 2,487,000 cubic feet per day; total footage drilled, 249,902.

There were enough bright spots to quicken the average operator's pulse. Among them:

W. C. McBride-Frank Buttram No. 1 Tilley—NE NE NW of 9-4N-5E in the new southeast Bebee Pool of Pontotoc county—flowed 47 barrels an hour average from 1,955 feet in Viola lime.

Also in Bebee, the Eason Oil Co.'s No. 4 Askins—SW NW SW of 27-5N-4E—came in with 10 barrels of crude an hour from the Hunton lime topped at 2,409 feet.

Two new locations were reported in the expanding Elk City Play of Beckham county, both by the Westoak Gasoline Co. It has taked offsets to producers in the C SW NE of 24-10N-21W and the C NW SE of 24-10N-21W.

In that same field, the Shell Oil Co.—its discovered—completed another high gravity producer, the No. 1-A state. The well—C NW SE of 9-10N-21W—flowed 36 barrels of oil in 54 minutes from 9,533 feet.

Gavin county remained in the limelight with several outstanding oilers. They were Magnolia Oil Co.'s No. 1 Richardson—NW NW SE of 34-4N-2W—flowing 49 barrels an hour from 6,248 feet; Sinclair Oil and Gas Co.'s No. 2 Jones-Heffner—C SE NE of 3-4-3W—in for an 11-hour average of 218 barrels from 7,050 feet; Carter Oil Co.'s No. 2 Hale—C NW of 1-1N-2W—finaled at 313 barrels in 24 hours from 6,686 feet; and Sun Oil Co's No. 3 Anderson—NW NW NE of 24-3-3W—flowing 40 barrels an hour from 6,844 feet.

Millions Still Being Spent For Oil Search

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Millions of dollars still are being spent in search for new oil reserves despite the 1949 slump in domestic production.

Current domestic output is approximately 800,000 barrels daily below a year ago but there still is a good chance more new wells will be drilled this year than in 1948.

Long-range, multi-million dollar exploration programs are well under way by several major companies.

Last week's edition of the Oil and Gas Journal reported 21,672 new wells having been completed the first seven months of 1949. This is only 16 less than the same period in 1948 when the industry's postwar boom reached its peak.

This week Sinclair Oil Corporation announced details of a $250,000,000, five-year expansion program concentrating on undeveloped leases.

This is in addition to Sinclair's $150,000,000 postwar projects for refinery and pipeline expansion.

Sinclair President P. C. Spencer said the company holds leases on over 5,000,000 acres of land, of which only 225,000 are considered proven oil reserves.

Meanwhile, imports of crude oil still dominate forecasts on probable changes in domestic supply and demand the balance of the year.

Major importers recently advised the Texas railroad commission they expect imports to average about 430,000 barrels daily the last three months of 1949.

Russell B. Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, this week said such an estimate indicates a continued increase in imports.

The Texas oil regulatory commission, following receipt of the import estimates, increased the state's September crude allowables by 132,000 barrels daily.

But Ernest O. Thompson, senior member of the commmission, thinks the action may have been a mistake.

Domestic stocks, he said, still are in super-abundance.

His remarks were in reply to a state department charge the commission has kept domestic supplies below desired levels by reducing Texas allowables seven times since last December.

Texas congressmen had solicited the state department's aid in curtailing imports.

Another official group conducting a similar survey among the importers is taking no chances—at least for the present—of its findings adding fuel to the foreign oil controversy.

A three-man house small business subcommittee in Washington is investigating the oil industry's ailments. Much of its testimony has involved complaints against imports.

The survey among the importers is to become part of the committee's records.

Tidelands

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug this week indicated the proposed compromise legislation designed to end the tidelands ownership controversy can expect a veto from the White House.

Krug, testifying before a house judiciary committee, said a veto awaits any legislation turning control of coastal oil lands to the states.

Compromise plans reportedly would split control as well as oil revenues between the respective tidelands states and the federal government.

Tidelands operators meanwhile hope for an early settlement, whether in favor of the states or teh federal government. Some companies have declined to develop leases until the title question is settled. Others have curtailed operations.

Current operations, however, involve huge investments.

Walter S. Hallanan, chairman of the National Petroleum Council, advised the house committee investments have exceeded $190,000,000. Gross returns to date, he said, have totaled only $900,000, or less than 0.5 per cent of the investment.

Gas Boom

Industrial plants are carrying the weight of the summer end of the postwar swing toward use of natural gas.

A federal power commission report says natural gas company sales to commercial and industrial consumers increased in June 3.1 per cent and 3.6 per cent, respectively, over the same month last year. Household sales dropped 0.8 per cent.

Over all company sales the 12 months ending June 30 jumped 16.8 per cent over the previous fiscal year.

Crude oil production cutbacks in Texas have caused little change in the state's gas output.

In June Texas gas production totaled 273,571,840,000 cubic feet, compare dto 260,379,865,000 in June 1948. Oil well gas dropped 900,000,000 cubic feet but natural gas jumped 14,000,000,000.

Pipelines took 50.85 per cent of the state's June production, compared to 45.21 per cent a year earlier.

DAILY AVERAGE DROPS SHARPLY

Three Straight Weeks Of Advance Cut By Over 800 Barrels

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Afte three straight weeks of advances, th nation's daily average crude oil pro duction dropped 875 barrels durin the week ended ug. 27. The Oil an Gas Journal reported today.

The slight decline lowered the tot daily average output to 4,720,475 bar rels.

A heavy drop in Kansas account for most of the slump. That state production fell 9,050 barrels to 256,30 barrels. Oklahoma was down 1,10 barrels to 378,300 and Wyoming wa off 2,900 to 126,800.

Indiana lost 600 barrels to 26,60 Arkansas fell 100 to 73,150, Louisian was down 300 to 482,700 and Californ dropped 500 to 899,300.

Five major gains were reported the eastern area, up 1,400 barrels to 6 000; Illinois, 3,850 to 184,100; Michiga 3,050 to 46,900; Mississippi, 2,300 t 100,850, and Colarod, 2,100 to 67,600.

Florida gained 25 barrels to 1,60 Alabama was up 100 to 1200, Kentuck increased 200 to 22,900, Montana adde 600 to 27,100, and Utah advaiced 10 to 1,300.

Production was unchanged in Ne braska, 500 barrels; New Mexico, 125, 075, and Texas, 1,838,200.

The Journal reported Canada's gai for the week was 2295 barrels to 65,28 of which 62,280 barrels was from Al berta Province.

ntered eye of well-formed hurricane. Maximum winds of 65 knots (about 75 miles per hour). Diameter of eye 22 miles. Propeller governor out, propeller running wild. Getting out of storm immediately," Pilot William Yeaw messaged.

Comdr. Harding said the plane was safe and the propeller was under control a short time after Yeaw sent his message. Details of the hurricane hunter's trouble were not known immediately. The plane was scheduled to land at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico.

The new storm—fourth of the season—was spawned from the hangover of storm number three. The small tropical disturbance which left seven dead in the tiny British Island of Barbados Sept. 1 flattened into an easterly wave last night. It was from this area of disturbance that the new storm grew.

As the hurricane picked up strength, Florida was still counting the damage from the "renegade" hurricane Aug. 27-28 which raked the "Gold Coast" and caused an estimated $40,000,000 to $45,000,000 damage.

New Oil Field Found In Iberia Parish

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Discovery of a new Louisiana oil field was announced Saturday by the Texas Company with completion of its No. 14 State Rabbit Island well as a producer.

The discovery well is located on the north bank of Rabbit Island in Iberia parish, in Atchafalaya Bay, about 25 miles south of Franklin.

Sand was perforated from 8,824 to 8,850 feet and flowed 292 barrels of 36.2 gravity pipe line oil per day on a 9/64 inch choke. Tubing pressure was 1519 pounds and the gas-oil ratio was 441-1.

The dome is 14 miles southwest of the Texas Company's Belle Island dome and 10 miles southwest of Horseshoe Bayou producing field. The structure was discovered in 1939.

Caribbean Hurricane Gains Velocity North Of San Juan

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 3.—(AP)—The new opical disturbance in the Caribbean ea has developed into a full fledged urricane with winds up to 75 miles er hour.

A navy hurricane hunter aircraft—ith one of its engines useless after a opeller ran wild—reported the rap- ly developing storm had formed a efinite eye with winds near the cen- r at hurricane velocity (75 M. P. H.).

The Miami weather bureau said the orm center was located about 250 iles north northwest of San Juan, uerto Rico.

It was moving in a west northwest northwest direction about 12 to 15 iles per hour.

Grady Norton, chief storm forecast- , said the storm is "increasing rap- ly in intensity."

Comdr. E. T. Harding, commander the navy hurricane hunter squad- n, here reported that the plane rid- g the storm radioed one of its pro- llers had run wild.

"Entered eye of well-formed hurricane. Maximum winds of 65 knots (about 75 miles per hour). Diameter of eye 22 miles. Propeller governor out, propeller running wild. Getting out of storm immediately," Pilot William Yeaw messaged.

Comdr. Harding said the plane was safe and the propeller was under control a short time after Yeaw sent his message. Details of the hurricane hunter's trouble were not known immediately. The plane was scheduled to land at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico.

The new storm—fourth of the season—was spawned from the hangover of storm number three. The small tropical disturbance which left seven dead in the tiny British Island of Barbados Sept. 1 flattened into an easterly wave last night. It was from this area of disturbance that the new storm grew.

As the hurricane picked up strength, Florida was still counting the damage from the "renegade" hurricane Aug. 27-28 which raked the "Gold Coast" and caused an estimated $40,000,000 to $45,000,000 damage.

New Oil Field Found In Iberia Parish

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Discovery of a new Louisiana oil field was announced Saturday by the Texas Company with completion of its No. 14 State Rabbit Island well as a producer.

The discovery well is located on the north bank of Rabbit Island in Iberia parish, in Atchafalaya Bay, about 25 miles south of Franklin.

Sand was perforated from 8,824 to 8,850 feet and flowed 292 barrels of 36.2 gravity pipe line oil per day on a 9/64 inch choke. Tubing pressure was 1519 pounds and the gas-oil ratio was 441-1.

The dome is 14 miles southwest of the Texas Company's Belle Island dome and 10 miles southwest of Horseshoe Bayou producing field. The structure was discovered in 1939.

DON'T "OVER-WEAR" CLOTHES
If you wear clothes until the sweat and dirt are well worn into the cloth, it is much harder for your dry cleaner to remove and shortens the life of your clothes.
TO MAKE CLOTHES LAST LONGER
- Don't Overwear Them
- Watch for Moths
- Don't let them mildew
- Let us clean and press them often.

DON'T "OVER-WEAR" CLOTHES

If you wear clothes until the sweat and dirt are well worn into the cloth, it is much harder for your dry cleaner to remove and shortens the life of your clothes.

TO MAKE CLOTHES LAST LONGER

- Don't Overwear Them
- Watch for Moths
- Don't let them mildew
- Let us clean and press them often.

Trinity Baptist Church Now Starts On Second Year

Only Nine Years Of Age, Now Has Property Value At $1,000,000

Today marks another stepping stone in the history of Trinity Church on Reagen street, West Monroe, as they celebrate their first anniversary in their new home. In March, 1947 the church with only $5,500 in the church treasury and facing a critical shortage in material and labor branched out on faith to erect a brick monument for worship. Under the leadership of Rev. Filer J. Seal, plans were drawn up for an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500 and an educational building of three stories and containing 19 class rooms, two baths, a library and pastor's study. One year ago today Rev. Seal and people entered their new home.

The pastor and people were still not satisfied with only a church home so in March the pastor and church branched out on faith in the building of a parsonage. The pastor and family have recently moved into the new pastorium. The pastor's home is of brick veneer and contains seven rooms and two baths, and is valued at $20,000.

Through the courtesy of James A. Noe and radio station KNOE the church was privileged to broadcast the first service in the new church one year ago. KNOE again will broadcast the morning service from 11 a. m. till 12 noon. The public is invited to come take part in this service. A program of thanksgiving has been carefully planned.

The pastor and church are grateful for the splendid co-operation and services granted it by the late Mayor Golson, Mayor C. C. Bell, police juror Tom Hicks and their co-workers. Many friends and business firms have had a part in making these buildings possible. To all who have had a part the church is grateful.

Today the church is only nine years old and has a property value of approximately $100,000, and a very small indebtedness. It has a membership of approximately 600. 140 have united with the church the past year.

Rev. Seal, the pastor of this church, was born in Washington parish, the son of a farmer, William A. Seal. Before entering the ministry he worked faithfully as a layman, serving the church as a deacon, church treasurer, Sunday school teacher, and president of Brotherhood, during which time he was wholesale grocery salesman.

After surrendering as a minister of the gospel, the first convert to come under his ministry was his brother, Ernest Seal, who is now also a minister.

In the 13 years of his ministry he has led in the building of five churches and three pastoriums. He came to us from Second Baptist, Bogalusa, La., where he served as pastor for five years during which time there were over 500 additions. In the 33 months he has served Trinity Church as pastor, 392 have united with the church, and two men have surrendered to the ministry. They are George Womack, who is now serving two half time churches and plans to enter New Orleans Seminary this fall; Charles Polk is at present receiving training at Clark College at Newton, Miss.

The church recently elected officers for the coming year. The newly elected officers to serve with the pastor are Choir Director Marion Perkins, Sunday School Supt. E. L. Sanford, Training Union Director C. J. Greenlee, Church Clerk Woodrow Neese, Church Treasurer Johnny Bowman, chairman ushers, Berl Maynor, pianist, Inell Charles.

RACING PILOTS TANGLE AT RACE

Throttle-Happy Fliers Break All Records Placed Before Them

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3. — (AP) — Throttle-happy pilots knocked down every record they had a crack at today at the start of the National Air Races' 20th anniversary showing.

Joe de Bona, who is a Hollywood, Calif., real estate dealer between races, probably was the happiest of the lot. He won the day's prime sporting event, the Bendix cross-country dash from Rosamond Dry Lake, Calif., with an average speed of 470.1 miles an hour for just over 2,00 miles.

But he wasn't the fastest of today's winners. An air force jet pilot had that honor.

Around pylons and across country, big and little ships, jets and propellers tore the book apart for a crowd estimated by officials at 30,00 or more.

The fastest speed of the day was the 529.6 miles an hour average by Maj. Vernon A. Ford, of the air force, flying a Republic F-84 Thunderjet single engine fighter.

He led a small fied of Thunderjets from Muroc, Calif., air base with a stop at Salina, Kas., to refuel. His elapsed time was three hours, 45 minutes, 51 seconds for the 1,933-mile trip.

De Bona dropped out for lack of gas last year and finished less than two minutes behind Paul Mantz in 1948.

He greeted Actor Jimmy Stewart, one of his backers, with a "Hi Buddy, I finally did it for you."

Stewart grabbed the big outstretched hand in both of his and shouted, "Thanks a helluva lot, Joe."

De Bona told a reporter it was his last air race, now that he had achieved his ambition of winning the Bendix.

Bill Brennand of Oshkosh, Wis., started off the record-wrecking day by setting a new competitive mark for midget racing planes. He took the first of four heats in the Goodyear trophy race with an average of 177.6 m. p. h.

But an hour later, Bill's boss, Steve Wittman of Oshkosh, the old fox of small racing, set a new record for planes of the midget class in officially timed closed course flying. He averaged 184.5. The previous high had been 183.3 m. p. h. set during the qualifying trials by Billie Robinson of Pacoima, Calif., last Tuesday.

Today Robinson had to quit while leading the fourth heat of the Goodyear, when his canopy came loose and knocked off his crash helmet. He got down with no more than a scare.

The navy established a mark in a new event, a jet fighter race from the deck of the carrier Midway. Lieut. Dan Laird of Loomis, Calif., led his team in with an average of 548.9 m. p. h. for the 432-mile dash.

It was a great day for racing. Cleveland's skies were sunny, the wind was a moderate five to ten miles an hour, and cross-country fliers reported helping winds of 35 miles an hour or so.

Stanley H. Reaver of Glendale, Calif., nosed out Herman Salmon of Van Nuys, Calif., for second place in the Bendix. It appeared that Salmon, who had crossed the country three times in less than three days, was ahead, but the official timers put him 38-second behind Reaver.

Reaver's average speed was 450.2 m. p. h. Salmon's average was 449.2.

D. E. Buzzart of Nashville, Tenn., trailed the Bendix propeller division in with an elapsed time of four hours 50 minutes and an average of 343 m. p. h. He flew a British de Havilland Mosquito two-engine bomber.

Leland Cameron of North Hollywood, Calif., flying a B-26 Marauder, was forced down at North Platte, Neb., by feul line trouble. After a delay of one hour and seven minutes, he took off again. The only other starter, Vince Perron of Burbank, Calif., had to stop at Grand Junction, Colo., when his AT-12 Trainer developed engine trouble.

Major Ford, whose home is Middletown, Pa., although he now is based near San Francisco, reported good flying for all except a brief stretch in his quick ride from California. He was on the ground only two minutes, six seconds while taking on fuel at Salina.

Capt. J. E. Newman of Mason City, Neb., averaged 524.6 m. p. h. to come in second only two seconds ahead of Lt. Col. L. E. Moon of Kamiah, Idaho. Moon's average was 524.5 m. p. h. Capt. Harry M. Lester of Gambier, Ohio, was third with an average of 514 m. p. h. Capt. Franklin Rizzer of Syracuse, Ohio, dropped out at Peoria, Ill.

The flight of Lieut. Laird and his team was from the decks of the Midway as the carrier plowed through Atlantic waters.

More Mice Caught With Gum Drops Than Cheese

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 3.—(AP)—University of Vermont scientists say you can catch more mice with gum drops than with cheese.

In their annual battle to keep field mice from establishing winter quarters in the science hall, the professors got themselves a bag of gum drops.

What happens should happen to an inquisitive mouse.

The gum drops are used in ordinary traps. When the mouse bites the confection it sticks in his teeth—and W H A M, he gets it in the neck.

One professor's report: 17 mice killed in one hour—on one gum drop.

Three Top Union Bosses Put Leadership At Stake

John Lewis, Phillip Murray And Walter Reuther Face Battles

By Harold W. Ward

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Three of the nation's most resourceful labor leaders face major struggles for survival this Labor Day.

John L. Lewis, Phillip Murray and Walter P. Reuther have risked their leadership over a fourth-round of post-war wage increases and welfare-pension demands for millions of workers.

Seldom since the first Labor Day parade in 1882 has there been such a challenge to industry across the bargaining table, affecting so many workers.

Personal rivalries between the three big union chiefs play a part in the struggle.

Murray, as head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (C. I. O.) and leader of up to a million steelworkers, is most on the spot. He forced his dispute with employers into the White House, and President Truman appointed a fact-finding board to recommend a solution.

Regardless of the board's proposed settlement of Murray's 30-cent "package" demand, the big and little steel companies under contract with the steelworkers have indicated they may —and probably will—fight it.

That makes Murray's position the most precarious. Both Lewis, head of the independent United Mine Workers, and Reuther, who leads nearly a million members of the C. I. O. auto workers, have nudged their contract negotiations dates past the early September deadline for the steel board's report.

Only Murray knows how big a part his break with Lewis plays in his insistence on a 12 1/2-cent hourly pay increase and a pension and group hospital plan for steel workers. Lewis has had a welfare and pension plan since 1946, when the government seized strike-bound mines and made the Krug-Lewis agreement for their operation.

Murray, stuck with long-term contracts, has had his hands tied up but would like to force the steel industry to set up a liberal pension and hospital plan now.

Reuther is in much the same position. A very vocal rank and file in the auto plants keep the youthful, red-haired Reuther on his toes. If Lewis and Murray get too far ahead on the so-called welfare issues Reuther's generalship may be severely attacked.

Much of the zeal for pensions and hospital programs can be traced to Lewis "the innovator."

Shaggy-haired Lewis first asked for a welfare royalty in 1945, but the war was still raging and he withdrew his demand. After V-J day, he went after it in earnest. After a 59-day strike, he and Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug agreed upon a five-cent royalty on each ton of coal for a welfare and disability program. By direct negotiation with the operators, he has built this up to 20 cents a ton or about $100,000,000 a year. This summer he has indicated he'd like to double that.

As part of his strategy this year, Lewis put hard and soft coal miners east of the Mississippi river on a three-day work week. By so doing he kept the welfare payments coming in without too much loss and gave the miners a summer of at least partial employment.

Because of market conditions, the miners were working only two, four or five days anyway.

In delaying a contract showdown with the operators until after Murray has his, Lewis indicated again the resourcefulness which has made him the most controversial labor leader for a quarter century.

He discarded the miners' "no contract, no work" policy and announced the diggers would continue indefinitely to work under terms of the pact which expired June 30.

The three-day week, he said, would put the industry on a steady economic keel, stabilize prices and avoid a shutdown. It would also, incidentally, help eat up the reserve supply of mined coal which put him at a disadvantage in contract talks with the operators.

The three-day week and the welfare-pension program are only a couple of the innovations which Lewis has brought to the labor movement.

Thirty years ago he fought Samuel Gompers as head of the American Federation of Labor when as a husky young upstart he insisted on organizing workers by industries instead of crafts. He finally got enough support in the A. F. of L. in 1935 to establish a Committee for Industrial Organization. But that led to his ouster, along with his associates, and then the C. I. O. became a rival labor federation.

Lewis and Murray, his long-time lieutenant, split over the latter's allegiance to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and other things. Murray went along as head of the C. I. O. while Lewis pursued an independent role. In 1946 Lewis tried another term with the A. F. of L. but soon locked horns with the leadership.

There again his strategy was bold. He wanted to ignore the Taft-Hartley act. Other A. F. of L. leaders couldn't agree, so Lewis went his lone way again. But he, more than any other labor chief, can be credited with keeping the labor law on the books untouched by the eighty-first congress rather than accepting amendments unsatisfactory to labor and thus depriving labor of a real political issue in the 1950 congressional campaign

It will be interesting to see how Murray and Reuther emerge from their contract snarls.

But Lewis has taken an enormous bite this time in trying to dictate a shorter week without loss of pay and double his welfare royalty. It will be even more interesting to see how he fares.

DAVIS-LAWHEAD BUSINESS SOLD

Louis L. Peters Will Revive Old Time Company Name Here

Louis L. Peters announced Saturday that he has purchased the Davis-Lawhead Funeral Home, 1008 Jackson street, and will take possession at once. Purchase price paid Hugh Davis, owner and operator of the company, was not made known.

The company will be known hereafter as the Peters Funeral Home and complete remodeling of the building will be effected. The insurance policies will be carried through the First National Insurance Company, as been the case with Davis-Lawhead. Mr. Davis has purchased a home on Gordon avenue and will remove there and enjoy a well-earned retirement, it is understood.

Mr. Peters is son of the late Fred Peters, prominent furniture dealer and mortician and for years member of the Ouachita parish police jury. The grandfather of Louis Peters was the founder of the business which became in time one of the leading business concerns in the parish. In course of time, Louis succeeded to the management of the old Peters furniture and undertaking business and continued the undertaking business up to about three years ago when he sold to Hixson Bros. Funeral Home, but in the transaction he maintained the name of Peters Funeral Home which he is now again prepared to use.

Mr. Peters stated Saturday that he expects to give a continuance of the excellent service that has in years past made the name of Peters outstanding in all northeast Louisiana. He anticipates and solicits the support and cooperation of his many friends in this locality.

Help is on the way for the home painter. A Cleveland, O., inventor has perfected a new dripless paint brush which is expected to go a long way toward taking the drip out of amateur work. It's not on the market just yet, but should be at an early date.

NAVAL OFFICER TREATED KINDLY

William Johnson, Ending Two Decades In Service, Now Being Retired

The year was 1929. There was suppressed sorrow in the home of Mrs. Margaret Johnson, for William was gone; gone to the U. S. navy. Navy—the word meant apprehension, anxiety, worry, fear and doubt to any mother. To the son, William, the word navy spelled hope for the future, ambition, travel, adventure and a place in the sun.

Today, the year 1949, twenty and one-half years, eight promotions and one world war later, William is home to stay. His sea voyages are over. His future includes the dreary? prospect of receiving $116.94 each month for the next nine years. At that time, his retainer pay will be increased to that of chief boatswain (chief warrant officer) in the United States navy.

Twenty-one years of naval service have treated William kindly. Sensible living, with plenty of good food and fresh air is the Bo's'n's formula for a happy healthy life. His education has improved somewhat since he was a boot (recruit). William remarked that his "teachers" merely wrote their instructions on a No. 13 shoe and applied it to the nearest seat of learning with much energy and remarkable aim. The theory at that time being that the only way to teach a raw recruit how to be a sailor was to write lessons on a club and beat it into his thick head. Today, the navy offers instructions in a different manner. Such as: Correspondence courses, trade schools, and shipboard instruction classes in 62 different trades and professions.

William Martin Johnson was an ambitious sailor. By studying regularly and working hard, hand over fist, he rose from a raw recruit to the rank of chief boatswain, U. S. N.

During his active career, he served on a total of 17 ships. Some, like the old Texas and the target ship Utah, have been sent beneath the waves to reach whatever peace and rest that an old discarded man-o-war receives when it's life span is completed. Some, like the Guadalcanal, made names for themselves in World War Two. William was a member of the boarding party when the Guadalcanal captured the German submarine U505, in the Atlantic ocean, and was awarded the presidential unit citation.

Johnson was asked, "How do you feel about the navy, now that you have done your time and reached the retired list?" A few minutes thought brought this answer: "How can one describe an inanimate object he has learned to love? Something so large and of such a complex nature he doesn't understand what it is? You just live it. Actually, the strongest feelings for the navy that I have are gratitude and a deep affection." After twenty-one years of service, that is a pretty good recommendation.

Sterlington Man Will Be In Movie

Ensign Oel Futrell, Jr., 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Futrell, Sterlington, may be seen in the movie, "Slattery's Hurricane," scheduled to appear at the Monroe Paramount Theater for three days beginning Monday.

Young Futrell is seen as the pilot of a naval plane engaged in searching for a hurricane in the ocean off Florida. Futrell's actual business is hurricane hunter for Uncle Sam.

He will be seen several times during the show which features Linda Darnell, Richard Widmark, and Veronica Lake.

Futrell graduated from the Choudrant High School, spent a year and a half at Northeast Junior College in 1944-45, and finally graduated from Iowa University after short sojourns at three other colleges.

HOME-VISITING IS SCHOOL PLAN

City Of Monroe System Will Have Teachers Call On Parents

Supt. J. M. Boyet of the Monroe city school system stated that for a number of years the teachers of the elementary grades in the Monroe city school system have been visiting in the homes of the children they teach. This is part of the visiting teacher program of the city. This year the program is being extended throughout the system.

It has been noted that modern schools are giving increased emphasis and attention to developing cooperation in home-school relationships. Parents and teachers today realize that there is a great need for better understanding between the home and the school, thus this home-visitation program.

They realize, also, that a child cannot do good school work if there is not a united front. Children cannot operate in two separate worlds—one a school and the other the home—unless both understand the aims and desires of the other, and work together for the good of the child.

Parents are invited to visit the schools and participate in Parent-Teacher activities, but so often circumstances make it impossible for the parent to come to the school. Yet it has been found that more satisfactory school work is achieved and the child is happier when parents and teachers meet together and come to a common understanding of the child's needs.

The children of the Monroe city school system will be informed when their teacher is planning to visit and the parents will be contacted to see when it is convenient to meet the child's teacher. It is hoped that this program will be of great value in more effective growth and development of the children.

Free Clinic For The Hard Of Hearing

Hearing Specialist

A free Clinic for the Hard of Hearing will be held at the Acousticon Offices, Amman Bldg., 209½ DeSiard St., Monroe, La., Monday, September 5th, from 10:00 A. M. to 4:00 P. M. This clinic will be conducted by Buell H. Brown, an authorized ACOUSTICIAN and a trained, experienced hearing specialist with a record of wonderful results in fitting difficult cases, especially those who have never been able to wear the usual type hearing aid.

Without cost to you, without any obligation whatever on your part, we will give you a complete examination and make a scientific fitting. At this clinic ACOUSTICON'S revolutionary new hearing developments will be explained and demonstrated:

The new, special CONSTELLATION series. Not one, not two, but 36 different hearing aids, and you are invited to come in and discover which one is for you — for your individual hearing loss. The particular hearing lens you need will be fitted for your hearing just as eye glasses are fitted to correct your vision.

At last, after years of research costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, ACOUSTICON'S scientists have discovered a marvelous new way to hear. BALANCED HEARING. It means hearing the way people with no impairment can hear. It is being acclaimed by thousands all over the country.

Mr. Brown will also demonstrate INVISIBLE HEARING. It has been highly praised by the hard of hearing everywhere. With it you hear everything but nothing is seen. No receiver button in the ear. No unsightly, dangling cord. No heavy bulky batteries.

If you are using a hearing aid, no matter what type it is, bring it in to the clinic for service or for batteries, cords, receivers, etc. Have it checked and inspected free of cost.

All of the hard of hearing are cordially invited to the clinic.

ACOUSTICON. The world's first and oldest manufacturer of electrical hearing aids.

Trinity Baptist Church Now Starts On Second Year

Only Nine Years Of Age, Now Has Property Value At $1,000,000

Today marks another stepping stone in the history of Trinity Church on Reagen street, West Monroe, as they celebrate their first anniversary in their new home. In March, 1947 the church with only $5,500 in the church treasury and facing a critical shortage in material and labor branched out on faith to erect a brick monument for worship. Under the leadership of Rev. Filer J. Seal, plans were drawn up for an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500 and an educational building of three stories and containing 19 class rooms, two baths, a library and pastor's study. One year ago today Rev. Seal and people entered their new home.

The pastor and people were still not satisfied with only a church home so in March the pastor and church branched out on faith in the building of a parsonage. The pastor and family have recently moved into the new pastorium. The pastor's home is of brick veneer and contains seven rooms and two baths, and is valued at $20,000.

Through the courtesy of James A. Noe and radio station KNOE the church was privileged to broadcast the first service in the new church one year ago. KNOE again will broadcast the morning service from 11 a. m. till 12 noon. The public is invited to come take part in this service. A program of thanksgiving has been carefully planned.

The pastor and church are grateful for the splendid co-operation and services granted it by the late Mayor Golson, Mayor C. C. Bell, police juror Tom Hicks and their co-workers. Many friends and business firms have had a part in making these buildings possible. To all who have had a part the church is grateful.

Today the church is only nine years old and has a property value of approximately $100,000, and a very small indebtedness. It has a membership of approximately 600. 140 have united with the church the past year.

Rev. Seal, the pastor of this church, was born in Washington parish, the son of a farmer, William A. Seal. Before entering the ministry he worked faithfully as a layman, serving the church as a deacon, church treasurer, Sunday school teacher, and president of Brotherhood, during which time he was wholesale grocery salesman.

After surrendering as a minister of the gospel, the first convert to come under his ministry was his brother, Ernest Seal, who is now also a minister.

In the 13 years of his ministry he has led in the building of five churches and three pastoriums. He came to us from Second Baptist, Bogalusa, La., where he served as pastor for five years during which time there were over 500 additions. In the 33 months he has served Trinity Church as pastor, 392 have united with the church, and two men have surrendered to the ministry. They are George Womack, who is now serving two half time churches and plans to enter New Orleans Seminary this fall; Charles Polk is at present receiving training at Clark College at Newton, Miss.

The church recently elected officers for the coming year. The newly elected officers to serve with the pastor are Choir Director Marion Perkins, Sunday School Supt. E. L. Sanford, Training Union Director C. J. Greenlee, Church Clerk Woodrow Neese, Church Treasurer Johnny Bowman, chairman ushers, Berl Maynor, pianist, Inell Charles.

RACING PILOTS TANGLE AT RACE

Throttle-Happy Fliers Break All Records Placed Before Them

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3. — (AP) — Throttle-happy pilots knocked down every record they had a crack at today at the start of the National Air Races' 20th anniversary showing.

Joe de Bona, who is a Hollywood, Calif., real estate dealer between races, probably was the happiest of the lot. He won the day's prime sporting event, the Bendix cross-country dash from Rosamond Dry Lake, Calif., with an average speed of 470.1 miles an hour for just over 2,00 miles.

But he wasn't the fastest of today's winners. An air force jet pilot had that honor.

Around pylons and across country, big and little ships, jets and propellers tore the book apart for a crowd estimated by officials at 30,00 or more.

The fastest speed of the day was the 529.6 miles an hour average by Maj. Vernon A. Ford, of the air force, flying a Republic F-84 Thunderjet single engine fighter.

He led a small fied of Thunderjets from Muroc, Calif., air base with a stop at Salina, Kas., to refuel. His elapsed time was three hours, 45 minutes, 51 seconds for the 1,933-mile trip.

De Bona dropped out for lack of gas last year and finished less than two minutes behind Paul Mantz in 1948.

He greeted Actor Jimmy Stewart, one of his backers, with a "Hi Buddy, I finally did it for you."

Stewart grabbed the big outstretched hand in both of his and shouted, "Thanks a helluva lot, Joe."

De Bona told a reporter it was his last air race, now that he had achieved his ambition of winning the Bendix.

Bill Brennand of Oshkosh, Wis., started off the record-wrecking day by setting a new competitive mark for midget racing planes. He took the first of four heats in the Goodyear trophy race with an average of 177.6 m. p. h.

But an hour later, Bill's boss, Steve Wittman of Oshkosh, the old fox of small racing, set a new record for planes of the midget class in officially timed closed course flying. He averaged 184.5. The previous high had been 183.3 m. p. h. set during the qualifying trials by Billie Robinson of Pacoima, Calif., last Tuesday.

Today Robinson had to quit while leading the fourth heat of the Goodyear, when his canopy came loose and knocked off his crash helmet. He got down with no more than a scare.

The navy established a mark in a new event, a jet fighter race from the deck of the carrier Midway. Lieut. Dan Laird of Loomis, Calif., led his team in with an average of 548.9 m. p. h. for the 432-mile dash.

It was a great day for racing. Cleveland's skies were sunny, the wind was a moderate five to ten miles an hour, and cross-country fliers reported helping winds of 35 miles an hour or so.

Stanley H. Reaver of Glendale, Calif., nosed out Herman Salmon of Van Nuys, Calif., for second place in the Bendix. It appeared that Salmon, who had crossed the country three times in less than three days, was ahead, but the official timers put him 38-second behind Reaver.

Reaver's average speed was 450.2 m. p. h. Salmon's average was 449.2.

D. E. Buzzart of Nashville, Tenn., trailed the Bendix propeller division in with an elapsed time of four hours 50 minutes and an average of 343 m. p. h. He flew a British de Haviland Mosquito two-engine bomber.

Leland Cameron of North Hollywood, Calif., flying a B-26 Marauder, was forced down at North Platte, Neb., by feul line trouble. After a delay of one hour and seven minutes, he took off again. The only other starter, Vince Perron of Burbank, Calif., had to stop at Grand Junction, Colo., when his AT-12 Trainer developed engine trouble.

Major Ford, whose home is Middletown, Pa., although he now is based near San Francisco, reported good flying for all except a brief stretch in his quick ride from California. He was on the ground only two minutes, six seconds while taking on fuel at Salina.

Capt. J. E. Newman of Mason City, Neb., averaged 524.6 m. p. h. to come in second only two seconds ahead of Lt. Col. L. E. Moon of Kamiah, Idaho. Moon's average was 524.5 m. p. h. Capt. Harry M. Lester of Gambier, Ohio, was third with an average of 514 m. p. h. Capt. Franklin Rizzer of Syracuse, Ohio, dropped out at Peoria, Ill.

The flight of Lieut. Laird and his team was from the decks of the Midway as the carrier plowed through Atlantic waters.

More Mice Caught With Gum Drops Than Cheese

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 3.—(AP)—University of Vermont scientists say you can catch more mice with gum drops than with cheese.

In their annual battle to keep field mice from establishing winter quarters in the science hall, the professors got themselves a bag of gum drops.

What happens should happen to an inquisitive mouse.

The gum drops are used in ordinary traps. When the mouse bites the confection it sticks in his teeth—and W H A M, he gets it in the neck.

One professor's report: 17 mice killed in one hour—on one gum drop.

Three Top Union Bosses Put Leadership At Stake

John Lewis, Phillip Murray And Walter Reuther Face Battles

By Harold W. Ward

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Three of the nation's most resourceful labor leaders face major struggles for survival this Labor Day.

John L. Lewis, Phillip Murray and Walter P. Reuther have risked their leadership over a fourth-round of post-war wage increases and welfare-pension demands for millions of workers.

Seldom since the first Labor Day parade in 1882 has there been such a challenge to industry across the bargaining table, affecting so many workers.

Personal rivalries between the three big union chiefs play a part in the struggle.

Murray, as head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (C. I. O.) and leader of up to a million steelworkers, is most on the spot. He forced his dispute with employers into the White House, and President Truman appointed a fact-finding board to recommend a solution.

Regardless of the board's proposed settlement of Murray's 30-cent "package" demand, the big and little steel companies under contract with the steelworkers have indicated they may—and probably will—fight it.

That makes Murray's position the most precarious. Both Lewis, head of the independent United Mine Workers, and Reuther, who leads nearly a million members of the C. I. O. auto workers, have nudged their contract negotiations dates past the early September deadline for the steel board's report.

Only Murray knows how big a part his break with Lewis plays in his insistence on a 12 1/2-cent hourly pay increase and a pension and group hospital plan for steel workers. Lewis has had a welfare and pension plan since 1946, when the government seized strike-bound mines and made the Krug-Lewis agreement for their operation.

Murray, stuck with long-term contracts, has had his hands tied up but would like to force the steel industry to set up a liberal pension and hospital plan now.

Reuther is in much the same position. A very vocal rank and file in the auto plants keep the youthful, red-haired Reuther on his toes. If Lewis and Murray get too far ahead on the so-called welfare issues Reuther's generalship may be severely attacked.

Much of the zeal for pensions and hospital programs can be traced to Lewis "the innovator."

Shaggy-haired Lewis first asked for a welfare royalty in 1945, but the war was still raging and he withdrew his demand. After V-J day, he went after it in earnest. After a 59-day strike, he and Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug agreed upon a five-cent royalty on each ton of coal for a welfare and disability program. By direct negotiation with the operators, he has built this up to 20 cents a ton or about $100,000,000 a year. This summer he has indicated he'd like to double that.

As part of his strategy this year, Lewis put hard and soft coal miners east of the Mississippi river on a three-day work week. By so doing he kept the welfare payments coming in without too much loss and gave the miners a summer of at least partial employment.

Because of market conditions, the miners were working only two, four or five days anyway.

In delaying a contract showdown with the operators until after Murray has his, Lewis indicated again the resourcefulness which has made him the most controversial labor leader for a quarter century.

He discarded the miners' "no contract, no work" policy and announced the diggers would continue indefinitely to work under terms of the pact which expired June 30.

The three-day week, he said, would put the industry on a steady economic keel, stabilize prices and avoid a shutdown. It would also, incidentally, help eat up the reserve supply of mined coal which put him at a disadvantage in contract talks with the operators.

The three-day week and the welfare-pension program are only a couple of the innovations which Lewis has brought to the labor movement.

Thirty years ago he fought Samuel Gompers as head of the American Federation of Labor when as a husky young upstart he insisted on organizing workers by industries instead of crafts. He finally got enough support in the A. F. of L. in 1935 to establish a Committee for Industrial Organization. But that led to his ouster, along with his associates, and then the C. I. O. became a rival labor federation.

Lewis and Murray, his long-time lieutenant, split over the latter's allegiance to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and other things. Murray went along as head of the C. I. O. while Lewis pursued an independent role. In 1946 Lewis tried another term with the A. F. of L. but soon locked horns with the leadership.

There again his strategy was bold. He wanted to ignore the Taft-Hartley act. Other A. F. of L. leaders couldn't agree, so Lewis went his lone way again. But he, more than any other labor chief, can be credited with keeping the labor law on the books untouched by the eighty-first congress rather than accepting amendments unsatisfactory to labor and thus depriving labor of a real political issue in the 1950 congressional campaign

It will be interesting to see how Murray and Reuther emerge from their contract snarls.

But Lewis has taken an enormous bite this time in trying to dictate a shorter week without loss of pay and double his welfare royalty. It will be even more interesting to see how he fares.

DAVIS-LAWHEAD BUSINESS SOLD

Louis L. Peters Will Revive Old Time Company Name Here

Louis L. Peters announced Saturday that he has purchased the Davis-Lawhead Funeral Home, 1008 Jackson street, and will take possession at once. Purchase price paid Hugh Davis, owner and operator of the company, was not made known.

The company will be known hereafter as the Peters Funeral Home and complete remodeling of the building will be effected. The insurance policies will be carried through the First National Insurance Company, as been the case with Davis-Lawhead. Mr. Davis has purchased a home on Gordon avenue and will remove there and enjoy a well-earned retirement, it is understood.

Mr. Peters is son of the late Fred Peters, prominent furniture dealer and mortician and for years member of the Ouachita parish police jury. The grandfather of Louis Peters was the founder of the business which became in time one of the leading business concerns in the parish. In course of time, Louis succeeded to the management of the old Peters furniture and undertaking business and continued the undertaking business up to about three years ago when he sold to Hixson Bros. Funeral Home, but in the transaction he maintained the name of Peters Funeral Home which he is now again prepared to use.

Mr. Peters stated Saturday that he expects to give a continuance of the excellent service that has in years past made the name of Peters outstanding in all northeast Louisiana. He anticipates and solicits the support and cooperation of his many friends in this locality.

Help is on the way for the home painter. A Cleveland, O., inventor has perfected a new dripless paint brush which is expected to go a long way toward taking the drip out of amateur work. It's not on the market just yet, but should be at an early date.

NAVAL OFFICER TREATED KINDLY

William Johnson, Ending Two Decades In Service, Now Being Retired

The year was 1929. There was suppressed sorrow in the home of Mrs. Margaret Johnson, for William was gone; gone to the U. S. navy. Navy—the word meant apprehension, anxiety, worry, fear and doubt to any mother. To the son, William, the word navy spelled hope for the future, ambition, travel, adventure and a place in the sun.

Today, the year 1949, twenty and one-half years, eight promotions and one world war later, William is home to stay. His sea voyages are over. His future includes the dreary? prospect of receiving $116.94 each month for the next nine years. At that time, his retainer pay will be increased to that of chief boatswain (chief warrant officer) in the United States navy.

Twenty-one years of naval service have treated William kindly. Sensible living, with plenty of good food and fresh air is the Bo's'n's formula for a happy healthy life. His education has improved somewhat since he was a boot (recruit). William remarked that his "teachers" merely wrote their instructions on a No. 13 shoe and applied it to the nearest seat of learning with much energy and remarkable aim. The theory at that time being that the only way to teach a raw recruit how to be a sailor was to write lessons on a club and beat it into his thick head. Today, the navy offers instructions in a different manner. Such as: Correspondence courses, trade schools, and shipboard instruction classes in 62 different trades and professions.

William Martin Johnson was an ambitious sailor. By studying regularly and working hard, hand over fist, he rose from a raw recruit to the rank of chief boatswain, U. S. N.

During his active career, he served on a total of 17 ships. Some, like the old Texas and the target ship Utah, have been sent beneath the waves to reach whatever peace and rest that an old discarded man-o-war receives when it's life span is completed. Some, like the Guadalcanal, made names for themselves in World War Two. William was a member of the boarding party when the Guadalcanal captured the German submarine U505, in the Atlantic ocean, and was awarded the presidential unit citation.

Johnson was asked, "How do you feel about the navy, now that you have done your time and reached the retired list?" A few minutes thought brought this answer: "How can one describe an inanimate object he has learned to love? Something so large and of such a complex nature he doesn't understand what it is? You just live it. Actually, the strongest feelings for the navy that I have are gratitude and a deep affection." After twenty-one years of service, that is a pretty good recommendation.

Sterlington Man Will Be In Movie

Ensign Oel Futrell, Jr., 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Futrell, Sterlington, may be seen in the movie, "Slattery's Hurricane," scheduled to appear at the Monroe Paramount Theater for three days beginning Monday.

Young Futrell is seen as the pilot of a naval plane engaged in searching for a hurricane in the ocean off Florida. Futrell's actual business is hurricane hunter for Uncle Sam.

He will be seen several times during the show which features Linda Darnell, Richard Widmark, and Veronica Lake.

Futrell graduated from the Choudrant High School, spent a year and a half at Northeast Junior College in 1944-45, and finally graduated from Iowa University after short sojourns at three other colleges.

HOME-VISITING IS SCHOOL PLAN

City Of Monroe System Will Have Teachers Call On Parents

Supt. J. M. Boyet of the Monroe city school system stated that for a number of years the teachers of the elementary grades in the Monroe city school system have been visiting in the homes of the children they teach. This is part of the visiting teacher program of the city. This year the program is being extended throughout the system.

It has been noted that modern schools are giving increased emphasis and attention to developing cooperation in home-school relationships. Parents and teachers today realize that there is a great need for better understanding between the home and the school, thus this home-visitation program.

They realize, also, that a child cannot do good school work if there is not a united front. Children cannot operate in two separate worlds—one a school and the other the home—unless both understand the aims and desires of the other, and work together for the good of the child.

Parents are invited to visit the schools and participate in Parent-Teacher activities, but so often circumstances make it impossible for the parent to come to the school. Yet it has been found that more satisfactory school work is achieved and the child is happier when parents and teachers meet together and come to a common understanding of the child's needs.

The children of the Monroe city school system will be informed when their teacher is planning to visit and the parents will be contacted to see when it is convenient to meet the child's teacher. It is hoped that this program will be of great value in more effective growth and development of the children.

Free Clinic For The Hard Of Hearing

Hearing Specialist

A free Clinic for the Hard of Hearing will be held at the Acousticon Offices, Amman Bldg., 209½ DeSiard St., Monroe, La., Monday, September 5th, from 10:00 A. M. to 4:00 P. M. This clinic will be conducted by Buell H. Brown, an authorized ACOUSTICIAN and a trained, experienced hearing specialist with a record of wonderful results in fitting difficult cases, especially those who have never been able to wear the usual type hearing aid.

Without cost to you, without any obligation whatever on your part, we will give you a complete examination and make a scientific fitting. At this clinic ACOUSTICON'S revolutionary new hearing developments will be explained and demonstrated:

The new, special CONSTELLATION series. Not one, not two, but 36 different hearing aids, and you are invited to come in and discover which one is for you — for your individual hearing loss. The particular hearing lens you need will be fitted for your hearing just as eye glasses are fitted to correct your vision.

At last, after years of research costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, ACOUSTICON'S scientists have discovered a marvelous new way to hear. BALANCED HEARING. It means hearing the way people with no impairment can hear. It is being acclaimed by thousands all over the country.

Mr. Brown will also demonstrate INVISIBLE HEARING. It has been highly praised by the hard of hearing everywhere. With it you hear everything but nothing is seen. No receiver button in the ear. No unsightly, dangling cord. No heavy bulky batteries.

If you are using a hearing aid, no matter what type it is, bring it in to the clinic for service or for batteries, cords, receivers, etc. Have it checked and inspected free of cost.

All of the hard of hearing are cordially invited to the clinic.

ACOUSTICON. The world's first and oldest manufacturer of electrical hearing aids.

MARRIAGE OF MISS MIRIAM OLIVER TO THOMAS GRAYSON ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. William Courtney Oliver announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Miriam Catchings Oliver, to Mr. Thomas Boyd Grayson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer M. Grayson, of Baton Rouge, on June 14, in Baton Rouge.

Miss Oliver is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Harrison Oliver of this city and of Mr. and Mrs. T. Frank Causey, of McComb Miss. She is a graduate of Neville High School and of Louisiana State University where she was a member of the Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Grayson attended the University High School at Baton Rouge, and was graduated from Sewanee Military Academy and Louisiana State University. He served for two years in the U. S. Naval Air Corps. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The bridegroom is a grandson of the late Colonel Thomas Duckett Boyd, for many years president of L. S. U., and Mrs. Boyd. His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Grayson, of Selma, Ala.

PARISH LIBRARY HAS ACQUIRED 126 NEW VOLUMES IN PAST MONTH

In the month of August 126 new books were added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Most of these books were adult books, and the collection contained several fascinating new titles, according to Miss Frances Flanders, parish librarian.

"The Egyptian" by Mika Waltari is a recreation of an era hitherto untouched in the field of fiction. This story is set in Egypt more than a thousand years before Christ and takes in all of the then-known world. It is told by Sunuhe, physician to the Pharoh and is a story of this life. Events of war, intrigue, murder, passion, love and religious strife are revealed by Sinuhe. The author, Mika Waltari, is probably the most famous living author in his native Finland. His book is already an enormous success in Europe and will probably be most popular in this country.

The "Willow Cabin" by Pamela Frankau is an unforgettable love story. It has a rare combination of charm and pathos, of freshness and sophistication. It is the love story of Caroline Seward and Michael Knowles. It is an unusual narrative, told with smartness and suspense. Don't miss this one.

Readers of light fiction are very fond of Helen Topping Miller. Her latest story deals with Texas in the Reconstruction period. It is called "Mirage." Dickson Channing went to Texas as an alternative to Alabama in the reconstruction period. This story shows how the change affected each of his children and how he worked out his destiny and how they found theirs.

"The River Line" by Charles Morgan is a story of three friends who met after the war and recalled their experiences.

It is a psychological novel and deals with the question of responsibility and guilt. It is one that you will not soon forget.

"Family Fortunes" by Gwen Davenport is a light story dealing with the Brackenwoods of Kentucky. It is written in a light vein and makes interesting reading.

"A Matter of Taste" by Richards Lockridge is a murder novel dealing with a man who killed for the experience and who thought he was above the law. "The Asphalt Jungle" by W. R. Burnett is a thriller story in the rugged tradition and will appeal especially to men. "The D. A. Breaks An Egg," by Erle Stanley Gardner is very similar to his others, but if you like this series, watch for it.

"The Mudlark" by Theodore Bonnet is a charming story about a London waif who slipped into Windsor Castle to see Queen Victoria and by his actions changed the course of history.

"The Sure Thing" by Merle Miller is not a pleasant novel, but it may well become a great one. It is concerned with the forces that are at play in our world today and especially is a book which will shock the complacency of many readers and one about man's inhumanity to man. This which needed to be written.

"A Little Sleep, a Little Slumber" by Norman Katov is a book dealing with the deep love of a simple man for his family and the humble love of an immigrant for his new country.

In the field of non-fiction there are many new books "When the Oil Wells Run Dry," by Walter M. Fuchs is an interesting study of the problem of conserving our natural resources. "Mirror For Man" by Clyde Kluckholm is a new approach to the study of anthropology. "Lillies for Every Garden" by Isabella Preston will be eagerly read by flower gardners. "Let's Arrange Flowers" by Hazel P. Dunlop fills a great need as does John Conway's "Flowers Their Arrangement." "Fifteen Ways to Make Money in the Country" and Front Porch Farmer" will be of interest to our Bookmobile patrons. "The Mature Mind" by H. A. Overstreet is a book of psychology that will be most popular. "Lead Kindly Light" by Vincent Sheen is a book of practical religion which will help many bewildered readers. "Rocky Mountain Cities" by Ray B. West is a most interesting travel book dealing with the most important cities of that region. "Young Hickory" by Mrs. Martha Morrell is a biography of the life of President James K. Polk. "The History of Popular Music in America" by Sigmund Spaeth will fill a longfelt need. "Shrubs and Vines for American Gardens" by Donald Wyman is the most comprehensive book on the subject. "Indians Before Columbus" by Paul Sidney Martin is a new treatment of the Indians and their life. "The English Interior" by Ralph Dutton is a witty and erudite book dealing with interior decoration in England. There is a book for every taste, it is pointed out.

Mrs. Victor Parish of Sterlington was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Rosa Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. John Glidewell.

Kappa Delta Alumnae Group Entertained At Recent Party

Mrs. Amos Shelton Entertains Women At Evening Party Held Recently

Members of Kappa Delta alumnae were entertained Monday night at an informal party at the home of Mrs. Amos Shelton. A silver bowl embossed with the Greek letters of the sorority centered the serving table. It was filled with white roses, the Kappa Delta flower.

Green and white sandwiches which had been fashioned to resemble the pledge pin and the membership pin added an interesting note to the refreshments. These were served with frosted mint drinks and cakes which further carried out the sorority colors of green and white.

Discussion centered around future plans. Alumnae from both the Louisiana Tech and L. S. U. chapters of Kappa Delta were present. These included: Mrs. Jack R. Taylor, Mrs. Vann L. Pratt, Mrs. R. E. Foster, Jr., Mrs. Emmett Mitchell, Jr., Miss Magdalen Amman, Mrs. W. C. Cookston, Jr., Mrs. Marie Frazier, Mrs. George W. Levert, Miss Florence Fluker, Mrs. William Nadler, Mrs. Leo Terzia, Jr., Mrs. Neal McHenry, Miss Beth Reinhardt, Mrs. Garland Hammons, Miss Miriam Oliver, Mrs. Ivy Jordan, Mrs. Dan Moore, Jr., Mrs. Don Hibbard, of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Shelton.

Ann Claire Humphreys Is Wed To Kaplan Man At Friday Ceremony

Wedding At First Baptist Church In West Monroe Is Followed By Lotus Club Reception

Miss Ann Claire Humphries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howell Humphries, of West Monroe, became the bride of Mr. Sterling Womack LeJeune in an impressive ceremony which took place at the West Monroe Baptist Church on Friday evening at 8 p. m. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andre LeJeune of Kaplan.

The church was decorated with a profusion of white flowers and greenery, white tall cathedral tapers glowed in wrought iron candelabra. The Rev. Jaroy Weber performed the ceremony.

Mr. J. Nowell Harper of Lake Charles sang a program of nuptial music. He was accompanied by Miss Martha McDonald of West Monroe.

Mrs. Clifton Greene Pearce, Jr., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rhodes J. Spedale, of Plaquemine; Mrs. Sam B. Magruder, of El Paso, Texas; Mrs. James Lee, of Bunkie; Mrs. Robert D. Carter, of West Monroe; Miss Mary Jolly, of Baton Rouge and Miss Jo Ann Biedenharn, of this city.

Both the matron of honor and the bridesmaids wore gowns of apple green lace and net fashioned with strapless bodices and lace stoles. All wore single strands of pearls and rosebuds in their hair. Their arm bouquets were of yellow and pink roses bound with satin streamers of green and yellow, and they wore lace mitts with tiny ruffle trim.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a frock of imported lace over satin. Fashioned with fitted bodice and high neck, the bodice bore tiny self-covered buttons. Her veil of illusion fell from a tiny shirred cap trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies was centered by a large white orchid and cascaded with satin streamers.

Mrs. E. C. Schindler, of Lake Charles served as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. E. C. Schindler, Mr. James Moore, and Mr. James Woosley, of Lake Charles; Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Jr.. of this city; Dr. R. J. Spedale, of Plaquemine; Mr. William Ekberg, of Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. J. V. Robichaux, of New Orleans; Mr. R. D. Carter, of West Monroe; Mr. James Lee, of Bunkie, and Mr. Donald Smith, of Ferriday.

Mrs. Humphries, the mother of the bride, wore an ashes of roses gown of chiffon fashioned with lace bodice. She carried a small brocaded bag centered by a purple orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a grey chiffon gown with full skirt and fitted bodice, and a corsage of tiny orchids.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Lotus Club.

Following the reception the couple left for a fortnight's trip to Mexico City. For traveling the bride wore a green suit with matching hat and brown accessories.

JEAN MARIE DAWKINS HONORED AT RECENT FARMERVILLE PARTY

Floor baskets and other containers were placed at vantage points throughout the spacious new home of Mrs. N. B. James in Farmerville, on Thursday, when she, Mrs. Dewey L. Barr and Mrs. Frank Yelton entertained with a miscellaneous shower complimenting Miss Jean Marie Dawkins, whose marriage to the Reverend Eugene Langford took place on September 1.

Receiving with the hostesses and honoree were her mother, Mrs. J. R. Dawkins, and her grandmother, Mrs. W. M. White of Ruston. Mrs. Lonnie Black, Jr., presided over the bride's book in which the guests registered. On her table were a lovely bride doll and a single yellow candle in a crystal holder.

The refreshment table, overlaid with white satin, represented a gift package, tied with wide yellow ribbon, which was brought together with an attractive bow, adorned with tricotine. Drapes around the edge of the table were folds of tricotine, caught at intervals with ivy leaves and sprays of clematis. A large heart, decorated with flowers, stood before the punch bowl at which Miss Ruth Hartman presided. Yellow tapers in crystal candelabra, and dainty twin yellow satin hearts on a base of tricotine were also noted. On the china closet a double heart and yellow candles rested against a background of ivy.

Yellow tapers arose from a bowl of yellow rose buds and white chrysanthemums on the buffet, flanked by crystal birds in nests of tricotine. In the living room, tables in U-shape formation also represented gift parcels with bows and streamers of yellow satin ribbon. They held the many handsome gifts brought to the honor guest. Mrs. J. D. Miller, Jr., Misses Myrtle Bass and Beth Dawkins assisted in the courtesies.

When Mrs. Lester Hartman and Miss Ruth Hartman of Farmerville entertained with a luncheon on Wednesday, honoring Miss Dawkins, the reception suite held lovely arrangements of pink and red roses.

The beautifully appointed table with its attractive green and white place cards, was centered with a bowl of white carnations, chrysanthemums and fern.

A three-course luncheon was served to the honoree, Mesdames N. B. James, J. R. Dawkins, Dewey L. Barr, Frank Yelton, Lonnie Black, Jr., Miss Dawn Taylor and the hostesses.

The honor guest's place was marked with a piece of silver in her chosen pattern.

Ann Claire Humphreys Is Wed To Kaplan Man At Friday Ceremony

Wedding At First Baptist Church In West Monroe Is Followed By Lotus Club Reception

Miss Ann Claire Humphries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howell Humphries, of West Monroe, became the bride of Mr. Sterling Womack LeJeune in an impressive ceremony which took place at the West Monroe Baptist Church on Friday evening at 8 p. m. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andre LeJeune of Kaplan.

The church was decorated with a profusion of white flowers and greenery, white tall cathedral tapers glowed in wrought iron candelabra. The Rev. Jaroy Weber performed the ceremony.

Mr. J. Nowell Harper of Lake Charles sang a program of nuptial music. He was accompanied by Miss Martha McDonald of West Monroe.

Mrs. Clifton Greene Pearce, Jr., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rhodes J. Spedale, of Plaquemine; Mrs. Sam B. Magruder, of El Paso, Texas; Mrs. James Lee, of Bunkie; Mrs. Robert D. Carter, of West Monroe; Miss Mary Jolly, of Baton Rouge and Miss Jo Ann Biedenharn, of this city.

Both the matron of honor and the bridesmaids wore gowns of apple green lace and net fashioned with strapless bodices and lace stoles. All wore single strands of pearls and rosebuds in their hair. Their arm bouquets were of yellow and pink roses bound with satin streamers of green and yellow, and they wore lace mitts with tiny ruffle trim.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a frock of imported lace over satin. Fashioned with fitted bodice and high neck, the bodice bore tiny self-covered buttons. Her veil of illusion fell from a tiny shirred cap trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies was centered by a large white orchid and cascaded with satin streamers.

Mrs. E. C. Schindler, of Lake Charles served as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. E. C. Schindler, Mr. James Moore, and Mr. James Woosley, of Lake Charles; Mrs. C. G. Pearce, Jr., of this city; Dr. R. J. Spedale, of Plaquemine; Mr. William Ekberg, of Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. J. V. Robichaux, of New Orleans; Mr. R. D. Carter, of West Monroe; Mr. James Lee, of Bunkie, and Mr. Donald Smith, of Ferriday.

Mrs. Humphries, the mother of the bride, wore an ashes of roses gown of chiffon fashioned with lace bodice. She carried a small brocaded bag centered by a purple orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a grey chiffon gown with full skirt and fitted bodice, and a corsage of tiny orchids.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Lotus Club.

Following the reception the couple left for a fortnight's trip to Mexico City. For traveling the bride wore a green suit with matching hat and brown accessories.

SUE M'MOYE BECOMES BRIDE OF WALTER A. HINCKLEY RECENTLY

The wedding of Miss Sue McMoye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McMoye, of this city, and Mr. Walter A. Hinckley, son of Mrs. W. E. Hinckley and the late Mr. Hinckley, of West Monroe, took place at the Parkview Baptist Church in the presence of many friends and relatives recently.

White crepe myrtle and gleaming tapers formed the background for the candlelight ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Colon P. Coaker.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Cecil Hill played a program of nuptial music. She also accompanied Miss Carolyn McMoye, sister of the bride, who sang, "I Love You Truly." Candles were lighted by Miss Mildred Dupree.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a colonial frock of white organdy over satin. The bodice was fashioned with a yoke of lace with a wide ruffle edged in lace. The frock had short puffed sleeves. The bouffant skirt was edged with a full ruffle of organdy. She wore a heart shaped bonnet of lace ruffles from which fell her fingertip veil of illusion. She wore white lace mitts and carried an old fashioned bouquet of roses.

Miss Mary Ann McMoye served her sister as maid of honor. Her gown was of blue organdy similar in design to that of the bride. She wore a matching bonnet and carried a bouquet of multi-colored asters.

Serving as flower girls were Sandy Bailey of Monroe and Jerry Yelverton, of Baton Rouge, who wore dresses of pink organdy similar to that of the maid of honor. They wore wide satin sashes and their bonnets were of pink organdy ruffles. They carried white straw baskets filled with rose petals.

Mr. Courtney Childers served the bridegroom as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Billy R. Barbara and Mr. Richard R. Church.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua gown of silk crepe with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in a sheer frock with a floral print and her accessories were black. Her corsage was of white carnations also.

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dupree followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was overlaid with an imported cutwork cloth. The centerpiece was of pink roses and fern and nosegays of sweetheart roses bound with bows of illusion were placed in each of the corners. Tall tapers glowed at each end of the table, which also bore a traditional wedding cake. Assisting in the serving were Miss Mildred Dupree, Miss Carolyn McMoye, and the hostess, Mrs. Dupree. Mrs. R. H. Cunliffe presided at the punch bowl.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a navy suit with pink accessories. Her shoes and bag were navy. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The bridal couple live at 624 Rochelle Avenue, following their wedding trip.

DELTA RHO DELTA IS PLANNING YEAR OF OUTSTANDING LECTURE PROGRAMS

The new club year is bright with promise for members of Sigma chapter of Delta Rho Delta national sorority, judging from the proposed program featuring lectures, book reviews and other cultural events.

The meetings are held semi-monthly at the Frances Hotel assembly hall and always hold the interest of the club members, business and professional women.

The Monroe chapter is now entering its sixth year of activity and great enthusiasm is being manifested among members. The program this year will feature prominent local and southwestern speakers who will be presented in lectures on diversified subjects, including philosophy, travelogue, sociology, book and play dramatization, current events and personal culture.

The forthcoming program for 1949-50 includes several outstanding local speakers and a number of speakers who appear regularly on the program of Delta Rho Delta's various chapters in Louisiana and Texas.

The season will open on September 12 with Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg of Houston, Tex., with the topic, "Four Keys to Living."

Pastor of the Riverside Memorial Methodist Church, which was organized in June, 1939, with a membership of 26, and which now has more than 1,100 members, he is also director of evangelism for his district in the Methodist Church, and radio chairman for the Ministerial Alliance.

The "Delightful Game of Decoration" is the topic of a lecture to be presented on September 26 by Mrs. Faye Heard. Mrs. Heard is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club and Inter-Council Women's Club.

The October 10 engagement will be filled by Mr. Percy Wyly, II, special agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation, New Orleans. He will speak on "This is Your F.B.I."

Dr. E. L. Ford, foreign language department, Centenary College, Shreveport, on October 24, will speak on "We Owe It To America."

On November 7, Mrs. William Rodriguez will bring the members a personal culture lecture entitled, "As Others See Us." Mrs. Rodriguez is on the board of director of the Y. W. C. A., a member of the Literary Study Club and Musical Coterie.

The chapter's Christmas presentation will be given by Mrs. E. P. Cudd on December 19. She is on the board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. and a member of the First Methodist Church.

One of the outstanding lectures of the entire season will be given on January 9 by Dr. Leon G. Halden of the University of Houston, chairman of the social science department of the institution. His topic will be "Today's Dilemma."

A review of a currently popular book will be presented on January 23, by Mrs. Clifford U. Johnson.

BUSINESS SOUND IN LOUISIANA

Conditions Favorable For Increase In Jobs, States Administrator

BATON ROUGE, Sept. 3.—(Special)—Basic business conditions in Louisiana remained sound during the past month despite an unexpected slight dip in non-farm employment, and usual expansion is expected to increase the number of available jobs within 60 days, according to the monthly labor bulletin of the state division of employment security, issued by Marvin E. Thames, administrator.

Employment in the durable goods industries, which in July amounted to 52,000 is 100 below the June level; but in the manufacture of non-durable goods (food, textiles, chemicals, etc.), July showed a gain of 0.4 per cent over June, increasing from 93,800 to 94,200. In the non-durable goods segment, July, 1949, also showed a substantial gain of 4.4 per cent in employment over July, 1948.

The bulletin stated that increases in the non-durable goods industries were attributed to a seasonal jump in "hot weather" food products, supplemented by considerable expansion in the textile products industry.

Malt and non-alcoholic beverage manufacturers have been operating at a peak level, and expect at least 60 days more of good business. Food processing is expected to increase substantially as seafood operations and rice milling are resumed in August.

Over-all unemployment in Louisiana was reported as rising 3.1 per cent in July, to 46,000—as against 44,600 in June. This is an unemployment ratio 4.4 per cent to the total state labor force of 1,041,000, and "compares very favorably with the national unemployment ratio of 6.0 per cent, with several states having areas in which unemployment approaches 12 per cent of the labor force."

Principal reasons given for the unemployment increase were seasonal layoffs in agriculture and food processing, the failure of many young persons to find jobs after the closing of schools for the summer, a decline in shipping activity that idled stevedore workers, oil field workers laid off pending disposition to the tidelands question, and unfavorable weather conditions curtailing logging and sawmill operations.

Claims for unemployment compensation filed with the agency in July numbered 15,749, an increase of 7.4 per cent over June. Officials attributed this increase largely to curtailment on July 25 of the benefits unemployed G. I.'s obtained under the servicemen's readjustment act. They assume that all or most unemployed veterans who have wage credits under the Louisiana unemployment compensation law either initiated new claims during July, or revived inactive claims previously filed.

Students Advised To Seek Adventure

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A Tulane university dean told summer school graduates here to seek risk and adventure instead of security.

Dean Robert W. French of the Tulane College of Commerce and Business told 207 members of the summer graduating class that a recent survey of the nation's June graduates showed that few were willing to go into business for themselves or to work for a compensation directly related to their own efforts.

"The overwhelming majority" said the speaker "prefer a small certain salary in a position with little prospect of advance to the receipt of an uncertain commission based on their personal efforts with the prospect of a much larger income and correspondingly greater responsibilities."

Dean French said that whatever may be the explanation of this state of mind, "The fact remains that such goals are unworthy of college graduates who have been trained by their studies of the past and the present to look to the future and to contribute to the building of a better society.

The desire for security, he added, "has resulted in the creation of an element of stagnation in the present scheme of things which threatens to extend to the entire system."

SUE M'MOYE BECOMES BRIDE OF WALTER A. HINCKLEY RECENTLY

The wedding of Miss Sue McMoye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McMoye, of this city, and Mr. Walter A. Hinckley, son of Mrs. W. E. Hinckley and the late Mr. Hinckley, of West Monroe, took place at the Parkview Baptist Church in the presence of many friends and relatives recently.

White crepe myrtle and gleaming tapers formed the background for the candlelight ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Colon P. Coaker.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Cecil Hill played a program of nuptial music. She also accompanied Miss Carolyn McMoye, sister of the bride, who sang, "I Love You Truly." Candles were lighted by Miss Mildred Dupree.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a colonial frock of white organdy over satin. The bodice was fashioned with a yoke of lace with a wide ruffle edged in lace. The frock had short puffed sleeves. The bouffant skirt was edged with a full ruffle of organdy. She wore a heart shaped bonnet of lace ruffles from which fell her fingertip veil of illusion. She wore white lace mitts and carried an old fashioned bouquet of roses.

Miss Mary Ann McMoye served her sister as maid of honor. Her gown was of blue organdy similar in design to that of the bride. She wore a matching bonnet and carried a bouquet of multi-colored asters.

Serving as flower girls were Sandy Bailey of Monroe and Jerry Yelverton, of Baton Rouge, who wore dresses of pink organdy similar to that of the maid of honor. They wore wide satin sashes and their bonnets were of pink organdy ruffles. They carried white straw baskets filled with rose petals.

Mr. Courtney Childers served the bridegroom as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Billy R. Barbara and Mr. Richard R. Church.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua gown of silk crepe with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in a sheer frock with a floral print and her accessories were black. Her corsage was of white carnations also.

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dupree followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was overlaid with an imported cutwork cloth. The centerpiece was of pink roses and fern and nosegays of sweetheart roses bound with bows of illusion were placed in each of the corners. Tall tapers glowed at each end of the table, which also bore a traditional wedding cake. Assisting in the serving were Miss Mildred Dupree, Miss Carolyn McMoye, and the hostess, Mrs. Dupree. Mrs. R. H. Cunliffe presided at the punch bowl.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a navy suit with pink accessories. Her shoes and bag were navy. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The bridal couple live at 624 Rochelle Avenue, following their wedding trip.

CEREMONY AT JONESBORO UNITES JAIME STOVALL, MR. STATLANDER

At an impressive ceremony on Sunday, August 21, Jamie Camille Stovall, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Madden Stovall and the late Dr. Henry F. Stovall of Jonesboro, exchanged marriage vows with Bobby R. Stadtlander, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Stadtlander of the same city. The marriage was solemnized at two o'clock in the afternoon with the Rev. John Hurt, pastor of the Jonesboro Baptist Church, officiating at the double ring service.

The bridal couple spoke their vows in the living room where the mantel was banked with clematis. Slender white tapers burned at either end of the mantel and their soft glow was reflected in the large gold-framed mirror. Two large, milk-glass jardinieres held arrangements of white gladioli and fern which were placed on either side of the fireplace. An improvised arch was formed in the open French doorway between the living room and dining room and was outlined with trailing greenery and centered with three wedding bells tied with a large maline bow. The young couple stood under the bells to repeat their vows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Charles L. Neilson of Tallulah, was gracefully lovely in a gown of aqua crepe which featured a long, fitted waist and draped skirt. The waist was trimmed with tiny self-covered buttons, alternating with rhinestones in intricate design. She wore white accessories including a small, white half-hat of Dutch bonnet design with a soft white veil. She carried a white prayer book topped with a bouquet of white carnations with cascade streamers of white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Charles L. Neilson, sister of the bride, of Tallulah, was the only attendant. She wore a softly draped model of light blue crepe and rose colored accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of rose colored carnations.

Charles Stadtlander served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Stovall was gowned for her daughter's wedding in a two-piece model of white crepe. The cut-away jacket featured a paisley crepe trim over the hips. Multi-colored sandals and a white aster corsage completed her costume.

Mrs. Stadtlander was becomingly dressed in a daintily printed sheer model with which she wore black accessories and a white aster corsage.

An informal reception was held after the ceremony. The bride's table was overlaid with an imported cloth of white brocaded satin and centered with a low, crystal bowl holding white carnations and feverfew and interspersed with dainty fern. The floral arrangement was flanked by white cathedral tapers burning in crystal holders. The handsome cut-glass punch service was placed at one end of the table and the three-tiered wedding confection was placed at the other. Crystal compotes holding bubble mints completed the table arrangement. After the bridal couple had cut the cake, Mrs. Wayne Stovall presided at the cake service and Miss Maxine Shankles, close friend of the bride, poured punch. Misses Ann Harrison, Louise Sheppard, Beverly Stovall, and Elizabeth Seegars, assisted in the serving courtesies.

For traveling, Mrs. Stadtlander chose a tailored brown linen two-piece dress with which she wore brown and white accessories.

After a short wedding trip the young couple will be at home with the bride's mother at 724 South Allen avenue, Jonesboro.

Mrs. Stadtlander is a graduate of the Jonesboro-Hodge High School and attended Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, and Bisn-Mathis Institute in Monroe.

Mr. Stadtlander is a graduate of the Jonesboro-Hodge High School. After completing a term of service with the U. S. armed forces, he attended a professional school in Houston, Tex. He is affiliated in business with his father in Jonesboro.

A real good time and fine supper will be had, states the president, Fred H. Meyer.

TALLULAH

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bailey and sons, Pierce and Bob, are visiting in New Orleans.

Mrs. E. B. Schicker was a bridge hostess entertaining the members of the Friday Club. Mrs. B. P. Folk was the fortunate winner of the high score prize. Those enjoying the games and delightful refreshments served at the close were Mrs. W. C. Starrett, Mrs. W. S. Craig, Mrs. Mason Spencer, Mrs. Henry C. Sevier, Mrs. John Sevier, Mrs. B. P. Folk, Mrs. J. A. Gilbert, Mrs. Neal T. Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Neill entertained with a supper party at the Old Southern Tea Room in Vicksburg on Saturday evening complimentary to Dr. and Mrs. Hunter C. Sims of Blytheville, Ark. The long table was centered with a lovely arrangement of lavender and purple asters in a white soup tureen flanked by white tapers in crystal holders.

The guests included Dr. and Mrs. Sims, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Ware, Mr. and Mrs. George Kimbrough, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Yerger.

Rev. John F. Kilpatrick left Monday for Shreveport where he will attend the Pastors' School at Centenary College.

Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland, Mrs. Katherine Brown and Mrs. St. John of Monroe returned from a vacation in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Corry who have been elected to teach at the Mound School recently arrived at Mound to make their home.

W. C. Purdy who is employed at Baton Rouge spent the week end with his family here.

Mrs. Richard Miller of Talco, Texas and Mrs. Jack Springer of Truman, Ark., are guests of their mother, Mrs. W. B. Smith.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. T. E. McNeel of Dallas were week end guests of Mrs. McNeel's mother, Mrs. W. P. Sevier.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Adams left Monday for a short stay in New Orleans.

Mrs. R. E. Gilbert who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Haden Neely in Detroit, Mich., for several weeks has returned to her home here.

The monthly meeting of the Town and Country Club was held at the home of Mrs. Devonne Payne with Mrs. Barton Sevier presiding. The guest speaker, Ray Radford gave an interesting talk using as his subject, the club motto, "Ability Plus Ambition Equals Success." He also discussed the project of the Madison parish swimming pool and asked the cooperation of all members of the club in helping to bring this much needed recreational project for the town to a realization.

During the social hour which followed the hostess served delightful refreshments to Mrs. A. G. Bray, Jr., Mrs. W. M. Bray, Mrs. R. C. Webb, Jr., Mrs. D. D. Wood, Mrs. Don Sevier, Mrs. Paul Marcus, Mrs. Ralph Loe, Mrs. Barton Sevier, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Radford, Mrs. Leo Terzia of Monroe, Mrs. John Edward Hughston of New Orleans and Miss Betty Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Linton spent the week end with their daughter, Mrs. W. J. Lee and Mr. Lee in Stamps, Ark.

Dr. and Mrs. Hunter C. Sims of Blytheeville, Ark., were guests for the past week of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Ware. Mrs. Sims is a niece of Mrs. Ware. They were the recipients of several delightful courtesies during their stay in Tallulah.

Chicago Gangland Guns Cool

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—There has been a change in Chicago's underworld. The bang of gang pistols and machine guns is not heard nearly so often as it was twenty years ago, but there are other and more subtle differences between the era of Al Capone and the present.

Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, a civic agency that has been the city's "watch-dog of crime" for thirty years, compares the two periods.

"There ain't as much Wild West style shooting among gang elements as during the '20's and '30's," he says. "There still are killings, but not to the same extent."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation reported Chicago had 326 murders in 1948. That was the highest number for any city in the United States. But only a few of them were mob jobs.

The commission's files showed that gang murders averaged fifty-five a year in the violent 1926-'32 epoch. The number was down to seven in 1946, three in 1947, ten in 1948 and only two in the first half of this year.

There were as many gang murders on one day in 1929 as there were in one recent year, 1946. Seven men were executed by a firing squad in a North Side garage on St. Valentine's Day twenty years ago.

Gambling Reported Down

"During the Capone gang heyday, operations were much more brazen than today," Mr. Peterson said. "Many political figures then found it expedient to be known as friends of hoodlums. That isn't true now."

Chicago hasn't been such a happy hunting ground since Martin H. Kennelly, a business man, became mayor in 1947.

"Gambling, the main source of gang revenue, has been whittled down," Mr. Peterson said. "There used to be seven joints within a short walk of my office in the Loop. They're gone now. There still is gambling, but not on the old scale."

Mr. Peterson, a former F. B. I. agent, recited a dozen notorious names.

"A lot of the big shots of the Capone regime still are in existence," he said. "They're not as much in evidence as they were, but they still are too numerous. They're organized more along business lines.

Cites Links to Florida

"The lower level of gambling here may account for the fact that some of the hoodlums are operating elsewhere. They operate wherever they can operate with profit and without harassment. Important members of the Chicago mob are tied up with big shots on the East Coast. Others have interests in Florida."

As an example of how the Capone-built syndicate's "tentacles" have spread across the map, he cited the conspiracy in the early '40's to extort more than $1,000,000 from the movie industry. The plot was hatched in Chicago. The target was the heap of gold in Hollywood. The case ended up in New York, where five of Chicago's middle-aged "boys" were tried and convicted.

Al Capone is dead. Fourteen others on Chicago's original (1930) list of public enemies also have gone to the grave. With them went some of gangland's old trappings—the machine gun toted in a golf bag, the pearl gray hat cocked at an arrogant angle, the flamboyant funeral complete with a statue of the deceased wrought of fresh and expensive flowers.

$70.50 Is Exacted In Traffic Fines

Know Your Officials

By James V. Mathis
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Bert Coverdale may be likened to the pipes he smokes—he has been around for a long time but is still in good working condition.

On January 1, 1950, Coverdale will have completed nine years as Ouachita parish tax assessor. He will have tallied his 33rd year in the office where he started with a ledger under his arm shortly after he reached his majority.

Coverdale was born of English parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Coverdale, on October 14, 1895. His parents had migrated to the United States soon after their marriage, had disliked it and returned to London. They liked their native country even less than the United States, however, so they returned to America and settled in Natchitoches.

The elder Coverdale, with an excellent education from English schools, supported his family of three with bookkeeping and school teaching. He came to Monroe in 1910 as the court stenographer. His son, Bert, was 15 years old at the time of the shift. Milton Coverdale and the present Mrs. Annie McGehee, complete the family.

Once in Monroe young Coverdale concluded his formal education, working at varied jobs for short times until he went into the assessor's office with the then assessor, Joe Hanna, in 1916 as an outside clerk.

Trudging the dusty streets of Monroe from house to house, alternating between a horse and his feet while in Ouachita's rural area, Coverdale gleaned valuable knowledge of an assessor's duties. Under the guidance of Joe Hanna, who served as assessor until his death in 1939, Coverdale broadened his knowledge.

With the knowledge came promotion, which eventually resulted in Coverdale's taking over the chief deputies' duties.

In 1939, with the death of Hanna, Coverdale was extended the appointment to the assessor's post but declined, asking that Mrs. Hanna be named in her husband's post.

He was elected in 1940 in the first primary, to take office on the first day of 1941. He won again in 1944, and went back with a thumping majority in 1948.

Coverdale is a bluff, hearty six-footer, always ready for a laugh. Over the years he has developed a faculty for remembering names. And if he doesn't remember he can make the recipient of his greeting forget that he needs a name.

A search for Coverdale at his office in the courthouse will invariably find him behind a cloud of smoke from one of his crooked stemmed pipes. One desk drawer can be opened and found stuffed with briars formerly kept in constant use but now relegated to occasional heatings. At his home at 519 Jackson street he keeps an extra supply. His two requirements are that the stem be crooked and that when they grow too old for his taste that they be kept—for later passing on to occasional elderly gentlemen who drop by the office.

At 53 Coverdale's hair is beginning to thin, but his health, kept at the top by years of tramping the woods, is in excellent condition. His big frame shows no signs of losing the vitality that drives him the year round in his duties.

Hunting isn't merely a pastime with Coverdale—it's a passion. Annually when the parish deer season opens, Coverdale takes to the delta woodlands with his 32-inch pump 12 gauge. Ducks and other game come in for their share.

"Whether I get anything or even shoot my gun isn't too important," Coverdale says. "If I can just get to the woods and walk I feel happier than at any time. There's something about the solitude that helps a person."

Coverdale has the complicated job of satisfying 16,410 property owners in Ouachita parish. Annually he must make every effort to get 10,000 homestead exemptions signed. How well he has carried out his task is demonstrated by the fact that only one complainant has appeared before the state tax commission in the last three years.

Ouachita assessments have shown a steady climb since 1941, starting at $44,708,280 and ending at $66,123,617 in 1949. The parish exemptions signed each year run to 10,000 and save property owners slightly over $200,000 in taxes. The signatures to the exemptions are obtained only after a concentrated drive by Coverdale by newspaper, radio, telephone and personal calls.

Coverdale has served as president of the Louisiana Tax Assessors' Association after moving up each year from the chairmanship of the entertainment committee. He held office in the association after only six years as parish assessor.

When the first issue of the association's journal comes out next month Coverdale will be featured as one of the four outstanding assessors in Louisiana. He presently is serving on the legislative committee of the association.

In civic circles Coverdale belongs to the Knights of Pythias, Knights of Korassan, and Exchange Club.

Since his life has been spent serving the public from the assessor's office, parish citizens can expect to see him around come next campaign time. He has spent 33 years laying the groundwork for the successful assessor. Those aren't to be wasted.

Five-Way Cure For Drinkers

By Alton L. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

NEW YORK—There are five ways to help alcoholics to get and stay on the wagon.

Special drugs that make the drinker sick are one way. The newest of these drugs is Antabuse. By itself, it doesn't do anything to a person. But if he takes a drink afterward, he becomes sick, with nausea, hot flashes, a gripping sensation in the chest, pounding pulse, loss of appetite, weakness and other effects.

Another drug, emetine, causes vomiting. It is given just before the person is given a drink, of anything he wants. The sickness is violent. After four to eight such treatments, most patients for months or years afterward can't stand the taste or sight of a drink, even when they don't receive the drug first.

Neither drug is a cure for alcoholism. No cure is known. The chronic drunkard can reform, but usually can't take even one drink again without starting off on a binge. The drug treatments help, if the drinker sincerely wants to stop. They are dangerous, however, and must be used by trained doctors.

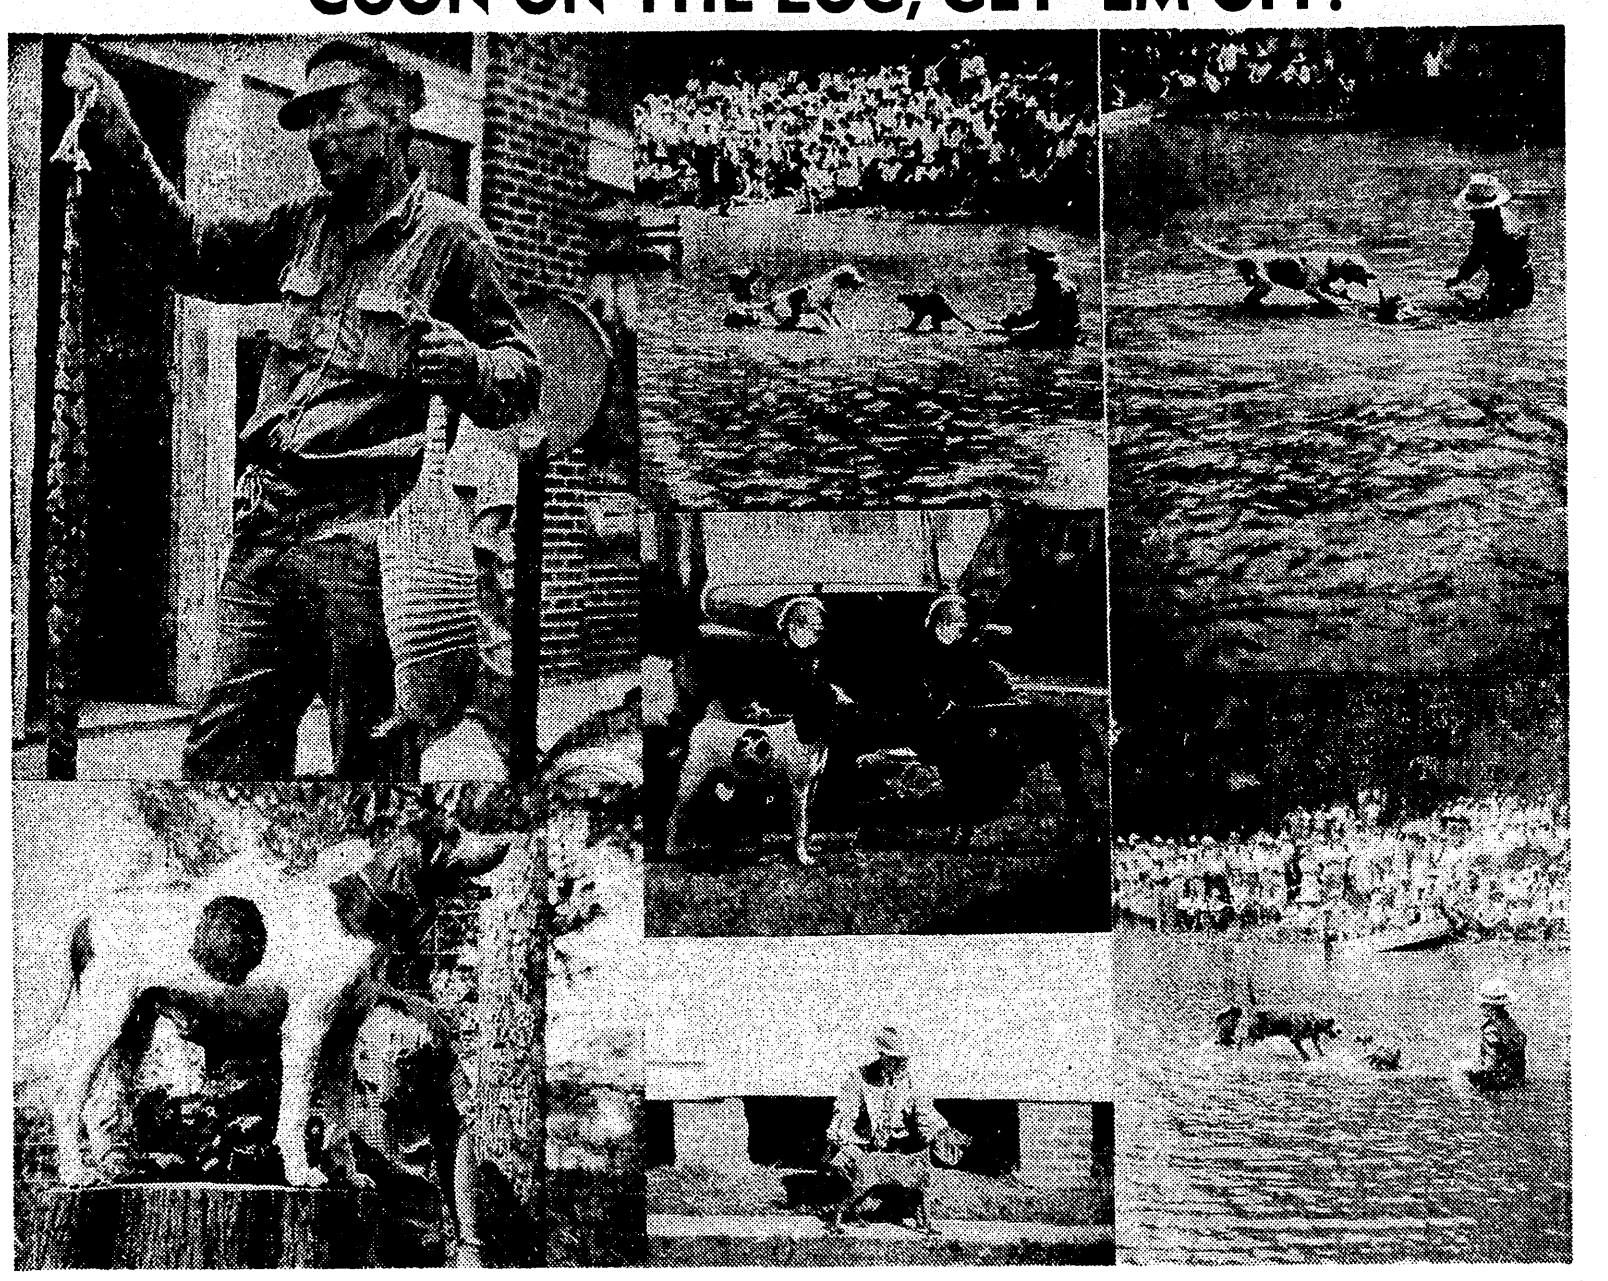
A second approach is psychological. Chronic drinking may be due to some emotional problem or frustration. If this is straightened out, the reason for the compulsion to drink may be removed. So-called sleep drugs may be used to get the patient to talk and remember things he has forgotten about, but which may explain to a doctor or psychiatrist why the person acts as he does.

A third approach is morale-building or spiritual, as typified by Alcoholics Anonymous. Here the drinker gets help and encouragement from people who faced the same problem, and licked it. The co-founder of the organization says about half of its 80,000 members never took another drink. One-fourth fell off the wagon once or twice before succeeding, while the other 25 per cent failed.

Fourth is a new legal approach to get alcoholics treated as sick people instead of tossing them into jails to sober up and then go free. A few states are tackling the chronic drinker as a public health problem, setting up facilities to give them medical care and rehabilitate them.

Fifth are studies of body chemistry and how chronic drinkers may differ from other people in their physiological make-up. Such studies may show why people differ so much in the effects that alcohol produces on them. They may lead to ways of telling which people are most susceptible to alcohol, and in danger of developing into drunkards.

COON ON THE LOG, GET 'EM OFF!



Arthur Humble, upper left, one of Monroe's coon hunters, displays a very dead rattler and an armadillo captured during a night's outing on a coon chase. In the upper center a dog once owned by Eddie Ross, 321 North Sixth street, climbs on a log occupied by a tough coon in an Arkansas field trial. The next top photo shows what happened to the coon. Bottom right shows a vigorous quarrel between another dog in the trials and a new coon. At the bottom left Ross displays his top dog Mike, who isn't for sale. Center are two more of Ross's dogs and the jeep used in hunting. Bottom center shows a four and a half month Red Bone pup. (All photos by Ross).

Sweet Music From A Mournful Hound

By James V. Mathis

Sneakin' Deacon, Mike, Trailer, Ruff, Little Red, Tramp, Big Nig, Blue——

The make music that gets in a man's blood to stay.

Their music is made at night and best listened to from beneath the damp trees of a moon-touched swamp.

They are ring-tailed coon dogs. God's gift to the coon hunter and burden to the coon hunter's wife.

Rangy Walkers, Black and Tans, Red Bones, and "just plain dam dog," they will eat a man out of house and home, but will run their hearts out for him on the trail.

Give a cooner a good dog with a deep trail voice and he'll abandon the comforts of home and turn his back on his family for a night out.

But he can't tell you why.

At least that's what Eddie Ross, stocky, 36-year-old Monroe music company owner, says. Ross has $600 tied up in dogs that cost him twenty green men a month just for feed.

"I don't know exactly why coon hunters are the way they are," Ross, an army combat veteran, says. "I know that I just go to hear the dogs on the scent and give them a hand when they tree a big one after a long run."

Plenty Rough

"Lord knows, its plenty rough. I've been out the last three nights," he said.

Ross turned the palms of his hands down, displaying the tops of his hands. "See these scratches. I got hold of a big coon with leather gloves the other night. By the time we both were happily separated my hands were bleeding."

"Then there's rattlers and moccasins. We step over the little rattlers and walk around the big ones. The mosquitos deal out plenty of misery. Sawbriers get in their licks. And there's always the lost sleep."

"Many people don't realize how destructive a coon in a corn-patch can be," Ross continued. "Farmers from all over Ouachita parish are always calling us out to give a hand in chasing coons out of their corn. All we get out of the trip is the pleasure in working our dogs."

Ring-Tailed Association

Ross a member of the Ring-Tailed Coon Hunter's Association of Louisiana, with headquarters and camp in Arcadia. He estimates that there are 30 coon hunters with dogs in Ouachita.

He writes in the July issue of the American Cooner of a hunt that he, Arthur Humble, Clarence Mills, and Francis Moss engaged in north of Monroe:

"We spotted Mr. Coon and turned the dogs out. He ran only a few minutes and treed. We cut the tree, but the coon got away and swam across a small slough, the dogs all but breathing on his neck.

"Judge, one of my dogs, picked up the scent and treed again. Humble climbed the tree and shook him out but that blamed animal got clear again. He stopped at his den next time, so we cut the tree down. Arthur Humble lost his religion then when that ring-tail started on his way again. But this time the coon ran smack into the dogs but Mills got him away without letting the dogs injure him.

"It was daylight by the time we got this fellow sacked," he concluded.

Ross keeps about twelve dogs, seven hunters at the present time, with the rest pups. He paid $150 for one Walker hound recently. This dog had a real regard for his master. He won one $175 prize in Arkansas field trials, then curled up and died suddenly. Ross has one dog, of doubtful ancestry, which no amount of money can buy. Valuable dogs have their owner's initials tattooed inside their ears.

'Coon-On-The-Log'

Ross is the only man in Monroe who takes a dog to coon field trials. He says the difference between trial dogs and animals which produce the goods is vast.

"A field trial dog has to see what he is treeing. A hunter trusts to his nose to get the desired results. Trial dogs are bred for speed, while the woods hunters need stamina and courage, as well as a good nose."

Mike, Ross' pet, specializes in coon-on-the-log competition. This tricky event was dreamed up to bring out the best in a dog. A good sized, healthy coon is placed on a log several yards out in a stream or pond. The dogs are turned loose and given 30 seconds to swim out to the log and chase the coon off his floating haven.

"Mister, it takes a real dog to get one of those tough, battling coons off," Ross asserts.

Monroe hunters will be present Monday and Tuesday when the Ring-Tailed association puts on a field trial event three miles north of Arcadia where "your hound's ears don't have to drag the ground, but he has to look hound."

"Even if we don't get to win any prizes," Ross says, happily, "we will hear plenty of sweet hound music."

What Goes On At A Tombstone Plant?

By Oland Silk
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Eerie is a word that most people associate with old buildings at night or Boris Karloff movies. But let me tell you, and I don't think I'm overly sensitive, just walking among tombstones that haven't been assigned yet gives me a funny feeling and I guess eerie is just as good a word as any to describe it.

Just to look at those things sitting out on the lot waiting for someone to come up and say, "I'll take this one" is enough to start you to feeling bad and think maybe you should start living right.

All this is going on because you have an assignment on your desk which reads, "Find out what goes on at a tombstone plant." You start thinking right away. What you're thinking isn't complimentary. It is like being told to find out what an undertaker thinks about the future of his business and being told that while there's life there's hope.

Could this be a subtle hint that you have been unlifelike around the office? Are you about to be canned? Has the anemic output of your work recently made it clearer to your boss that you should be indoctrinated with some vestiges of the later life? In other words, is somebody being a wise guy?

The assignment has no qualifications but "find out." So you put on your most morbid face, which isn't hard with taxes what they are these days, and start looking.

From your expression people think that you are a $30 a week man waiting for automobiles to go down. After all what can you ask about tombstones? Are they guaranteed for life? Are you protected against rips, ravels, and tears? Is there any discount if you buy a half-dozen?

Chips

You finally find a plant and let the chips fall where they may. In the end you think that it probably is a fascinating business. There are two kinds of stone—granite and marble—used for tombstones. Granite is the grey stone which is the third hardest rock in the world. Diamonds are the first. The life span of granite, once raised from the quarry, is 5,000 years. Since the birth of the business in Barre, Vermont, 36 million cubic feet—or a solid monument exact size of the Empire State Building—has been quarried.

(If this interests you, step a little closer.) Granite is composed of quartz mica and silica. And if you ever walk through a cemetery following a heavy rain, you'll find that grey granite is black, because of its absorption rate, said to be 90 per cent more than marble.

W. L. Harris of the Twin City Monument Company, is as helpful as possible. Such things are hard subjects to make interesting. He keeps trying and the first thing you know you come across something that is sheer beauty itself. It is marble. Vermont marble from Vermont, Georgia marble from Georgia and Italian marble from—that's right. This white stone has made some of the most beautiful buildings and monuments in the world. You can cite the Magnin Building in Los Angeles, Jefferson Memorial and Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington, D. C.

Marble

Marble is composed of calcium, quartz, and silica and organic matter. It ordinarily will not perish for 3,000 years. Mr. Harris said they received the material in great slabs and ground the tombstones and monuments out of it. He said it took three or four days to complete the former.

There isn't much more to ask without keeping the man from his work. So you walk out again and come upon those stones uncalled for. Maybe the subject is interesting but it still gives you the creeps. Perhaps it has a good effect, especially about thinking maybe you should live right. Right now I'm about to die for a cigarette.

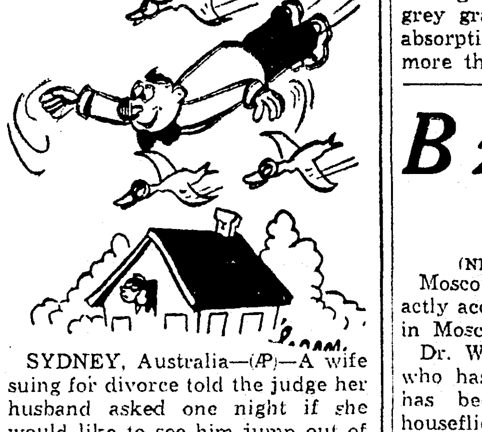
Wife Divorces Flying Drunk



SYDNEY, Australia—(AP)—A wife suing for divorce told the judge her husband asked one night if she would like to see him jump out of the bathroom window. The bathroom was 15 feet above the ground. She ignored his question and went on with her needlework.

Out of the window went her husband.

He came back in the room, asked if she had seen him. She said, "No."

He took another header out the window.

She was granted her divorce on the grounds of drunkenness and cruelty.

"He was a flying drunk," said the judge.

Bzzz! Three House Flies Are Found In Moscow, Idaho

By Al F. Barakman
(NEA Special Correspondent)

Moscow, Idaho—(NEA)—It is not exactly accurate to say there are no flies in Moscow, Idaho.

Dr. W. Earl Shull, an entomologist who has gained fame in these parts, has been diligently searching for houseflies all summer in the Moscow area, which covers a radius of 200 miles.

"I've found just three," he now reports.

Nevertheless, it is just as hard to sell fly-swatters here after Dr. Shull's search as it has been for the past three years, when this town of 8,500 got into the limelight by making the housefly as rare in Moscow, Idaho, as an American in Moscow, Russia.

Back in 1946, Dr. Shull, then head of the department of entomology at the University of Idaho, became convinced that the house fly could be eliminated, or almost so, from the earth.

Shull's formula was simple. A concentration of the new insecticide, DDT, and water.

By canvassing the town's property owners, he was able to gain sufficient backing to experiment with his plan.

By seeking out the breeding places of the pests and through general spraying practices on nearly every lot, occupied or vacant, in the community, Dr. Shull and his associates were able to say, with a great measure of accuracy: "There are no flies in Moscow.

That statement became the by-word of numerous stories about the scientific experiment. Quaries concerning the "No Flies" campaign piled up so high that Dr. Shull resigned his university position and went into the business of shooing flies for good in his home town of Moscow, in Idaho and throughout the nation.

His methods are being practiced even in foreign nations now, although there has been no report on the flies in Moscow, Russia.

Uncle Sam Has Island For Sale

By Lee Linder
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

WILMINGTON, Del.—Uncle Sam would like to sell the 50-acre, tree-studded spit of land in the Delaware river called Reedy Island. This island originally was the main quarantine station for the Port of Philadelphia.

Not long ago Shelby D. Collins, a 78-year-old Port Penn contractor, offered $7,500 for the island. The government turned it down as "unrealistic."

Collins wanted everything—nailed down or not. His bid included the land, an office building, barracks, hospital building, recreation and mess hall, carpenter ship, storage buildings, water towers and pump houses, wharves, salt water fire mains and coal bins containing 200 tons left by the navy.

The army, now custodian of the property, said Collins must be joking. Collins replied his offer still goes. He admits, however, he doesn't know what he'd do with the island if he ever got it.

Reedy Island originally belonged to the state of Delaware. The U. S. got the land as a gift in 1873. Now Delaware refuses to take it back.

The U. S. fish and wildlife service was asked to accept the island as a bird refuge. The service said it didn't think the birds would like it.

The navy was in possession for a year or so before the end of World War II but surrendered it as soon as Japan surrendered.

Right now the island is in charge of John Mitchell, a caretaker appointed by the army in January, 1948. With Mitchell are his wife, two children and a dog.

During the last 55 years the U. S. has spent between $400,000 and $500,000 on the jungle-like strip. The island lies 20 miles south of Wilmington and 40 miles from Philadelphia.

So far Collins is the only person who has shown interest in the property.

"I helped put the first stick of lumber on the place in 1893," Collins says, "but don't ask me what it's good for today.

"A duck flies by once in a while in the fall or winter and some folks have caught a muskrat or two there but that's all.

"I'd like to have the buildings, because some of them are in pretty good shape but it would take a tugboat and a barge and a crew of men to move them to the mainland."

Atlanta Is Now Area Rent Office

Regional supervision of the Monroe area rent office passes this week from Dallas, Tex., to Atlanta, Ga., according to Mr. Gillespie, area rent director.

The regional office in Dallas closed as of September 1 as a result of the decontrol of rents in Texas by the state legislature there and in line with the economies necessary by OHE in Washingtin.

The Dallas regional office formerly supervised rent control activities in the eight states of Arkansas, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. Supervisory responsibilities for the seven remaining states in the former Dallas region have been transferred to regional offices at San Francisco, Chicago and Atlanta, as follows:

(1) New Mexico to the San Francisco office, (2) Colorado, Kansas and Missouri to the Chicago regional office and (3) Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma to the Atlanta (Georgia) regional office.

Area Rent Director Gillespie said that he expected no particular changes in the operation of his office here in Monroe as a result of his regional supervision being shifted from Dallas to Atlanta.

Chicago Gangland Guns Cool

CHICAGO, Sept. 3—(AP)—There has been a change in Chicago's underworld. The bang of gang pistols and machine guns is not heard nearly so often as it was twenty years ago, but there are other and more subtle differences between the era of Al Capone and the present.

Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, a civic agency that has been the city's "watch-dog of crime" for thirty years, compares the two periods.

"There ain't as much Wild West style shooting among gang elements as during the '20's and '30's," he says. "There still are killings, but not to the same extent."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation reported Chicago had 326 murders in 1948. That was the highest number for any city in the United States. But only a few of them were mob jobs.

The commission's files showed that gang murders averaged fifty-five a year in the violent 1926-'32 epoch. The number was down to seven in 1946, three in 1947, ten in 1948 and only two in the first half of this year.

There were as many gang murders on one day in 1929 as there were in one recent year, 1946. Seven men were executed by a firing squad in a North Side garage on St. Valentine's Day twenty years ago.

Gambling Reported Down

"During the Capone gang heyday, operations were much more brazen than today," Mr. Peterson said. "Many political figures then found it expedient to be known as friends of hoodlums. That isn't true now."

Chicago hasn't been such a happy hunting ground since Martin H. Kennelly, a business man, became mayor in 1947.

"Gambling, the main source of gang revenue, has been whittled down," Mr. Peterson said. "There used to be seven joints within a short walk of my office in the Loop. They're gone now. There still is gambling, but not on the old scale."

Mr. Peterson, a former F. B. I. agent, recited a dozen notorious names.

"A lot of the big shots of the Capone regime still are in existence," he said. "They're not as much in evidence as they were, but they still are too numerous. They're organized more along business lines.

Cites Links to Florida

"The lower level of gambling here may account for the fact that some of the hoodlums are operating elsewhere. They operate wherever they can operate with profit and without harassment. Important members of the Chicago mob are tied up with big shots on the East Coast. Others have interests in Florida."

As an example of how the Capone-built syndicate's "tentacles" have spread across the map, he cited the conspiracy in the early '40's to extort more than $1,000,000 from the movie industry. The plot was hatched in Chicago. The target was the heap of gold in Hollywood. The case ended up in New York, where five of Chicago's middle-aged "boys" were tried and convicted.

Al Capone is dead. Fourteen others on Chicago's original (1930) list of public enemies also have gone to the grave. With them went some of gangland's old trappings—the machine gun toted in a golf bag, the pearl gray hat cocked at an arrogant angle, the flamboyant funeral complete with a statue of the deceased wrought of fresh and expensive flowers.

$70.50 Is Exacted In Traffic Fines

Traffic fines imposed by Judge W. M. Harper in the regular session of traffic court Friday afternoon mounted to $70.50.

Court records showed ten persons were fined $2.50 each for running red lights, one $25 fine for reckless driving and no brakes, four persons fined $2 each for running stop signs, and a $7.50 fine for speeding.

One hundred three over parking tickets of $1 each were collected.

Know Your Officials

By James V. Mathis
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Bert Coverdale may be likened to the pipes he smokes—he has been around for a long time but is still in good working condition.

On January 1, 1950, Coverdale will have completed nine years as Ouachita parish tax assessor. He will have tallied his 33rd year in the office where he started with a ledger under his arm shortly after he reached his majority.

Coverdale was born of English parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Coverdale, on October 14, 1895. His parents had migrated to the United States soon after their marriage, had disliked it and returned to London. They liked their native country even less than the United States, however, so they returned to America and settled in Natchitoches.

The elder Coverdale, with an excellent education from English schools, supported his family of three with bookkeeping and school teaching. He came to Monroe in 1910 as the court stenographer. His son, Bert, was 15 years old at the time of the shift. Milton Coverdale and the present Mrs. Annie McGehee, complete the family.

Once in Monroe young Coverdale concluded his formal education, working at varied jobs for short times until he went into the assessor's office with the then assessor, Joe Hanna, in 1916 as an outside clerk.

Trudging the dusty streets of Monroe from house to house, alternating between a horse and his feet while in Ouachita's rural area, Coverdale gleaned valuable knowledge of an assessor's duties. Under the guidance of Joe Hanna, who served as assessor until his death in 1939, Coverdale broadened his knowledge.

With the knowledge came promotion, which eventually resulted in Coverdale's taking over the chief deputies' duties.

In 1939, with the death of Hanna, Coverdale was extended the appointment to the assessor's post but declined, asking that Mrs. Hanna be named in her husband's post.

He was elected in 1940 in the first primary, to take office on the first day of 1941. He won again in 1944, and went back with a thumping majority in 1948.

Coverdale is a bluff, hearty six-footer, always ready for a laugh. Over the years he has developed a faculty for remembering names. And if he doesn't remember he can make the recipient of his greeting forget that he needs a name.

A search for Coverdale at his office in the courthouse will invariably find him behind a cloud of smoke from one of his crooked stemmed pipes. One desk drawer can be opened and found stuffed with briars formerly kept in constant use but now relegated to occasional heatings. At his home at 519 Jackson street he keeps an extra supply. His two requirements are that the stem be crooked and that when they grow too old for his taste that they be kept—for later passing on to occasional elderly gentlemen who drop by the office.

At 53 Coverdale's hair is beginning to thin, but his health, kept at the top by years of tramping the woods, is in excellent condition. His big frame shows no signs of losing the vitality that drives him the year round in his duties.

Hunting isn't merely a pastime with Coverdale—it's a passion. Annually when the parish deer season opens, Coverdale takes to the delta woodlands with his 32-inch pump 12 gauge. Ducks and other game come in for their share.

"Whether I get anything or even shoot my gun isn't too important," Coverdale says. "If I can just get to the woods and walk I feel happier than at any time. There's something about the solitude that helps a person."

Coverdale has the complicated job of satisfying 16,410 property owners in Ouachita parish. Annually he must make every effort to get 10,000 homestead exemptions signed. How well he has carried out his task is demonstrated by the fact that only one complainant has appeared before the state tax commission in the last three years.

Ouachita assessments have shown a steady climb since 1941, starting at $44,708,280 and ending at $66,123,617 in 1949. The parish exemptions signed each year run to 10,000 and save property owners slightly over $200,000 in taxes. The signatures to the exemptions are obtained only after a concentrated drive by Coverdale by newspaper, radio, telephone and personal calls.

Coverdale has served as president of the Louisiana Tax Assessors' Association after moving up each year from the chairmanship of the entertainment committee. He held office in the association after only six years as parish assessor.

When the first issue of the association's journal comes out next month Coverdale will be featured as one of the four outstanding assessors in Louisiana. He presently is serving on the legislative committee of the association.

In civic circles Coverdale belongs to the Knights of Pythias, Knights of Korassan, and Exchange Club.

Since his life has been spent serving the public from the assessor's office, parish citizens can expect to see him around come next campaign time. He has spent 33 years laying the groundwork for the successful assessor. Those aren't to be wasted.

Five-Way Cure For Drinkers

By Alton L. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

NEW YORK—There are five ways to help alcoholics to get and stay on the wagon.

Special drugs that make the drinker sick are one way. The newest of these drugs is Antabuse. By itself, it doesn't do anything to a person. But if he takes a drink afterward, he becomes sick, with nausea, hot flashes, a gripping sensation in the chest, pounding pulse, loss of appetite, weakness and other effects.

Another drug, emetine, causes vomiting. It is given just before the person is given a drink, of anything he wants. The sickness is violent. After four to eight such treatments, most patients for months or years afterward can't stand the taste or sight of a drink, even when they don't receive the drug first.

Neither drug is a cure for alcoholism. No cure is known. The chronic drunkard can reform, but usually can't take even one drink again without starting off on a binge. The drug treatments help, if the drinker sincerely wants to stop. They are dangerous, however, and must be used by trained doctors.

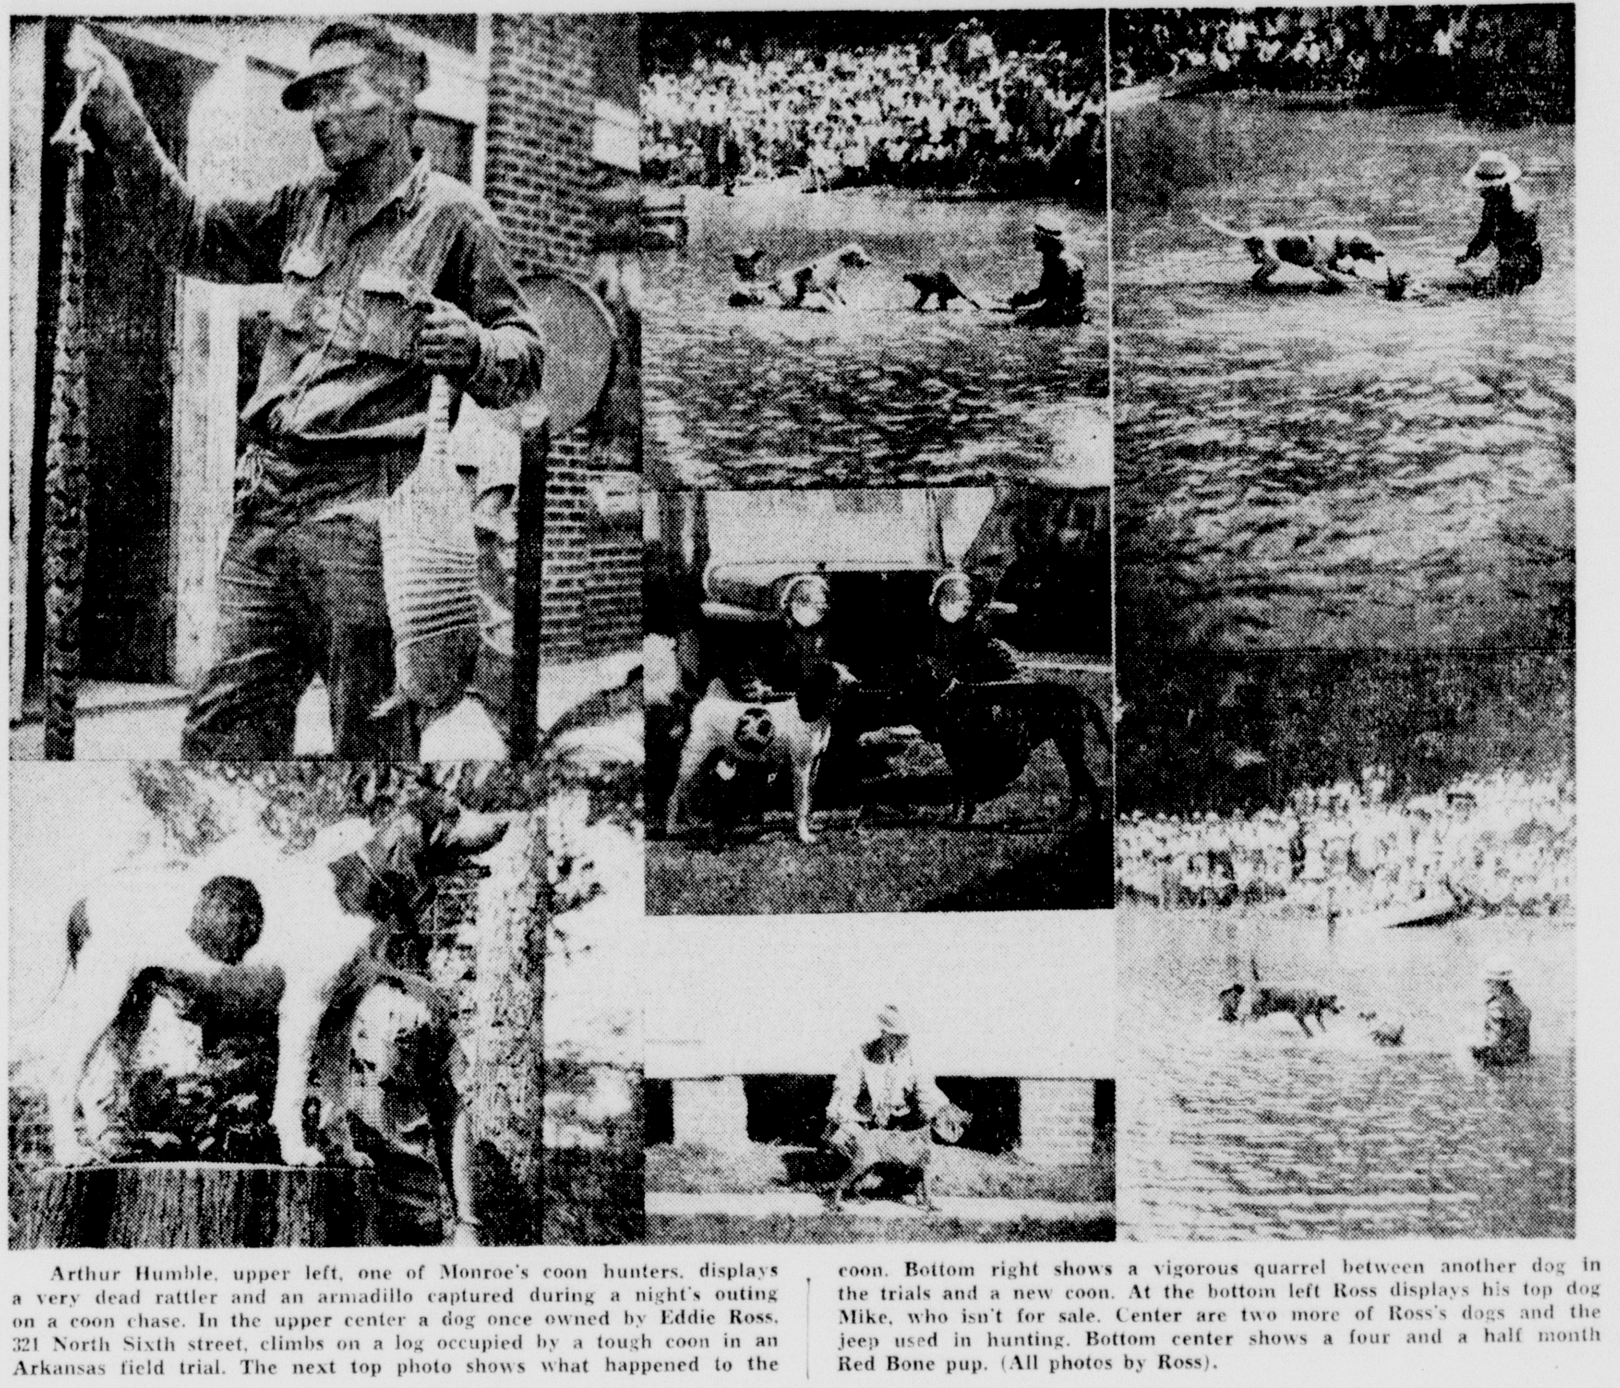
A second approach is psychological. Chronic drinking may be due to some emotional problem or frustration. If this is straightened out, the reason for the compulsion to drink may be removed. So-called sleep drugs may be used to get the patient to talk and remember things he has forgotten about, but which may explain to a doctor or psychiatrist why the person acts as he does.

A third approach is morale-building or spiritual, as typified by Alcoholics Anonymous. Here the drinker gets help and encouragement from people who faced the same problem, and licked it. The co-founder of the organization says about half of its 80,000 members never took another drink. One-fourth fell off the wagon once or twice before succeeding, while the other 25 per cent failed.

Fourth is a new legal approach to get alcoholics treated as sick people instead of tossing them into jails to sober up and then go free. A few states are tackling the chronic drinker as a public health problem, setting up facilities to give them medical care and rehabilitate them.

Fifth are studies of body chemistry and how chronic drinkers may differ from other people in their physiological make-up. Such studies may show why people differ so much in the effects that alcohol produces on them. They may lead to ways of telling which people are most susceptible to alcohol, and in danger of developing into drunkards.

COON ON THE LOG, GET 'EM OFF!



Arthur Humble, upper left, one of Monroe's coon hunters, displays a very dead rattler and an armadillo captured during a night's outing on a coon chase. In the upper center a dog once owned by Eddie Ross, 321 North Sixth street, climbs on a log occupied by a tough coon in an Arkansas field trial. The next top photo shows what happened to the coon. Bottom right shows a vigorous quarrel between another dog in the trials and a new coon. At the bottom left Ross displays his top dog Mike, who isn't for sale. Center are two more of Ross's dogs and the jeep used in hunting. Bottom center shows a four and a half month Red Bone pup. (All photos by Ross).

Sweet Music From A Mournful Hound

By James V. Mathis

Sneakin' Deacon, Mike, Trailer, Ruff, Little Red, Tramp, Big Nig, Blue——

The make music that gets in a man's blood to stay.

Their music is made at night and best listened to from beneath the damp trees of a moon-touched swamp.

They are ring-tailed coon dogs. God's gift to the coon hunter and burden to the coon hunter's wife.

Rangy Walkers, Black and Tans, Red Bones, and "just plain dam dog," they will eat a man out of house and home, but will run their hearts out for him on the trail.

Give a cooner a good dog with a deep trail voice and he'll abandon the comforts of home and turn his back on his family for a night out.

But he can't tell you why.

At least that's what Eddie Ross, stocky, 36-year-old Monroe music company owner, says. Ross has $600 tied up in dogs that cost him twenty green men a month just for feed.

"I don't know exactly why coon hunters are the way they are," Ross, an army combat veteran, says. "I know that I just go to hear the dogs on the scent and give them a hand when they tree a big one after a long run."

Plenty Rough

"Lord knows, its plenty rough. I've been out the last three nights," he said.

Ross turned the palms of his hands down, displaying the tops of his hands. "See these scratches. I got hold of a big coon with leather gloves the other night. By the time we both were happily separated my hands were bleeding."

"Then there's rattlers and moccasins. We step over the little rattlers and walk around the big ones. The mosquitos deal out plenty of misery. Sawbriers get in their licks. And there's always the lost sleep."

"Many people don't realize how destructive a coon in a corn-patch can be," Ross continued. "Farmers from all over Ouachita parish are always calling us out to give a hand in chasing coons out of their corn. All we get out of the trip is the pleasure in working our dogs."

Ring-Tailed Association

Ross a member of the Ring-Tailed Coon Hunter's Association of Louisiana, with headquarters and camp in Arcadia. He estimates that there are 30 coon hunters with dogs in Ouachita.

He writes in the July issue of the American Cooner of a hunt that he, Arthur Humble, Clarence Mills, and Francis Moss engaged in north of Monroe:

"We spotted Mr. Coon and turned the dogs out. He ran only a few minutes and treed. We cut the tree, but the coon got away and swam across a small slough, the dogs all but breathing on his neck.

"Judge, one of my dogs, picked up the scent and treed again. Humble climbed the tree and shook him out but that blamed animal got clear again. He stopped at his den next time, so we cut the tree down. Arthur Humble lost his religion then when that ring-tail started on his way again. But this time the coon ran smack into the dogs but Mills got him away without letting the dogs injure him.

"It was daylight by the time we got this fellow sacked," he concluded.

Ross keeps about twelve dogs, seven hunters at the present time, with the rest pups. He paid $150 for one Walker hound recently. This dog had a real regard for his master. He won one $175 prize in Arkansas field trials, then curled up and died suddenly. Ross has one dog, of doubtful ancestry, which no amount of money can buy. Valuable dogs have their owner's initials tattooed inside their ears.

'Coon-On-The-Log'

Ross is the only man in Monroe who takes a dog to coon field trials. He says the difference between trial dogs and animals which produce the goods is vast.

"A field trial dog has to see what he is treeing. A hunter trusts to his nose to get the desired results. Trial dogs are bred for speed, while the woods hunters need stamina and courage, as well as a good nose."

Mike, Ross' pet, specializes in coon-on-the-log competition. This tricky event was dreamed up to bring out the best in a dog. A good sized, healthy coon is placed on a log several yards out in a stream or pond. The dogs are turned loose and given 30 seconds to swim out to the log and chase the coon off his floating haven.

"Mister, it takes a real dog to get one of those tough, battling coons off," Ross asserts.

Monroe hunters will be present Monday and Tuesday when the Ring-Tailed association puts on a field trial event three miles north of Arcadia where "your hound's ears don't have to drag the ground, but he has to look hound."

"Even if we don't get to win any prizes," Ross says, happily, "we will hear plenty of sweet hound music."

What Goes On At A Tombstone Plant?

By Oland Silk
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Eerie is a word that most people associate with old buildings at night or Boris Karloff movies. But let me tell you, and I don't think I'm overly sensitive, just walking among tombstones that haven't been assigned yet gives me a funny feeling and I guess eerie is just as good a word as any to describe it.

Just to look at those things sitting out on the lot waiting for someone to come up and say, "I'll take this one" is enough to start you to feeling bad and think maybe you should start living right.

All this is going on because you have an assignment on your desk which reads, "Find out what goes on at a tombstone plant." You start thinking right away. What you're thinking isn't complimentary. It is like being told to find out what an undertaker thinks about the future of his business and being told that while there's life there's hope.

Could this be a subtle hint that you have been unlifelike around the office? Are you about to be canned? Has the anemic output of your work recently made it clearer to your boss that you should be indoctrinated with some vestiges of the later life? In other words, is somebody being a wise guy?

The assignment has no qualifications but "find out." So you put on your most morbid face, which isn't hard with taxes what they are these days, and start looking.

From your expression people think that you are a $30 a week man waiting for automobiles to go down. After all what can you ask about tombstones? Are they guaranteed for life? Are you protected against rips, ravels, and tears? Is there any discount if you buy a half-dozen?

Chips

You finally find a plant and let the chips fall where they may. In the end you think that it probably is a fascinating business. There are two kinds of stone—granite and marble—used for tombstones. Granite is the grey stone which is the third hardest rock in the world. Diamonds are the first. The life span of granite, once raised from the quarry, is 5,000 years. Since the birth of the business in Barre, Vermont, 36 million cubic feet—or a solid monument exact size of the Empire State Building—has been quarried.

(If this interests you, step a little closer.) Granite is composed of quartz mica and silica. And if you ever walk through a cemetery following a heavy rain, you'll find that grey granite is black, because of its absorption rate, said to be 90 per cent more than marble.

W. L. Harris of the Twin City Monument Company, is as helpful as possible. Such things are hard subjects to make interesting. He keeps trying and the first thing you know you come across something that is sheer beauty itself. It is marble. Vermont marble from Vermont, Georgia marble from Georgia and Italian marble from—that's right. This white stone has made some of the most beautiful buildings and monuments in the world. You can cite the Magnin Building in Los Angeles, Jefferson Memorial and Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington, D. C.

Marble

Marble is composed of calcium, quartz, and silica and organic matter. It ordinarily will not perish for 3,000 years. Mr. Harris said they received the material in great slabs and ground the tombstones and monuments out of it. He said it took three or four days to complete the former.

There isn't much more to ask without keeping the man from his work. So you walk out again and come upon those stones uncalled for. Maybe the subject is interesting but it still gives you the creeps. Perhaps it has a good effect, especially about thinking maybe you should live right. Right now I'm about to die for a cigarette.

Wife Divorces Flying Drunk

SYDNEY, Australia—(AP)—A wife suing for divorce told the judge her husband asked one night if she would like to see him jump out of the bathroom window. The bathroom was 15 feet above the ground. She ignored his question and went on with her needlework.

Out of the window went her husband.

He came back in the room, asked if she had seen him. She said, "No."

He took another header out the window.

She was granted her divorce on the grounds of drunkenness and cruelty.

"He was a flying drunk," said the judge.

Bzzz! Three House Flies Are Found In Moscow, Idaho

By Al F. Barakman
(NEA Special Correspondent)

Moscow, Idaho—(NEA)—It is not exactly accurate to say there are no flies in Moscow, Idaho.

Dr. W. Earl Shull, an entomologist who has gained fame in these parts, has been diligently searching for houseflies all summer in the Moscow area, which covers a radius of 200 miles.

"I've found just three," he now reports.

Nevertheless, it is just as hard to sell fly-swatters here after Dr. Shull's search as it has been for the past three years, when this town of 8,500 got into the limelight by making the housefly as rare in Moscow, Idaho, as an American in Moscow, Russia.

Back in 1946, Dr. Shull, then head of the department of entomology at the University of Idaho, became convinced that the house fly could be eliminated, or almost so, from the earth.

Shull's formula was simple. A concentration of the new insecticide, DDT, and water.

By canvassing the town's property owners, he was able to gain sufficient backing to experiment with his plan.

By seeking out the breeding places of the pests and through general spraying practices on nearly every lot, occupied or vacant, in the community, Dr. Shull and his associates were able to say, with a great measure of accuracy; "There are no flies in Moscow.

That statement became the by-word of numerous stories about the scientific experiment. Quaries concerning the "No Flies" campaign piled up so high that Dr. Shull resigned his university position and went into the business of shooing flies for good in his home town of Moscow, in Idaho and throughout the nation.

His methods are being practiced even in foreign nations now, although there has been no report on the flies in Moscow, Russia.

Uncle Sam Has Island For Sale

By Lee Linder
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

WILMINGTON, Del. — Uncle Sam would like to sell the 50-acre, tree-studded spit of land in the Delaware river called Reedy Island. This island originally was the main quarantine station for the Port of Philadelphia.

Not long ago Shelby D. Collins, a 78-year-old Port Penn contractor, offered $7,500 for the island. The government turned it down as "unrealistic."

Collins wanted everything — nailed down or not. His bid included the land, an office building, barracks, hospital building, recreation and mess hall, carpenter ship, storage buildings, water towers and pump houses, wharves, salt water fire mains and coal bins containing 200 tons left by the navy.

The army, now custodian of the property, said Collins must be joking. Collins replied his offer still goes. He admits, however, he doesn't know what he'd do with the island if he ever got it.

Reedy Island originally belonged to the state of Delaware. The U. S. got the land as a gift in 1873. Now Delaware refuses to take it back.

The U. S. fish and wildlife service was asked to accept the island as a bird refuge. The service said it didn't think the birds would like it.

The navy was in possession for a year or so before the end of World War II but surrendered it as soon as Japan surrendered.

Right now the island is in charge of John Mitchell, a caretaker appointed by the army in January, 1948. With Mitchell are his wife, two children and a dog.

During the last 55 years the U. S. has spent between $400,000 and $500,000 on the jungle-like strip. The island lies 20 miles south of Wilmington and 40 miles from Philadelphia.

So far Collins is the only person who has shown interest in the property.

"I helped put the first stick of lumber on the place in 1893," Collins says, "but don't ask me what it's good for today.

"A duck flies by once in a while in the fall or winter and some folks have caught a muskrat or two there but that's all.

"I'd like to have the buildings, because some of them are in pretty good shape but it would take a tugboat and a barge and a crew of men to move them to the mainland."

Atlanta Is Now Area Rent Office

Regional supervision of the Monroe area rent office passes this week from Dallas, Tex., to Atlanta, Ga., according to Mr. Gillespie, area rent director.

The regional office in Dallas closed as of September 1 as a result of the decontrol of rents in Texas by the state legislature there and in line with the economies necessary by OHE in Washingtin.

The Dallas regional office formerly supervised rent control activities in the eight states of Arkansas, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. Supervisory responsibilities for the seven remaining states in the former Dallas region have been transferred to regional offices at San Francisco, Chicago and Atlanta, as follows:

(1) New Mexico to the San Francisco office, (2) Colorado, Kansas and Missouri to the Chicago regional office and (3) Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma to the Atlanta (Georgia) regional office.

Area Rent Director Gillespie said that he expected no particular changes in the operation of his office here in Monroe as a result of his regional supervision being shifted from Dallas to Atlanta.

PLAN WORKSHOP OF CITY SYSTEM

Leaders In Education To Give Talks On Important Subjects

Supt. J. M. Boyet of the Monroe city schools has announced two-half day workshops to begin the 1949-1950 school year.

The workshop will be for teachers of Barkdull Faulk, Georgia Tucker, Lida Benton, Central Grammar, Sherrouse and Neville High School, and will be held Sept. 8 beginning at 1:15 p. m. at Barkdull Faulk School. The consultants for this workshop are as follows:

Dr. Mary Wilson, who is the supervisor of schools in Lincoln parish, who will talk to the group on reading. She will discuss in particular, methods of continuation of development of "Reading Skills in the Upper Elementary Grades and into High School."

Louis D. Robert, supervisor of attendance from the state department of education, will speak to the group on "School Attendance" and "The Program of Home Visitation."

Morelle Emmons, superintendent of Lincoln parish schools, will speak to the group on "Science in the Schools."

Teachers of the Monroe Colored High School and the Newtown School will meet at 9 a. m. Sept. 8 at the Monroe Colored High School.

Ralph W. E. Jones, president of Grambling College, who has just returned from a workshop in New York on current educational problems, will speak to the teachers.

FALL PROGRAM TO BE OUTLINED

Monroe Branch Of A. A. U. W. Will Have Meeting In Home Of Miss Drew

The local branch of the America Association of University Women will hold "Open House" at the home of Miss Carrie Dee Drew, 101 Ludwig avenue, West Monroe, Thursday evening, September 8, at 7:30 o'clock, for all women in the Twin Cities who are eligible for membership in the American Association of University Women.

This national organization of college women is an unsensational group of idealistic realists seeking for themselves individually and for society, national and international, the satisfactions of things intellectual and spiritual, and better conditions under which such things may flourish.

"Practical work in education" was the phrase used by the founders of the association to describe its purpose, and that phrase remains the touchstone of the A. A. U. W. today.

"It is interesting to note that in the program of the American Association of University Women there is a definite work for those young women who have just recently graduated from college," states Miss May Coker, president of the Monroe branch of the organization. She further adds that she is looking forward to having a very active "recent graduate group" in the local branch this year. All of these young women are cordially invited to the open house on Thursday evening.

Officers of the local branch are: Miss May Coker, president; Miss Mary Hester, vice-president; Miss Cliffie Olmstead, secretary; and Miss Ina Merle Thomas, treasurer.

TECH FIGURING ON NEWCOMERS

Freshman Class Will Not Be So Large Because Of 12-Year System

RUSTON, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—Although the change-over to the 12-year system in Louisiana's schools last year resulted in few, if any, graduates from most state high schools last spring, Louisiana Tech will not be without a freshman class this year.

Applications received thus far at the college total 247 from new students desiring to enroll September 12, according to Miss Mabel May, registrar.

On the basis of this preliminary figure, Miss May estimated that the enrollment will be approximately 2,300 students for the fall semester.

The largest group of first-year students seeking admission at Louisiana Tech is from Shreveport where 102 freshment and nine persons transferring from other colleges have submitted applications.

From Monroe, five freshmen and 25 transfer applicants have expressed a desire to enter the college, while 28 freshmen and 18 transfer students from Arkansas have submitted applications also.

Sixteen freshmen and 31 transfer students are listed at present from states other than Arkansas and Louisiana.

Also listed in the total are five freshment and six transfer applicants from six countries or states outside the United States, including India, Guatemala, Mexico, Canada, Puerto Rico and Cuba.

'Sis' Wilbert Is Holding Gains

"Sis" Wilbert, holding her own, was the encouraging word received from her bedside Saturday morning.

"Sis" Kilpatrick Wilbert is holding the gains she has made in the last forty-eight hours. Last night was a restful one for her. The doctors and nurses in attendance are encouraged to see her holding the gains made.

Famed Harriet Beatty Dares Death Along With Husband

HARRIET BEATTY

Nature placed lions and tigers in different parts of the world and elephants in remote spots by themselves, probably because it is so hard for them to get along peaceably together.

But Harriet Beatty, wife of the world famous wild animal trainer, makes both species perform together in the same arena—a feat never before accomplished successfully by a trainer.

Two of the jungle's most deadly enemies—a giant elephant and a huge Bengal tiger. Each hates the other, still they are made to perform side-by-side—and like it. It is the only display of the kind in the world, and will be one of the highlight features in the huge Clyde Beatty Circus, with the renowned Clyde Beatty, coming to Monroe Sept. 12 for afternoon and night performances at the Plum street show grounds.

In addition to the world famous Clyde Beatty and his sensational wild animal display, the big show will bring many of Spangleland's greatest attractions. Among them, the Great Thommens, high-perch performers from Europe—their first tour of this country; Dorothy Herbert, the daring and spectacular rider of rearing horses; the Medini Troupe, balancing stars, and Rita Nevarro, the breath-taking aerialist.

Circus fans will also see the Flying LaForms, those interpid stars on the high and lofty trapeze and the beautiful Aerial Ballet in which twenty aerial beauties take part. The herd of performing elephants, and the companies of educated horses, including the famed Jimmy Cline Liberty Horse acts and the Morales and Kennard groups of trained canines.

In all, nearly 200 men and women arenic stars and performers are listed on this year's Clyde Beatty program and the majority of them will be new to circus fans.

The performances are scheduled to begin at 2:30 and 8:00 p. m.

PLAN WORKSHOP OF CITY SYSTEM

Leaders In Education To Give Talks On Important Subjects

Supt. J. M. Boyet of the Monroe city schools has announced two-half day workshops to begin the 1949-1950 school year.

The workshop will be for teachers of Barkdull Faulk, Georgia Tucker, Lida Benton, Central Grammar, Sherrouse and Neville High School, and will be held Sept. 8 beginning at 1:15 p. m. at Barkdull Faulk School. The consultants for this workshop are as follows:

Dr. Mary Wilson, who is the supervisor of schools in Lincoln parish, who will talk to the group on reading. She will discuss in particular, methods of continuation of development of "Reading Skills in the Upper Elementary Grades and into High School."

Louis D. Robert, supervisor of attendance from the state department of education, will speak to the group on "School Attendance" and "The Program of Home Visitation."

Morelle Emmons, superintendent of Lincoln parish schools, will speak to the group on "Science in the Schools."

Teachers of the Monroe Colored High School and the Newtown School will meet at 9 a. m. Sept. 8 at the Monroe Colored High School.

Ralph W. E. Jones, president of Grambling College, who has just returned from a workshop in New York on current educational problems, will speak to the teachers.

'Sis' Wilbert Is Holding Gains

"Sis" Wilbert, holding her own, was the encouraging word received from her bedside Saturday morning.

"Sis" Kilpatrick Wilbert is holding the gains she has made in the last forty-eight hours. Last night was a restful one for her. The doctors and nurses in attendance are encouraged to see her holding the gains made.

TECH FIGURING ON NEWCOMERS

Freshman Class Will Not Be So Large Because Of 12-Year System

RUSTON, La., Sept. 3.—(Special)—Although the change-over to the 12-year system in Louisiana's schools last year resulted in few, if any, graduates from most state high schools last spring, Louisiana Tech will not be without a freshman class this year.

Applications received thus far at the college total 247 from new students desiring to enroll September 12, according to Miss Mabel May, registrar.

On the basis of this preliminary figure, Miss May estimated that the enrollment will be approximately 2,300 students for the fall semester.

The largest group of first-year students seeking admission at Louisiana Tech is from Shreveport where 102 freshment and nine persons transferring from other colleges have submitted applications.

From Monroe, five freshmen and 25 transfer applicants have expressed a desire to enter the college, while 28 freshmen and 18 transfer students from Arkansas have submitted applications also.

Sixteen freshmen and 31 transfer students are listed at present from states other than Arkansas and Louisiana.

Also listed in the total are five freshment and six transfer applicants from six countries or states outside the United States, including India, Guatemala, Mexico, Canada, Puerto Rico and Cuba.

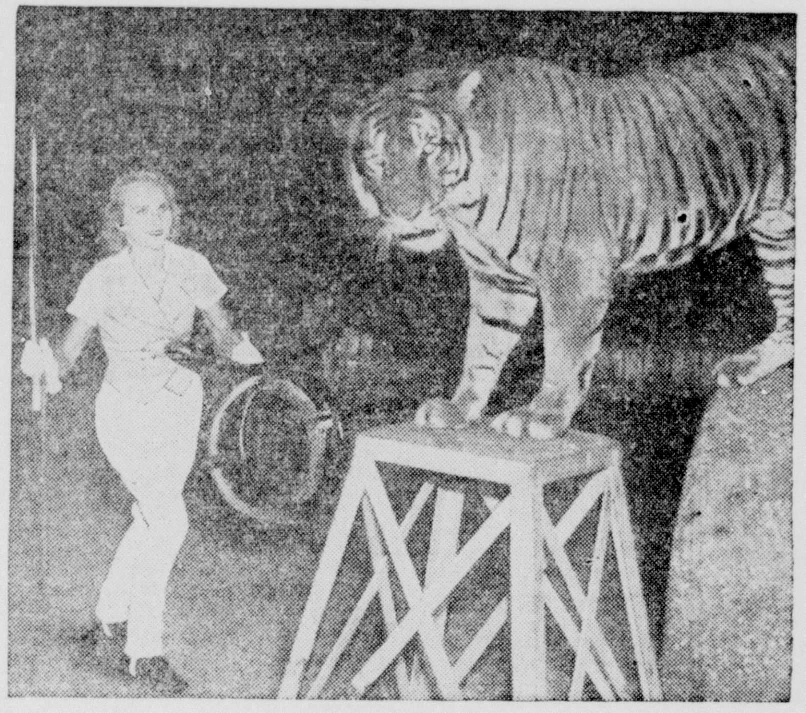
Famed Harriet Beatty Dares Death Along With Husband



HARRIET BEATTY

Nature placed lions and tigers in different parts of the world and elephants in remote spots by themselves, probably because it is so hard for them to get along peaceably together.

But Harriet Beatty, wife of the world famous wild animal trainer, makes both species perform together in the same arena—a feat never before accomplished successfully by a trainer.

Two of the jungle's most deadly enemies—a giant elephant and a huge Bengal tiger. Each hates the other, still they are made to perform side-by-side—and like it. It is the only display of the kind in the world, and will be one of the highlight features in the huge Clyde Beatty Circus, with the renowned Clyde Beatty, coming to Monroe Sept. 12 for afternoon and night performances at the Plum street show grounds.

In addition to the world famous Clyde Beatty and his sensational wild animal display, the big show will bring many of Spangleland's greatest attractions. Among them, the Great Thommens, high-perch performers from Europe—their first tour of this country; Dorothy Herbert, the daring and spectacular rider of rearing horses; the Medini Troupe, balancing stars, and Rita Nevarro, the breath-taking aerialist.

Circus fans will also see the Flying LaForms, those interpid stars on the high and lofty trapeze and the beautiful Aerial Ballet in which twenty aerial beauties take part. The herd of performing elephants, and the companies of educated horses, including the famed Jimmy Cline Liberty Horse acts and the Morales and Kennard groups of trained canines.

In all, nearly 200 men and women arenic stars and performers are listed on this year's Clyde Beatty program and the majority of them will be new to circus fans.

The performances are scheduled to begin at 2:30 and 8:00 p. m.

Building Permits

Alfred Gerald Olcott received a permit to build a residence at 2025 Pargoud boulevard, at a cost of $14,150. W. C. Salley will be the contractor.

Permission was granted Talmage Gable to erect a dwelling at 124 Egan street, at a cost of $1,700. The owner will be the contractor.

DOKEYS TO MEET

El Miro Eemple No. 187, Knights of Khorassan will have the regular monthly meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in Castle hall, 127 1/2 St. John street. Ted Van Lanningham, royal vizier, wants all Dokeys to attend and to bring applications for membership so as to assure a large ceremonial in the near future.

FALL PROGRAM TO BE OUTLINED

Monroe Branch Of A. A. U. W. Will Have Meeting In Home Of Miss Drew

The local branch of the America Association of University Women will hold "Open House" at the home of Miss Carrie Dee Drew, 101 Ludwig avenue, West Monroe, Thursday evening, September 8, at 7:30 o'clock, for all women in the Twin Cities who are eligible for membership in the American Association of University Women.

This national organization of college women is an unsensational group of idealistic realists seeking for themselves individually and for society, national and international, the satisfactions of things intellectual and spiritual, and better conditions under which such things may flourish.

"Practical work in education" was the phrase used by the founders of the association to describe its purpose, and that phrase remains the touchstone of the A. A. U. W. today.

"It is interesting to note that in the program of the American Association of University Women there is a definite work for those young women who have just recently graduated from college," states Miss May Coker, president of the Monroe branch of the organization. She further adds that she is looking forward to having a very active "recent graduate group" in the local branch this year. All of these young women are cordially invited to the open house on Thursday evening.

Officers of the local branch are: Miss May Coker, president; Miss Mary Hester, vice-president; Miss Cliffie Olmstead, secretary; and Miss Ina Merle Thomas, treasurer.

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you"—form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

WORLD PEACE

WORLD PEACE! That cry comes straight from every heart today. We must not lose heart, we must continue to believe in God and His good will for His world. War is wrong! War is contrary to all the teachings of Jesus. God is no more satisfied than we are with our war-torn earth. Our Lord is the Prince of Peace; His ways are the ways of truth and love. He is calling us to work with Him more faithfully and more intelligently. We have been war-making instead of peace-making.

HAVE we trusted that somebody else would make Peace? Have we trusted that Kings would bring about peace? Their very position makes them war-makers. Our demand that they bring prosperity to the people at the expense of another is a war demand. Have we trusted armies to make Peace? Again we have erred. Their very business is war-making; they must subdue other armies. Have we expected that economic treaties would make Peace? Again, the business of the world is highly competitive; investors demand profits from their money and their toil...profits that come from economic victory. INTERNATIONAL CONFLICT CAN BE SOLVED; WORLD PEACE MUST COME. How?

CHRIST is our answer, and we must answer to Christ. RELIGION IS OUR HOPE; RELIGIOUS PEOPLE WHO FOLLOW THE GREAT TEACHER AND FRIEND AND SAVIOR WILL MAKE PEACE. The Cross is the symbol of Peace. SWORDS MUST GIVE WAY TO PLOUGHSHARES, AND SPEARS MUST BE REFASHIONED INTO PRUNING-HOOKS. What is that word you spoke yesterday? Did it make for Peace or for strife? When you finished the business transaction, did you leave a friend on the other side of the bargain? THE PRINCE OF PEACE IS NOT A RULER OF MEN, BUT A FRIEND AND A SUFFERING SERVANT. Are you and I willing to suffer in the cause of Peace? We have suffered enough for war. Our boys want to live, and to live abundantly; to construct, not destroy; to love, not hate. Peace will cost us much; kind words, generous dealings, goodwill, helpfulness and patience and self-control. Do we pray first for our own success, or for Peace? God is the Peace-maker; Peace-makers are the children of God. Grace and Peace belong together; graciousness of spirit will go ahead of abiding Peace. Are you and I gracious toward every other person? PEACE IS A MATTER OF SPIRIT AND OF SACRIFICIAL BEHAVIOR. We are being watched. Shall we make sacrifice for Peace? Shall we forget the Crown and the Thorn? Shall we carry a cross?

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by GEORGE WUNDER
TERRY LEE! WHAT INCREDIBLE JOKE IS THIS? YOU SAY YOU HAVE A PLAN TO PERSUADE THE MOB THEY ARE WRONG ABOUT MOGUL AND ME. YOU GO. YOU RETURN — WITH THE CHIEF LOCAL PRIEST CONCEALED IN THAT HUGE JAR. NOW YOU SAY HE MUST MARRY US!
SORRY WE HAD TO SNATCH A PREACHER FOR THE NUPTIALS, BUT WE DIDN'T HAVE TIME TO ARGUE. THE JAR WAS HANDY FOR SMUGGLING HIM IN THROUGH THE MOB.
FOR MY PLAN TO WORK, YOU'VE GOT TO BE MARRIED AND THE OLD GENTLEMAN IS THE RECOGNIZED LOCAL AUTHORITY. BETTER HURRY. TIME'S RUNNING OUT.
IMPOSSIBLE! I HAVE NO GOWN! THERE ARE NO FLOWERS, NO MUSIC. I HAD PLANNED WE WOULD MARRY WITH GREAT CELEBRATION. NOT LIKE THIS!
LOOK, BABY, YOU CAN CRASH THE SOCIETY PAGES LATER. RIGHT NOW, YOUR PUBLIC'S THAT MOB OUTSIDE.
THE MOB! I HAD ALMOST FORGOTTEN. SUDDENLY I AM FRIGHTENED AGAIN . . . MOGUL! TELL THE OLD ONE TO SAY THE WORDS.
AS YOU COMMAND, HIGHNESS.
THE HURRIED CEREMONY IS BRIEF.
THERE! M'SIEU TERRY! WE ARE NOW ASSURED OF THE LONG HAPPY LIFE? NO?
THAT DEPENDS ON WHETHER OR NOT YOU'RE AS GOOD AN ACTRESS AS YOUR BILLING CLAIMS.

DICK TRACY
by CHESTER GOULD
GUIDED BY DICK TRACY'S WRIST RADIO, CHIEF PATTON AND A SQUAD OF OFFICERS HAVE COME TO THE SPOT WHERE TRACY AND CATCHEM ARE PRISONERS IN THE SINKING ROOM......
THE BUOYANCY OF THE WOODEN ROOM, AS WELL AS THE POCKET OF AIR AT THE CEILING, HAS STOPPED THE SINKING PROCESS, AT LEAST MOMENTARILY.
THOSE PROPS WILL HOLD IT WHILE WE CUT INTO THE ROOF.
TREAD WATER A LITTLE LONGER, SAM—THEY'RE WORKING—
I'M ALL RIGHT. YOU'RE THE ONE THAT'S ABOUT FINISHED.
THE WATER PUT MY WRIST RADIO OUT OF BUSINESS. CAN'T TALK WITH THE CHIEF.
THERE'S TAR PAPER AND HEAVY PLANKING TO GO THROUGH.
TRACY! WHERE ARE YOU?
HEY!
AND IN THE OFFICE OF THE NIGHT CLUB STAGE MANAGER—
IT'S ABSOLUTELY CRAZY—NO GUN WOUNDS—NO MARKS OF ANY KIND. JUST WATER. HIS LUNGS SEEM TO HAVE BEEN FILLED WITH WATER.
YEAH? I SUPPOSE, DOCTOR, YOU'RE GOING TO SAY THE GUY WAS DROWNED!
YES—DROWNED.
OH, BROTHER! WAIT TILL TRACY HEARS ABOUT THIS!
YES. WHERE IS TRACY? I WANT TO TALK TO HIM.
AND IN ANOTHER PART OF TOWN—
WATER! THE PERFECT WEAPON. WITHOUT A CLEW—WITHOUT A TRACE! A DRESS DESIGNER TURNED PERFECT KILLER!
AND YOU, MY DEAR SPIKE, ARE GOING TO BE NEXT!
THERE!
WHERE ARE THEY?
HEY!

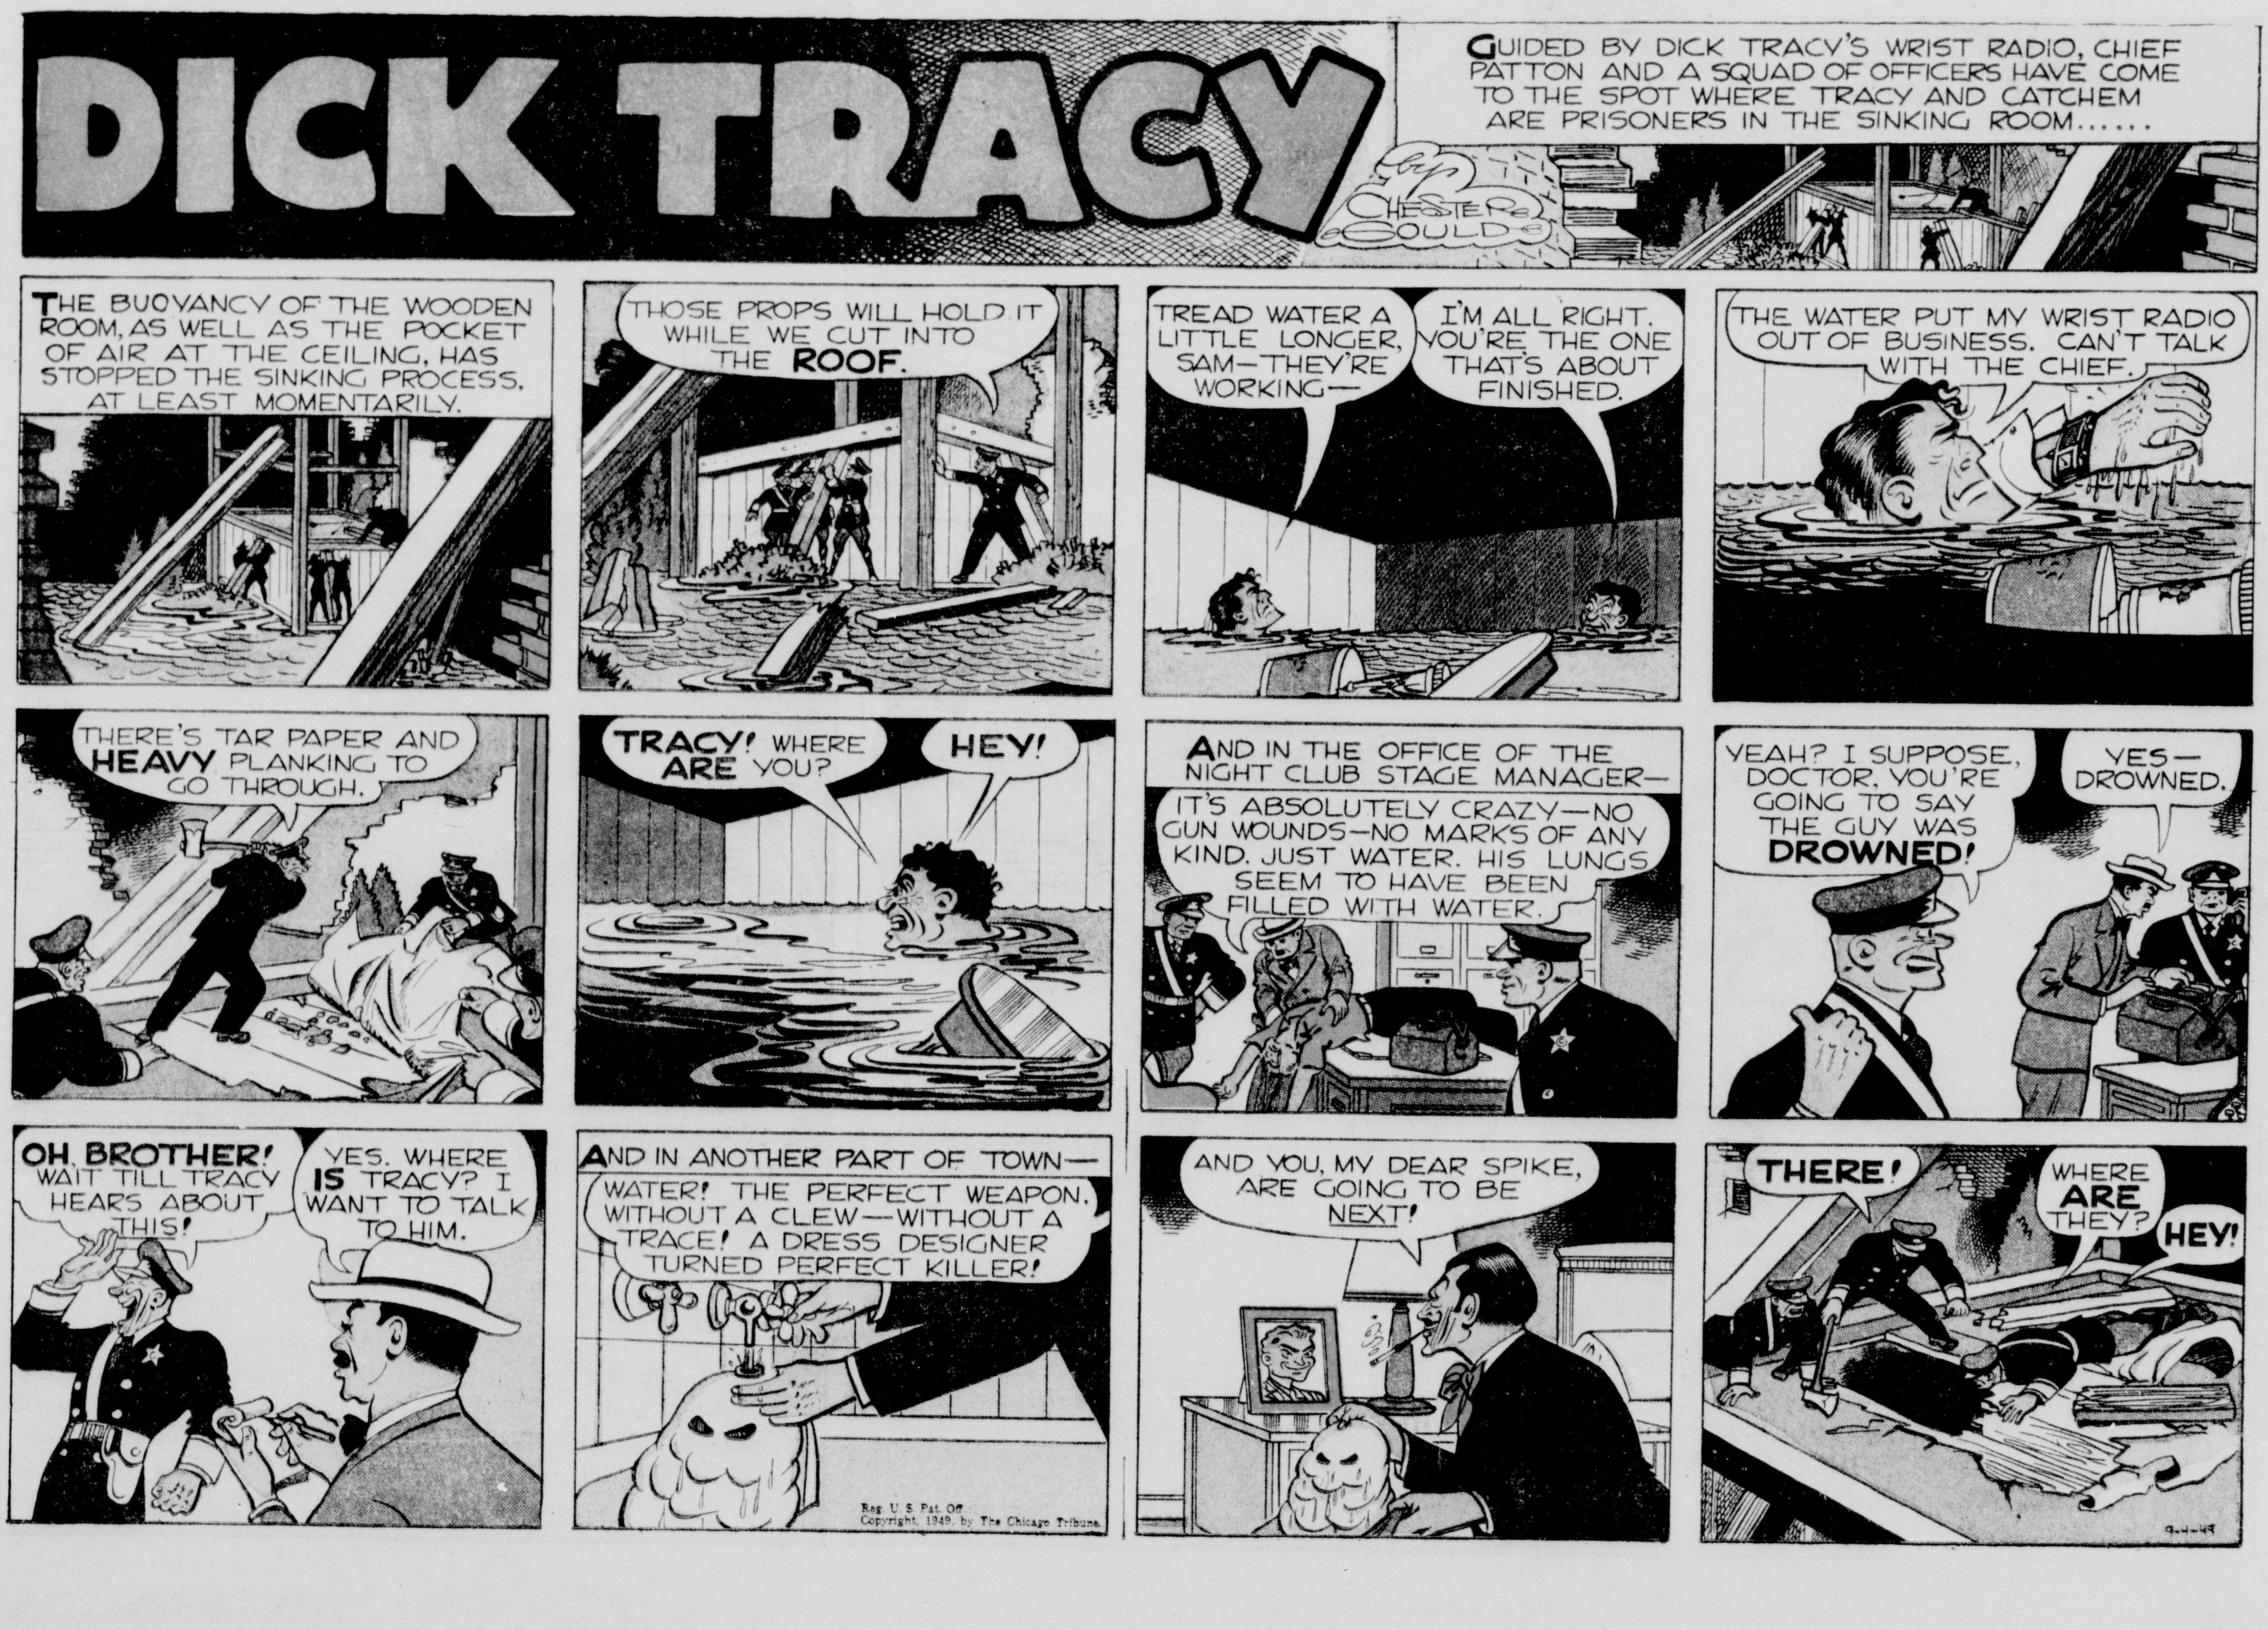
TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by GEORGE WUNDER
TERRY LEE! WHAT INCREDIBLE JOKE IS THIS? YOU SAY YOU HAVE A PLAN TO PERSUADE THE MOB THEY ARE WRONG ABOUT MOGUL AND ME. YOU GO. YOU RETURN — WITH THE CHIEF LOCAL PRIEST CONCEALED IN THAT HUGE JAR. NOW YOU SAY HE MUST MARRY US!
SORRY WE HAD TO SNATCH A PREACHER FOR THE NUPTIALS, BUT WE DIDN'T HAVE TIME TO ARGUE. THE JAR WAS HANDY FOR SMUGGLING HIM IN THROUGH THE MOB.
FOR MY PLAN TO WORK, YOU'VE GOT TO BE MARRIED AND THE OLD GENTLEMAN IS THE RECOGNIZED LOCAL AUTHORITY. BETTER HURRY. TIME'S RUNNING OUT.
IMPOSSIBLE! I HAVE NO GOWN! THERE ARE NO FLOWERS, NO MUSIC. I HAD PLANNED WE WOULD MARRY WITH GREAT CELEBRATION. NOT LIKE THIS!
LOOK, BABY, YOU CAN CRASH THE SOCIETY PAGES LATER. RIGHT NOW, YOUR PUBLIC'S THAT MOB OUTSIDE.
THE MOB! I HAD ALMOST FORGOTTEN. SUDDENLY I AM FRIGHTENED AGAIN... MOGUL! TELL THE OLD ONE TO SAY THE WORDS.
AS YOU COMMAND, HIGHNESS.
THE HURRIED CEREMONY IS BRIEF.
9-4
THERE! M'SIEU TERRY! WE ARE NOW ASSURED OF THE LONG HAPPY LIFE? NO?
THAT DEPENDS ON WHETHER OR NOT YOU'RE AS GOOD AN ACTRESS AS YOUR BILLING CLAIMS.



DICK TRACY
GUIDED BY DICK TRACY'S WRIST RADIO, CHIEF PATTON AND A SQUAD OF OFFICERS HAVE COME TO THE SPOT WHERE TRACY AND CATCHEM ARE PRISONERS IN THE SINKING ROOM......
CHESTER GOULD
THE BUOYANCY OF THE WOODEN ROOM, AS WELL AS THE POCKET OF AIR AT THE CEILING, HAS STOPPED THE SINKING PROCESS, AT LEAST MOMENTARILY.
THOSE PROPS WILL HOLD IT WHILE WE CUT INTO THE ROOF.
TREAD WATER A LITTLE LONGER, SAM—THEY'RE WORKING—
I'M ALL RIGHT. YOU'RE THE ONE THAT'S ABOUT FINISHED.
THE WATER PUT MY WRIST RADIO OUT OF BUSINESS. CAN'T TALK WITH THE CHIEF.
THERE'S TAR PAPER AND HEAVY PLANKING TO GO THROUGH.
TRACY! WHERE ARE YOU?
HEY!
AND IN THE OFFICE OF THE NIGHT CLUB STAGE MANAGER—
IT'S ABSOLUTELY CRAZY—NO GUN WOUNDS—NO MARKS OF ANY KIND. JUST WATER. HIS LUNGS SEEM TO HAVE BEEN FILLED WITH WATER.
YEAH? I SUPPOSE, DOCTOR, YOU'RE GOING TO SAY THE GUY WAS DROWNED!
YES—DROWNED.
OH, BROTHER! WAIT TILL TRACY HEARS ABOUT THIS!
YES. WHERE IS TRACY? I WANT TO TALK TO HIM.
AND IN ANOTHER PART OF TOWN—
WATER! THE PERFECT WEAPON. WITHOUT A CLEW—WITHOUT A TRACE! A DRESS DESIGNER TURNED PERFECT KILLER!
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

AND YOU, MY DEAR SPIKE, ARE GOING TO BE NEXT!
THERE!
WHERE ARE THEY?

JUNGLE JIM by PAUL NORRIS AND DON MOORE
YOU'RE A JUNGLE SCOUT, JIM. DRIVE OFF THOSE HEAD-HUNTERS!
THAT WAS NO HEAD-HUNTER. THE KILLER WORE BOOTS--LIKE BRUKE'S.
DOC, THIS GUY STOLE YOUR NUGGET. I SEEN HIM HIDIN' IT IN HIS PACK-LOAD OF EXPLOSIVES.
LIAR! I'VE NEVER OPENED THAT PACK.
STOP FEUDING! THIS IS EASY TO CHECK.
BRUKE MUST HAVE PLANTED IT TO COVER UP.
THIS LOOKS BAD, JIM. SO YOU WENT PLATINUM-CRAZY LIKE THE OTHERS. I'LL LET IT GO NOW, BUT --
KANE ORDERS EVERYBODY TO HUNT PLATINUM ABOVE THE FALLS.
I DON'T BELIEVE YOU STOLE THE NUGGET.
THANKS, LIZ.
THE PAY DIRT IS RICHER UP HERE.
WATCH YOUR FOOTING—THE CURRENT'S SWIFT.
HERE'S MY CHANCE TO KILL TWO BIRDS WITH ONE STONE!
Paul NORRIS 9-4
HELP!
LIZ! TIE THE ROPE—DON'T LET US GO OVER THE FALLS!
NEXT WEEK: THE CUT ROPE.

FLASH GORDON by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE
THE TIDAL WAVE OVERWHELMS THE SWIMMERS. THEY FIGHT THEIR WAY DOWN INTO THE QUIETER OCEAN DEPTHS.
SAFE IN MERMA'S PALACE, FLASH CLAIMS HIS REWARD FOR DEFEATING THE OUTLAWS: "NOW SEND US ASHORE AS YOU PROMISED." MERMA ONLY LAUGHS: "NO. TAKE HALF MY KINGDOM--BUT YOU STAY HERE!"
"YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH THIS," FLASH WARNS. MERMA STORMS: "I'LL ALWAYS DO AS I PLEASE. DALFIN, HELP ME!"
PRINCE DALFIN OBEDIENTLY SAYS, "LET MY QUEEN ALONE, FLASH!" FLASH TRIES TO GRAB DALFIN'S GUN, BUT THE GAS-CLOUD STAGGERS HIM.
ONE OF MERMA'S GUARDS RESCUES HER FROM DALE'S INDIGNANT ATTACK. MERMA STORMS: "I'LL TEACH FLASH AND DALE TO THREATEN ME! I'LL THROW THEM TO THE TIGER-FISH!"
NEXT WEEK: SEA DEMONS 9-4

COOKIE, I'VE GOT TO MAKE A VERY IMPORTANT TELEPHONE CALL
SH-H-- QUIET, POP!
OH-H-- NOW YOU!
POP--PLEASE--I CAN'T HEAR GWENDOLYN TALK
IT'S TERRIBLY IMPORTANT
ONE MOMENT, GWENDOLYN'S MOTHER WANTS TO TALK TO MAMA
I'LL LOSE MY JOB IF I DON'T GET THIS CALL THRU---THE MOST IMPORTANT CONTRACT OUR COMPANY EVER HAD HINGES ON IT
OKAY, DEAR, THE PHONE IS ALL YOURS
OH, MY GOODNESS---THE PAPER WITH THE NUMBER I'M TO CALL IS ON THE UPSTAIRS BUREAU ---I'LL HAVE TO GET IT
WHAT! YOU BACK ON THE PHONE AGAIN?
AND NOW YOU!
GWENDOLYN CALLED ME AGAIN AND NOW HER MOTHER WANTS TO TALK TO MAMA AGAIN
OKAY, DAGWOOD, THE PHONE IS ALL YOURS AGAIN
9-4
YOUR PARTY GOT TIRED OF WAITING FOR YOUR CALL AND LOST INTEREST IN THE CONTRACT AND LEFT TOWN
THAT MEANS I'M RUINED---I'M FIRED---I'M A PAUPER

YOU'VE USED UP ALL THE EXCUSES IN THE WORLD--THEY'LL BE A SORRY LOT IF YOU DON'T SHOW UP!!
LOOK-JIGGS!! THAT'S MR. SEYMOUR OFUS-THE SOCIAL LION-HE IS LEAVING TOWN THIS EVENING-TELL YOUR WIFE YOU'RE GOING OUT WITH HIM-
I GET IT-I'LL PHONE MAGGIE-
WHAT DID DADDY SAY?
HE'S GOING OUT WITH MR. SEYMOUR OFUS TONIGHT-I'M GLAD AT LAST HE'S CATERING TO SOCIETY!! MY! I MUST HURRY-I'M CALLING ON MRS. VERA LEYOURS-WELL! THERE IS MR. SEYMOUR OFUS-SO! THAT IS WHO JIGGS IS GOING OUT WITH!!
CUTHBERT-DRIVE US OUT TO THE WINANDINE SUPPER CLUB!!
DON'T YOU KNOW ANY OTHER TUNE?
HE DON'T KNOW THIS ONE!!
I DON'T CARE IF I DO LOSE--IT'S BETTER THAN BEIN' AT HOME-
YOU'RE SURE LUCKY TONIGHT-JIGGS-
IT'S ABOUT TIME-I'VE BEEN MARRIED FOR YEARS!!
WELL-WE'LL LEAVE YOU HERE-I GO NORTH-
HOPE YOU GIT IN WITH-OUT ANY BATTLE SCARS!!
SAY--I'VE GOT AN ARMOR-PROOF ALIBI!!!
WELL-
AH-THAT MR. OFUS IS A FINE MAN-HE CERTAINLY KNOWS A LOT OF PEOPLE-HE LIKES ME-I HAD A HARD TIME GITTIN' AWAY FROM HIM!!!

SLUG AND MINNIE HAVE THEIR FIRST QUARREL
ANYBODY ELSE WANT TO GET IN ON THIS POOL?
POOR MINNIE! MEN NEVER KNOW HOW WOMEN SUFFER!
AND I THINK SLUG IS PERFECTLY HORRID, AND I NEVER WANT TO SEE HIM AGAIN, NEVER!
ALL RIGHT, BUT STOP CRYING! NO MAN WANTS TO APOLOGIZE TO A GIRL WITH RED EYES!
BE BRAVE, MINNIE! YOU'RE FIGHTING THE BATTLE FOR ALL OF US!
CHEER UP, MINNIE! ARNOLD USED TO LEAVE ME FOREVER EVERY SIX MONTHS, BUT HE ALWAYS CAME BACK BY DINNER-TIME!
JUST GUESS HOW MANY MINUTES UNTIL THEY KISS AND MAKE UP!
AND WE THTILL HAVE THIX CHANTHETH LEFT!
BUT, ALICE, I'M JUST GOING DOWN TO THE CORNER FOR A MINUTE. I'LL BE RIGHT BACK!
GOSH, MINNIE, YOU KNOW I COULDN'T LIVE WITHOUT YOU! AND BESIDES, I COULDN'T GET THE CAR STARTED!
YOU CAN STOP WASHING NOW, AND CARRY OUT THIS GARBAGE
REMEMBER, SLUG, YOU'RE FIGHTING FOR ALL OF US!
IF YOU START WASHING DISHES, SHE'LL HAVE YOU TAKING OUT THE GARBAGE, AND IF YOU START THAT, YOU'RE LOST!
THAT'S A LITTLE TOO THEATRICAL IF YOU ASK ME!
BUT MINNIE IS YOUNG! SHE'LL LEARN!
I STILL SAY US BACHELORS ARE LUCKY!
DON'T PHONE HER, DON'T WRITE TO HER, AND WE'LL TELL YOU WHEN TO COME BACK.
GOSH, SLUG, I WISH I HAD THE NERVE TO GO WITH YOU!
THEN YOU'D BETTER STAY AWAY FROM LILLIAN!

WITH ONLY SECONDS TO SPARE, TARZAN THREW HIS WEIGHT AGAINST THE DOOR. AS THE DOOR SWUNG INWARD......
...HE HEARD THE GUTTERAL CRIES OF THE ONRUSHING ONONOES, ROLLING UP THE RAMP INTO THE CROSS-CORRIDOR.
DROPPING THE LOCK-BAR INTO PLACE, TARZAN TURNED--TO FIND THAT HE WAS NOT ALONE IN THE ROOM.
HE SPOKE TO THE GIRL AND TOLD HER SHE WAS BARBARA RANSOME. HE REVEALED RANSOME'S LOCKET--AND REMOVING HERS, THEY COMPARED THEM. THEY WERE IDENTICAL!
MEANWHILE, AN EXCITED PRIEST REPORTED TO GUXA. "ON THE LEVEL WHERE THE HIGH PRIESTESS DWELLS, I SAW THE STRANGER ENTER HER APARTMENT."
HOGARTH.
GATHERING HIS GUARDS, THE HIGH PRIEST SPED TOWARD BARBARA'S APARTMENT WHERE TARZAN AND THE GIRL, UNAWARE OF APPROACHING DANGER, CONSIDERED THEIR CHANCES OF ESCAPE.

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM

Exhaustive Research by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before It Starts!

NOW! Dental science offers scientific proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than a year's continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

For now—the toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—brings you a proved way to reduce tooth decay! Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums! And no change in Colgate's famous flavor, foam, or cleansing action! The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula used in the tests.

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone; nor can it stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started.

NO OTHER DENTIFRICE OFFERS PROOF OF THESE RESULTS

X-Rays Show How Proper Use Of Colgate's Helps Stop Tooth Decay!

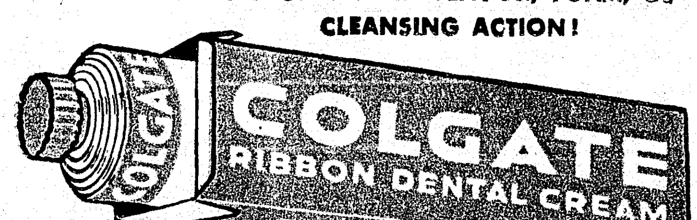
Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for over a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate's right after eating. The other group followed their usual dental care. X-rays were taken at regular intervals.

The average of the group using Colgate Dental Cream as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate!

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy To Start Them On The Colgate Way To Reduce Tooth Decay!

Don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor—so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR, FOAM, OR CLEANSING ACTION!



COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

Always use Colgate's* to Clean Your Breath While You Clean Your Teeth and HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY!

* Right after eating

THEY CAN'T DO ANYTHING WAY OUT HERE IN SPACE!
NOT IF THEY WANT HIM ALIVE, BUT WHAT'LL HAPPEN WHEN WE GET BACK TO EARTH ?
ZAZZISH WOOGLE WHUNG DING DO!
HEY! HE'S TRYING TO TALK!
YEH... HE SAYS WE'LL FIND OUT RIGHT QUICK WHEN WE LAND!
WAUGLE ANTONIO WEESTUH ICKKY MOOLGAH!
SAY! HOW IS IT YOU UNDERSTAND HIS GIBBERISH?
DANGED IF I KNOW... I GUESS IT'S JUST LIKE I UNDERSTAND YOU!
UMM! SOME QUIRK IMPARTED BY TIME TRAVEL-- ABILITY TO RECEIVE AND IMPART DIRECT THOUGHT!
IT DON'T SEEM TCOME THROUGH MY EARS... IT'S LIKE A VOICE IN MY HEAD!
LOOK! SEE WHAT YOU CAN FIND OUT ABOUT HIM!
HE SAYS HE BELONGS TO TH' SCOUT CORPS... SEEMS THEY'VE BEEN CHECKING ON EARTH FROM A BASE ON TH' MOON!
YAKKA POODLE SKISHER WAH WAH!
THEN HE'S NOT A MOON MAN?
NO, IT'S LIKE YOU SAID... THERE'S NO LIFE ON TH' MOON... HE'S FROM PLANET TWO!
PLANET TWO??? THAT SIGN ON HIS SHIRT... IT'S THE SYMBOL FOR VENUS!
LET'S SEE... MERCURY WOULD BE ONE... AND EARTH, THREE... IT COULD BE!
SKILLA BLOO TCO ISH TAH MOOGAH!
HE SAYS YES... HIS WORLD IS MUCH LIKE OURS, BUT MOSTLY WATER-- TH' LAND IS GETTING PRETTY CROWDED!
MY STARS, DOCTOR, WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN?
OFFHAND, OOOLA, I'D SAY IT MEANS TROUBLE WITH A CAPITAL "T"!

SUCH GEMS! THEY STAGGER THE IMAGINATION, RAJAH! NEVER HAVE I SEEN THE LIKE!
FROM A FAMOUS COLLECTOR LIKE YOU, MR. VAN PUYSTER, SUCH PRAISE IS HEART-WARMING. I HAVE A SPECIAL REASON FOR WANTING YOUR INTEREST!
THESE ARE PERILOUS TIMES FOR THE GREAT FORTUNES OF INDIA. THERE IS UNREST. TO BE FRANK, I WANT TO PLACE SOME CAPITAL SAFELY IN AMERICA!
YOU'D SELL YOUR COLLECTION?
NOT ALL OF IT--BUT A FEW STONES, WHICH I WILL NOT MISS. BUT ALAS! BUYERS WITH LARGE SUMS ARE HARD TO FIND!
I'D GIVE A FORTUNE FOR ONE STONE, SIR! THE FAMOUS RUBY, THE EYE OF KALI!
THAT CANNOT BE SOLD! MY SUBJECTS HOLD IT SACRED. THE EYE OF KALI, GOD OF MURDER, IS WORSHIPPED BY THE ASSASSIN CULT OF THUGGEE!
THE BRITISH ABOLISHED THE THUGS 100 YEARS AGO! EVEN IF THE STONE IS SACRED, A PASTE REPLICA WILL SATISY!
NO!
YOU NEED CASH. I WANT THE EYE OF KALI! IF WE CAN'T DO BUSINESS NOW, MAYBE LATER. HERE'S WHERE YOU CAN FIND ME IN THE STATES!
A FEW WEEKS LATER IN AMERICA...
HELLO! KNOW WHERE THERE'S A GOOD FISHING SPOT?
DOWN THIS ROAD A MILE, TURN LEFT AND FOLLOW THE LANE TO THE LAKE, SIR! EVERYBODY FISHES THERE!
A PLACE WHERE EVERYBODY FISHES-- HM! WONDER IF IT'S FISHED OUT!
HOW'S THE FISHING HERE, MISTER?
FISHIN'S GOOD--
IT'S THE CATCHIN' THAT'S REALLY TOUGH! TOO MANY FISHERMEN AND NOT ENOUGH LAKE!

with

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM

Exhaustive Research by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before It Starts!

NOW! Dental science offers scientific proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than a year's continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

For now—the toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—brings you a proved way to reduce tooth decay! Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums! And no change in Colgate's famous flavor, foam, or cleansing action! The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula used in the tests.

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone; nor can it stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started.

NO OTHER DENTIFRICE OFFERS PROOF OF THESE RESULTS

X-Rays Show How Proper Use Of Colgate's Helps Stop Tooth Decay!

Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for over a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate's right after eating. The other group followed their usual dental care. X-rays were taken at regular intervals.

The average of the group using Colgate Dental Cream as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate!

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy To Start Them On The Colgate Way To Reduce Tooth Decay!

Don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor—so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!
